SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta and Bombay mails arrived nearly together, and we publish an addition to our usual number of pages in consequence. The dates of the Calcutta mail are Calcutta, June 2nd, and Ceylon, June 6th; those of the Bombay mail are Bombay, June 8th, and Madras, May 29th.

The news from Calcutta is of no great importance. Owing to the complete stagnation of business, little or no demand was still the character of the money market. Uncertainty regarding the extent of the crisis, still slowly developing itself in Bombay, and the absence of any home demand for local produce, were said to be the principal causes.

The reported official changes in high places had received apparent confirmation. Sir Bartle Frere's resignation was announced by telegraph from Simla; whereupon the Friend of India passed a high eulogium upon his character and services, and declared that the loss of the latter was entirely owing to Sir Charles Wood, who nagged him, in common with his other subordinates, into a fever of irritation. The same writer also alluded to the rumours of Sir John Lawrence's resignation, and declared them due to the same cause—Sir C. Wood's offensive interference; adding, however: "Sir John Lawrence has doubtless felt the tone of the despatches which the Secretary of State signs as keen, as his predecessors; but he is made of too good material to allow any cause but illness to take him away from his duty. Nor was he unaware, when first appointed, from his experience in the Indian Council, that such despatches are the rule rather than the exception." These remarks occur in the Overland edition of the 2nd of May. In the number of the 8th of June we find only the following curt allusion to the other story:—"There is no truth in the report of Sir B. Frere's resignation."

Sir Charles Wood insinuated as much the other night, so the Friend's latter assertion is probably correct.

The same journal has heard all about Mr. Massey's policy, which, it seems, is to do nothing. The income-tax is not to be reimposed; the salt tax is not to be increased; and the responsibility of meeting the deficit is to be left to the Home Authorities. The little reign of the Export Duties had already done harm, by doubling the price of rice in the ports of Burmah, where there was an extraordinary demand for that article at the time.

The Government of India has disapproved of Mr. Cust's one-sided report on the re-adjustment of Civil salaries; nor does the Viceroy, we are told, feel any sympathy with that gentleman's opinions upon the future of the Staff Corps. For all practical purposes, therefore, the report may be considered non-existent.

There had been an alarm of a "Second Insurrection in Assam," originated by the Englishman, but it had no more foundation than the eccentricities of a Fakier who laid claim to supernatural powers; his object seems to have been pecuniary rather than political, and the excitement to which he gave rise has subsided. The Hindoo Patriot declares the report which deceived the Englishman to be a hoax, concocted by the native head of a certain department, who, having reason to suspect that information "oozed out" from his office into the newspapers, took this means of securing the identification of his property. If this be the fact, the trick was a very pretty one, but too much like playing with fire to be recommended for official use as a general rule.

The accident to the Nemesis has again called public attention to the dangers of the Hooghly, and the necessity of removing the port to the Mutlah. The works at Canning Town, it seems, are progressing favourably; and a lengthened correspondence has taken place between the chairman of the Port Canning Company and the consulting engineer to Government, in reference to the accommodation which must be provided by the Calcutta and South-Eastern Railway Company, the deficiency of rolling stock being a principal topic. In the mean time ten screw pile jetties have been ordered from England for the river frontage; and it is expected that in another two years the works will be in something like a state of completion.

Affairs in Bhootan remain quiet; but there are indications of intended future opposition on the part of the Bhootaahs. It is thought, however, that Tongsoo Penlow would be glad to agree to peace if he could be assured of his own safety; but he naturally supposes himself to be the main object of the wrath of the British Government. It is supposed, therefore, that there must be another advance into the country during the cold weather. This will be a relief to the troops after their sufferings during the hot weather, which appear to be very great.

Madras had been in danger of a reform in the Municipality, but had tided, happily, over the danger—for the present, at any rate. Ceylon continued to be engrossed by coffee and the new Governor. The one had met with an increase in exports; the other had neglected to drink the Queen's health at the Birthday celebration.

In Bombay the panic still continued, and with such intensity as to paralyse all business. Shares could be sold only at ruinous sacrifices, and the best securities could not be negotiated on any terms, or only by special favour. It was stated that the Supreme Government had ordered an inquiry into the management of the Bank of Bombay, especially as regards the part taken by Government directors. Several more failures had been announced, though none to a very large amount. It is satisfactory to know, however, that better accounts have since been received by telegraph.

Combined with the commercial gloom came the most intensely hot weather, prostrating both man and beast, and causing much sickness and mortality. The European guards, drivers, and others having exposed occupations had been great sufferers, and among all classes cholera continued its attacks. There was a great deal of talk, too, of a mysterious plague coming from Russia or elsewhere. The heat was unusually severe, not only in the West, but in all parts of India. It had been relieved in the Punjab by some severe thunderstorms, and in Bengal by heavy rains, which threatened great damage to the indigo crops. In Bombay, however, the public health had improved, and this notwithstanding that there had been a failure in the supply of ice, and that water was not more plentiful than it usually is in that city.

Two of the current military "rows" at Mhow were reported at an end. A certain medico, who had been reported incapable by a certain colonel, has been found efficient by a Court of Enquiry, and the colonel has received a wiggling from authority. In the Bushe-Stanley case a wiggling has been administered to both officers—Colonel Stanley's, it is said, being a severe, and Captain Bushe's a mild form of the attack. But people seemed to think that something more than a wiggling, however severe, is due to an officer who cuts down one of his own sepoy on parade. The public are dissatisfied, too, with the decision of the authorities in the matter of the "Fatal March," and declare that Major-general Green has been made the scapegoat.

A WEEK ago a Minister, suffering from bronchitis, made to a House suffering from indifference a statement of the financial affairs of a hundred and eighty millions of persons. Sir Charles Wood's throat was in a bad way, but his subject was in a worse; so he may be excused for having said as little as possible. Nor, indeed, did the number of his listeners encourage him to say more; for these are alleged to have been never more than twenty, and to have dwindled down to six long before the close of the debate. The leading facts will be found elsewhere. What they amount to is this:—That the revenue continues to increase, notwithstanding the uncertainty of opium and some other items, and that even the abandonment of the Income-tax would allow of a satisfactory surplus but for the calls upon expenditure, which augment at a still greater rate, and swamp all the ways and means at present resorted to. The Government will be able, it seems, to tide over the present difficulty—that is to say, the deficit which Sir Charles Trevelyan has left to his successor—by the issue of a few India Bonds, and some other arrangements; but the moral which Sir Charles Wood draws is that the most stringent economy must be exercised; and, in fact, that a reduction of expenditure is necessary for financial safety. This is what Sir Charles Trevelyan maintained when he opposed the Income-tax while Governor of Madras. And if not right then, he is surely right now; for it was at the military expenditure that he principally levelled; and, while it is only in this direction that any real impression is to be made, the present times are propitious for the purpose. We have now between 72,000 and 73,000 troops of the line in India—a force kept up upon the most costly conditions of service—and upon this great body of men there must be a material reduction before any good can be effected. A return to the plan of a local force would be one measure of economy; another, which might be made separately or in conjunction, would be the establishment of a reserve equivalent to the militia at home, and adapted to a system of military colonisation so often proposed. But under whatever conditions it is clear that there must be some modification of the present mode of garrisoning the country. With regard to a simple diminution of the present strength of the Line force, high authorities are of opinion that there would be no danger in such a measure now that the railway system is so far advanced in development, and more especially as reinforcements and reliefs are to be sent overland instead of round the Cape.

THE DISSOLUTION OF PARLIAMENT.—The following is from her Majesty's Speech, delivered to-day:—"Her Majesty rejoices at the continued tranquillity and increasing prosperity of her Indian dominions; and she trusts that the large supply which those territories will afford of the raw material of manufacturing industry, together with the termination of the civil war in the United States of North America, will prevent the recurrence of the distress which long prevailed among the manufacturing population of some of the northern counties."

BOMBAY TELEGRAMS.—Very favourable telegraphic advices, dated the 29th June, were received on Tuesday, 4th inst., from Bombay. They announced that prices for imports were advancing; produce had risen considerably. A better feeling was everywhere apparent, and shares were moving upwards.

NEW COMPANIES.—Several companies of a financial nature, in connection with India, are being projected, and their promises are, of course, of a very pleasant character; but our readers need scarcely be warned that new schemes of the kind must be regarded with caution, unless they come out under the authority of good business names.

BENGAL.

OUR POSITION BEFORE BHOOTAN.

Our news from the British Doonars is rather more favourable than we had any reason to anticipate. With the month of May well nigh passed, and the great periodical rains set in, about thirty-five per cent. only of the troops quartered under the hills of Bhootan are reported to be suffering from sickness. This is very cheering. By July we may reasonably hope the number will have doubled, and in September, when the dank vegetation begins to decay and throw off its noxious gases, it will be remarkable if any one regiment of the Doon Field Force can muster two hundred hale and active soldiers, with a proportionate number of officers. The latter, however, can always be had from other sources to make good the vaunted advantages of the irregular system, and can always be ordered up from doing "general duty," or what not, to keep together an organisation altogether impossible without some such dry nursing. By the time active operations become possible against Bhootan, supposing they are not deferred until 1867, the force under General Tytler will, there can be no doubt, be in a highly efficient state, and quite fit for a hill campaign. In the meantime we have the satisfaction of knowing that our national honour has been upheld by the occupation of a country which a correspondent describes "what is not bush is grass, and what is not grass is bush," and from which the enemy has most sensibly retired.—Hurkaru.

A CORRESPONDENT writing from the Bhootan frontier says that it was known some time since that Paro Penlow and Anglo-Farang Jungpeen were anxious for peace. The obstacle to negotiations was Tounso Penlow, who wrote urgently protesting against negotiations for that object. Under such circumstances the fact mentioned by our correspondent becomes of considerable significance, viz., that the bridge over the Aur Mochu, which had been partially destroyed with a view of impeding our advance, has been restored.—Ibid.

THE "NEMESIS."

The Friend of India says:—The P. and O. Company's steamer Nemesis has been wrecked in the Hooghly. She left Garden Reach on the 23rd May, and about ten o'clock on the morning of the 25th was steaming down the Rungafullah channel, between Mud Point and Kedgeree. Though the river is here four miles broad, the navigable channel is little more than two hundred yards, and when crowded with shipping drawn by tugs the danger is great, while the tide rushes through it like a milldam. As the Nemesis sailed down she had no alternative but to come into collision with the Pasasbourne on her bow, or to take the ground. To avoid the former the pilot ordered the engines to be stopped and the helm to be put about. When she had veered to the westward, the pilot, thinking he would now avoid both ship and sand, sent her on full speed right up the bank. Captain Coleman acted with vigour; the ports and hatches were closed, but an effort to back the ship only sent her broadside on the sand, and there she lay. She is likely to be got off. The passengers and mails were transferred in boats to the Columbus steam-tug, not without danger in the state of the weather, and returned to Calcutta without baggage. They left on Sunday by the Candia, which saved the baggage and cargo on its way down. When is the Mutlah to be tried by the mail steamers? An accident like this will do as much to open the eyes of the great shipping companies to its value as the Cyclone.

The Hurkaru contains the following:—In connection with the wreck of the Nemesis, the question seems likely to again arise of sending some of the mail steamers round to the Mutlah. Some time ago there was a report that the steamers of the Messageries Company would use the new port. If anything were wanted to show the absurdity of establishing a port at Diamond Harbour, it would be found in the circumstances attending the recent accident below that station. The fate of the Nemesis should be a warning of the actual necessity existing for a supplemental port easily and safely accessible by ships of large draught. The Nemesis, as our readers have learned by telegraph, has been since floated without injury.

THE GARRISON OF THE LOWER PROVINCES.

The Hurkaru says:—The Bengal Government has lately again agitated the question of the garrisoning of the Lower Provinces. This it has, to do it justice, never omitted doing as opportunity served. We cannot, however, quite agree with it, when it draws from certain facts the conclusion that the absence of European soldiers in many of the districts of these provinces betokens a disregard for their safety. Bengal is undoubtedly the largest, and richest by far of any of our Indian provinces, but the absence of troops within its borders is not so unaccountable as the local Government would wish to have believed. The Lower Provinces are inhabited by a race of men, perhaps the most unwarlike in the world, and they are again so intersected by streams as to make it only desirable to have bodies of troops collected at one or two points, from which they can be moved with the greatest ease in any direction. The Lieutenant-governor observes that there are no troops in the following large and rich districts, teeming with an industrious population, and full of European settlers,—districts which in point of wealth and importance will yield the palm to but few beyond the limits of his Government,—Chumparun, Sarun, Tirhoot, Purneah, Dinagepore, Rajshahye, Maldah, Pubna, Bograh, and Mymensingh. That is from the confines of Oudh to the banks of the Berhampooter. The population of this immense tract, 350 miles long from East and West, and embracing all the country between the Himalayas and the Ganges, from Patna to where it joins the Great river from the East is not less than twelve millions. Beyond these districts again, are those of Upper and Lower Assam, extending to the Eastward for another 300 miles, and yet before the breaking out of the Bhootan jasco there was not a single European soldier along the whole line of 650 miles. The absence of any body of troops in these districts has led to great trouble and greater expense now that a necessity has arisen for their services. But with all respect for Mr. Beadon's opinion we cannot regret the absence of troops in these districts of North Bengal. They have never been wanted, except to act against Bhootan or Nepal, or the Kookies and Cossyals, and probably never will be required to keep the inhabitants in order.

THE STORY OF A PAY BILL.

The English language boasts a "History of a Guinea," and the "Adventures of a Feather," and we would gladly see added to these the story of a pay bill. For incident, adventure, the crosses and delays of fiction, it would be necessary, however, to lay the plot in this country, since in England the life of this species of document is too brief and business-like to admit of that sentiment, the pains of disappointment, and the hopes of youth, so necessary to popular writing. The writer of such a history as we propose would naturally open the first volume with a glowing description of "India's coral strand," the tropical luxuriance of "a vegetation, the perfume of its flowers, the refined melody of the bulbul; the profuse wealth of the inhabitants, and their effeminate modes of life. Having devoted so much, say ten pages, to introduce the English reader to the land we live in, and which a few words of indifferent Hindustani would materially assist, a regiment of British infantry is seen in course of disembarkation below Fort William; flags waving, band playing, and Hindoo virgins flying, whilst pariahs howl, and the gentle Bengali robs and loves the new arrivals, if not honourably, at least too well. Moving through the crowd, conspicuous among ten thousand, our hero first meets the reader. He is a man of Colossal statue, wears spectacles and huge collars, takes snuff, and Newton's "calculating eye" gives dignity to an after-dinner nose, induced, so it is rumoured, by profound arithmetical studies. Need we say Captain Cocker is Paymaster to H.M.'s 150th Regiment, that his heart is plighted to his cousin Jane, of Clapham-common, and that his corps marches immediately, after landing, from Calcutta to Fyzabad? The sympathetic lover of novel writing will doubtless have guessed all these things. Thus far all has been sunshine and happiness with our principal character. Cocker is surprised and charmed with the Oriental East, as gathered from the Pay and Audit regulations of the Bengal Presidency, but alas! the dream is transient. Those Pay Abstracts for March are the beginning of troubles which break the strong man's heart and rest, and drive him to seek in half-pay that quiet which a regimental Paymaster knows not in India. And thus it happened, to pass from the realms of fiction to those of fact. Having drawn out the Pay Abstracts of his regiment, showing precisely what each officer, sergeant, and private in it is entitled to receive, or he, the Paymaster, considers them entitled to, the documents in duplicate are forwarded to the Divisional Paymaster at Lucknow for first audit, the aggregate claim being, let us suppose, 80,000 Rs. In the course of a week, perhaps eight days, Captain Cocker receives a Treasury Bill for 70,000 Rs. wherewith to pay the 150th Regiment, and a statement of the grounds upon which the other 10,000 Rs. have been retrenched. Of these, two-thirds are found to turn upon the absence of trivial certificates, in no other country required. One certificate can only be supplied by Captain A —, on detached command; another by Lieut. B. — proceeded upon leave. Distressed by this unexpected difficulty the regimental paymaster remonstrates, writes, calls in all the documentary evidence he can command to substantiate his pay abstracts, and by this time the pay bills for another month have to be compiled. Meanwhile, whilst endeavouring to keep quite separate his monthly regimental accounts, Captain Cocker receives several re-audits from the Calcutta Audit Office. Many of the disallowances of the Lucknow official are not upheld by Majors Harrison or Aubert, and, again, sums passed by the divisional pay-masters are retrenched upon re-audit. Confusion becomes worse confounded, and each month intensifies the muddle so far as our friend of the 150th Foot is concerned. The unadjusted balances of the army accumulate, and no one person is benefited, whilst many suffer from a system complicated enough to be Chinese in its origin. Lucknow becomes the evil genius of our hero. Its decisions are not final, and they are sometimes faulty. This knowledge, in itself, is fatal to the rapid disposal of such questions as may naturally be supposed to arise in the course of paying 800 soldiers. Captain Cocker becomes captious, refers the most insignificant matters from the ruling of the divisional to the Calcutta audit office, thence on to the Controller of Military Finance, and finally to the Supreme Government. There is no exaggerating the atlas of correspondence which results from the uncertain and circuitous method of adjusting the pay and allowances of H.M.'s army as at present practised in India. Its anomalies and absurdities are in the mouths of every officer who has served with a regiment in England. We require, first a more simple pay and audit code, and the cancelling of many little and vexatious regulations; secondly, the abolishment of divisional pay offices; and, lastly, the creation of an efficient audit office. At present the two pay examiners are over-worked, having to discharge the labour which falls upon six divisional paymasters. We know, practically, that the report of Messrs. Foster and Whiffen erred in reducing the strength of this office. The mistake into which the commissioners not unnaturally fell, was that of calculating as though a sharp, hard-working, and intelligent London clerk, at home, could not, and would not, discharge more work than a Bengal baboo. Or as though Grischunder and Khetter were ordinary samples of the latter class. Not until we possess one audit office, centrally located, whose decisions, under the controller of military finance, shall be final, and to whom all pay-bills, whatever would be submitted, can we hope to escape complications which, in sober truth, we have but glanced at in the preceding remarks. We hope to revert to the subject in the course of a few days.—Hurkaru.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE REV. DR. MULLINS.—Our missionary readers will learn with regret that the Indian career of the Rev. Dr. Mullins is near an end. The directors of the London Missionary Society have requested him to return to England for the purpose of taking the place of colleague of Dr. Tidman, their secretary, who is now a very old man. The society has 200 missionaries abroad, and spends £80,000 a-year. Dr. Mullins will leave Calcutta in July, and visit all the society's stations in China and South India, reaching England next spring. Thus will end a life of twenty-one years in India, during which he has seen a large part of its provinces, made personal acquaintance with more than five hundred missionaries, and written many pamphlets and books. Few men have spent so active and useful a life as he, and his large and catholic experience will be of great use in England.—Friend of India.

RAWUL PINDEE, May 15.—The right wing and head-quarters of the 79th Cameron Highlanders left for Murree (Abbottabad road) last Tuesday morning. The left wing started the week previous. Two squadrons of the 20th Hussars have come in since. It is now expected the head-quarters of the Hussars will also move in, to enable Colonel Stannus to take command of the station on the departure of Brigadier Tucker, who proceeds almost immediately to Murree, on sick leave. The severe shock the old man received the other day when thrown from off his horse has been too much for him. Even though he recovers health and strength he does not return to the command of Pindée; being now the senior in the list, his promotion to Major-General is expected with every mail.

THE SUDDER COURT OF THE N. W. P.—We hear from the Pioneer that the Sudder Court of Agra seems determined to maintain its character for eccentricity to the end, for it has released Modhoo and Elahee, tailor, who were lately sentenced to death by the Session Judge of Allahabad for their share in a murder committed during the mutiny.

ODDH POLICE.—It is stated that the Government of India have resolved on the final abolition of the office of Deputy Inspector General of Odh Police. The Chief Commissioner advocates the appointment of a personal assistant to the Inspector General; some one to take charge of the office during his absence on duty.

THE SOONDERBUNS SCHEME AND THE GOVERNMENT.—The papers connected with the Soonderbuns Reclamation Scheme which have been published since our last despatch exonerate the Viceroy from the charge of having broken faith with the promoters. Had they been published at first, no such charge could ever have been made. It now appears that the Government of India have, from the commencement, throughout their official correspondence, limited their concession to the Soonderbuns attached to the 24-pergunnahs. The promoters were consequently informed that an application for that portion of the Soonderbuns would be favourably received. Such an application was made during the absence of Mr. F. Schiller, by his attorney, Mr. Kilburn, through the commissioner of the Nuddea division. This mistake was immediately rectified on Mr. Schiller's return, by a second letter to the commissioner, and by subsequent letters to his Excellency the Viceroy, and the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. In consequence, it would appear, of the last-named letter, the Government of Bengal, as represented by their junior secretary, Mr. S. C. Bayley, took upon themselves the responsibility of ordering the inclusion of the Jessore Soonderbuns in the concession, in a letter to the Board of Revenue, a copy of which was furnished to the promoters. This action, on the part of the Government of Bengal, was the source of all the misapprehension that followed.—Englishman.

FRENCH POSSESSIONS IN INDIA.—The French Government possesses in various parts of India, in the neighbourhood of large cities, such as Patna, plots of ground, or Zemindaries which were formerly the sites of French factories or as they were termed "Lodges." Some time ago the authorities at Chandernagore claimed some land at Patna, in the possession of a Mr. Pigou, on the ground that it was formerly the site of one of these factories or lodges. As nothing could be found in the records of the Government offices here which threw light on the matter, the Chandernagore authorities were asked to furnish the local executive with any information they might possess on the subject. These estates would seem to have been very much neglected. There is on each one of them a chowkedar, who is remunerated by being invested with a small jagheer, and who in his own proper person represents the whole of the police arrangements. Situated as these "lodges" are in the centre of thickly peopled British districts, it may readily be supposed that they are resorted to chiefly by men whose characters render them obnoxious to British laws. Their very smallness prevents the establishment of anything like a proper system of police within their limits, and so we find that they are generally farmed out by not the most upright of people, and that the punishment inflicted for the majority of offences is a few hours in the stocks. The Chandernagore authorities can scarcely be expected to exercise any very strict or close supervision over a number of scattered estates. But then these estates are necessarily a thorn in the side of the neighbouring districts, from the fact of their being foreign territory, and the natural refuge as it were of those who may find a residence elsewhere disagree with them. It is greatly to be regretted that the arrangements for an exchange of lands to which we alluded some time ago should be delayed. The measure is one of the very few which are likely to give satisfaction to both parties.—Friend of India.

Mr. EDWARD H. LUSHINGTON, the secretary to the Government of India in the Financial Department, is suffering severely from an affection of the head, which has rendered the appointment of a locum tenens necessary. The Viceroy has appointed Mr. John Strachey, the president of the Sanitary Commission, to officiate as Financial Secretary until Mr. Lushington's recovery.—Friend of India.

GREAT STORM AT LAHORE.—Lahore was visited about two o'clock P.M. on the morning of the 25th with a brief but terrific gale, an outer ring of a hurricane. Half the trees on the mall are down; houses with their tilings and jhamps and tattees flung all over the compounds. The dust and turmoil and darkness, the crashing of window-panes, the thud of some heavy body, the up-lifting of the carpet, the feeble cry of people in the distance calling to each other, made an exciting and anxious time of it. Buggies were clean upset, and some of the railway carriages having got into motion sailed off, some down the Mooltan line, some down the road to Ataree. No serious accidents appear to have occurred, though many a native must have been frightened half out of his senses. A second gust occurred at six in the morning, but not so severe. Some places to the north-west of Lahore must have suffered greatly, as that was the dark part of the horizon. The air is a little cooler, but the heat has been very trying. The Lieutenant-Governor, who was expected this morning, has not arrived, having been delayed by the storm, no doubt. Strange is the scene in the Anarkullee bazaar, and as for the exhibition building, the only surprise is that so much of it is left. It was a regular case of Dibdin's old sea song, "My eyes what tiles and chimney-pots about their heads were flying." All round and in the city there are traces of the violence of the storm, of which we have certainly not seen the last.—Delhi Gazette.

THE MEENAS.—The Bheels are not alone in their reputation as hereditary brigands. Their outrages are often surpassed by those of a similar tribe called the Meenas. The Meenas were reported some time since as having committed several robberies in Kotah and Boondoe. We now hear they have extended their depredations to the States of Scindia. The Meenas are, as a rule, better organised for plunder than the Bheels, and are consequently more dangerous. They have a sort of robber pride, too, which induces them to spare solitary travellers. They assemble in numbers, each man being well armed and resolute, and frequently attack kafilas or caravans. These two tribes in former years, the Bheels and Meenas, supplied the major portion of the fierce predatory hordes that rode with Jeswant Rao Holcar, the Peishwa, or Scindia, and whose ravages were so terrible that whole districts like those of Candeish and Nimar have not yet recovered from the visitation. They are always ready for any enterprise which may promise loot and excitement, and, therefore, although bad soldiers, they make good marauders, and are dangerous, as offering a ready recruiting field to the arts of the designing.—Hurkaru.

THE ABKAREE LAW.—Information has been conveyed to the superintendent of the Cantonment Abkaree Mehal that the agents of Messrs. Waring Brothers and Hunt, Railway Contractors, had disposed of considerable quantities of wines and liquors without a licence. In answer to this charge the agents of the contractors stated that Messrs. Waring Brothers and Hunt had sent out a large stock of liquors for their staff of engineers and European workmen on the Jubbulpore line; that wines, &c., had been sold at actual cost price, and that no profit had been made by the transaction. The Cantonment magistrate has deferred his decision until it can be ascertained by reference to superior authority whether a transaction of this kind, which has not the features of a regular sale for the sake of gain, can be treated as a breach of the laws and rules of the Abkaree department.

A SECOND SONTHAL REBELLION.—The following paragraph, from the Englishman, has been received with incredulity, and some little ridicule, by the press generally:—"There have been serious disturbances in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, which might have turned out a second insurrection. They have, however, been, by the management of the district authorities, put down quietly, and the leader is imprisoned." Its origin is "explained" by the Hindoo Patriot in the following terms:—"The Englishman states that there has been something like a second insurrection in the Sonthal districts, but that matters have been quietly put to rights by the local officials. We are in a position to state that there is not a tittle of truth in the above. For some time past official documents have been systematically purloined from the Bengal office, but this sham news was laid as a bait by the clever registrar of the Bengal sectariat, and it appears that his manoeuvre has proved completely successful. It is a regular 'sell.' It appears, however, that there was some excitement in some of the Sonthal districts, caused by a beggar professing supernatural powers, and who made his 'gifts' a means of swindling.

COURTS-MARTIAL will probably take place on officers implicated in the disgraceful flight at Dewangiri:—The Dewangiri retreat, in which Colonel Campbell, with the 43rd N.I., acted so disgracefully, as we hear, likely to lead to one or two Courts-martial, as the Colonel has laid the blame of the disaster on two or three of the officers in charge of companies under his command; indeed, one or two have already been punished. Sir Hugh Rose, prior to his departure, having removed Captain Cunliffe, wing officer 12th N.I., from his appointment, on representations made by Colonel Campbell, Captain Cunliffe has rightly asked for a Court of Enquiry, as he is punished for obeying orders, or a Court-martial to remove the stigma cast on his character. Captain Cunliffe is a gallant officer, and did good service during the mutiny with the Kumaon Levy when attacking the rebel force under Nizam Allee Khan and Allee Khan Maiwatee, near Philibheet, in August, 1858, in which action our deputy-commissioner, Mr. Low, was also present.—Central India Times.

THE NEW SCREW MOORINGS FOR THE HOOGLEY.—The Englishman tells us that Mr. Wells, who had been sent out from England to look after the laying down of the screw moorings, in lieu of the present buoys of the Hoogley, has at last arrived, and that one hundred screw moorings are daily expected. When these one hundred moorings are laid down a further indent will be sent to the Home Government for such a number as may be required.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE MUNICIPALITY.—We take the following from the Athenæum and Daily News of May 29th:—The matter that has chiefly engrossed public attention at Madras of late is naturally enough the new Bill for re-organising the Municipality of the Town, and making better provision for its police, conservancy, and general improvement, as well as for the levying of fresh rates and taxes. It was introduced into the local council on the 29th ultimo, by the Hon. H. D. Phillips, but was not published until just before we last wrote, when we had not time to consider the merits of it, on account of its great length. Like the Bill for accomplishing similar objects in the Mofussil towns, which was brought in by the Hon. A. J. Arbuthnot at a previous sitting of the Council, the present draft is of a most elaborate and comprehensive description, and has been framed with the greatest care and pains by a Committee of Government appointment, consisting of the Advocate-General, the Honourable Mr. Ellis, Colonels Wilson and Temple, and Mr. Robinson, C.S., Inspector-general of Mofussil Police; than whom five gentlemen could not have been selected more competent to deal with the difficult and intricate questions which the Bill embraces. This, of course, is not the place in which to attempt anything like a review of their labours, but we may briefly mention the nature of the propositions made by them, which, generally speaking, command our approval. The leading feature of it entirely does so. After long deliberation, and guided by the experience of the other presidencies, the committee have wisely determined not to recommend the introduction of the popular element into the municipal body that will be hereafter established. The experiments made in that direction at Calcutta notoriously failed, and had to be abandoned. The elective principle was given up with common consent, and the later provision there and in Bombay of corporations composed of the Justices in Session is still on its trial, with doubtful promise as to the result. The Madras Committee are therefore of opinion, said Mr. Phillips in Council, "that it will be unwise to make any alteration, at present, in the agency by which the Municipal Funds of the town of Madras are administered, namely, by three commissioners appointed by the Government." The existing Board will consequently to all appearance remain unaltered, although one or two influential native nominees of the State may perhaps be added, as a considerable increase of civic taxation is to take place. This assurance relieves us of serious anxiety lest some so-called "popular" plan should have been suggested with public acclaim, which Mr. Ellis very justly told the council would "have been very transitory, because he ventured to say that when such a measure came to be applied, it would have been found to be unworkable, and would have necessarily required speedy amendment."

COURTS MARTIAL AT KAMPTEE.—A letter from the Central Provinces says that at Kamptee, a general Court-martial had commenced to sit on Captain Martin, commanding the D Battery 20th Brigade Royal Artillery, on charges arising from a signature to a bill, which signature Captain Martin denies; the case has been pending since December last. Colonel Galway, C.B., 36th Madras N.I., is president of the Court-martial. Lieutenant, R. D. Lowe, doing duty with the 12th Madras N.I., who has also been in arrest some time on charges made by Mr. Brereton, railway engineer, relating to a fracas at the hotel at Seetabuldi, is to be tried by the same Court-martial. Lieutenant F. Huddleston, of the late 1st Madras N.I., who left Cannanmore in October last to join the 1st M.N.I. at Ho-shungabad, has not since been heard of. He has mysteriously disappeared, either by shipping himself off to America, or else met with foul play en route; it is generally thought the former surmise is the correct one.

THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.—At last the long-talked of reorganisation of the Department of Public Works has become an "accomplished fact." After a great amount of correspondence with the Supreme Government, dating so far back as March, 1864, the latter have "deferred" to the opinion of the Madras Government, and accordingly, from the 1st inst., the staff of the reorganised Department will stand as follows:—1 Secretary to Government, 1 Under Secretary, 8 Superintending Engineers, 1 Controller of the P.W. Accounts, 1 Deputy do., 1 General Superintendent of Presidency Stores and Workshops, 3 Executive Engineers of the 1st Class, 5 do. 2nd do., 6 do. 3rd do., 21 do. 3rd do., 12 do. 4th do., 6 Assistant Engineers of 1st Class, 20 do. 2nd do., 3 Sub-Engineers of the 1st Class, 2 do. 2nd do., 9 do. 3rd do., 11 Supervisors of the 1st Class, 30 do., 2nd do., 187 Taluq Overseers, 49 Apprentices. One point, however, in the above arrangement has not yet been finally settled, and that is, whether we are eventually to have 5 or 8 Superintending Engineers. The Supreme Government are in favour of the lesser number, but the local Government maintain that if the efficiency of the department is to be kept up there should not be less than 8. The question has been referred to the Secretary of State for settlement, pending whose reply the larger number has been sanctioned temporarily.—Athenæum and Daily News.

STOCK AND SHARE MARKET.—The demand for money continues slack, and the directors of the Bank of Madras reduced their rate of discount and interest one per cent. all round on the 23rd May. Government securities are in little demand, but have not fluctuated in value during the fortnight. We quote 5½ per Cents. 109½ to 110; 5 per Cents. 103½, and 4 per Cents. 90 to 90½. Bank of Madras Shares continue to be prejudicially influenced by forced sales in Bombay, and have declined nearly 10 per cent. during the fortnight. They are now quoted at 80 to 82 per cent. premium, nominal.—Exchange.—But little alteration in the rates has been visible during the fortnight. Credits have been placed for this Mail at 2s. 0½d., and Documentary Bills at 2s. 3d. to 3½. The banks are drawing at 2s. 3-16th.—Freights.—Our market is much depressed by the almost unprecedented quantity of tonnage now in our port.

PROPOSED MEMORIAL TO THE LATE COLONEL ELLIOT.—We hear that Mr. Temple, prior to his departure, was most anxious that a mural tablet should be put up in the station Church, in memory of our late esteemed Chief Commissioner, Colonel Elliot. It is to be hoped subscriptions will be raised for this purpose among the many friends Colonel Elliot had in these provinces, so as to have the work executed in England.—Central India Times.

THE IRREGULAR SYSTEM IN MADRAS.—It is understood that Sir Gaspard Le Marchant, the new Commander-in-Chief of Madras, has brought out with him instructions to introduce the irregular system into the Madras Army.

THE MASULIPATAM CYCLONE COMMITTEE has distributed about £19,000 in relief to the sufferers; the number of houses and huts destroyed was 19,181, and of dead bodies, men and animals, buried between 3,000 and 4,000.

"BLUE JACKETT," the well-known race-horse, the property of Mr. Minchin, c.s., has been carried off by a tiger at Kurnool.

THE ROUTE OF THE INDUS AND THE PORT OF KURRACHEE.

If the growth of the railway system in England has been so far beyond what its most sanguine supporters ever anticipated, if its development has been greater than the wildest visionary ever looked for, what shall we say of it in this country, where we see the gradual fulfilment of great projects for traversing the length and breadth of this wide land?

Perhaps the most favoured provinces in this respect are, strange as it may seem, those most recently added to our rule. Thanks to the influence of a powerful advocate, thanks to the exertions of an eminent benefactor, the Punjab and Scinde have not been left behind in the race of progress; these territories that some twenty-five years ago were almost unknown lands, not only to Englishmen at home, but also to our own countrymen living in and administering the affairs of what then constituted British India, take an honourable place in the ranks with our older possessions. This week has witnessed the opening of upwards of 200 miles of railway, a link of a great system planned by the initiator and promoter of railway undertakings in the Punjab and in Scinde, for the purpose of not only strengthening and securing our power on the frontier, but to act as one of the most powerful agents in bringing about the resuscitation of the land of the five rivers.

Much yet remains to be accomplished, for what has been done is but a small portion of this great scheme. Let us not imagine that because the three great cities of the Punjab have been brought into daily communication with each other, that because we hold the certainty of witnessing in a few years the completion of an extension of that communication to Delhi, more is not required. We must not "rest and be thankful" while almost isolated from the sea. We must not stand by contentedly and see the development of our commerce delayed, and the full purpose of our inland railways retarded. Until the natural outlet for the cereal wealth and the varied products of the Punjab, as well as of the neighbouring tributary, and the independent States is secured by an unbroken line of railway, all else will be as nothing.

The day must soon come when a direct line traversing the valley of the Indus shall deposit with certainty—and in days instead of months—the superabundance of our harvests at the seaport of Kurrachee, while a returning stream of the manufactures of western Europe shall flow upwards, and becoming distributed, aid in carrying civilization throughout the Punjab and Central Asia.

What has been done, what is being done—whether in the introduction of railway communication, the development of commerce, the improvement of agriculture, the education and elevation of the people—are all sure aids to a great end. And when we see these enlightening and improving means willingly, nay eagerly, ratified by the people, we thankfully accept the signs of the times, and feel that we are ceasing to govern by the sword, but by the mind and by the heart instead.—Lahore Chronicle.

The ship China, Smith commander, from Glasgow, we learn, crossed the bar on April 27, drawing 20-6; the least water she had whilst crossing the bar was 26 feet. This is a fact well worthy of note, as it shows that if the harbour improvements now in progress have altered the channel into this harbour, and made it more tortuous, they have, at the same time, increased the depth of water very considerably. The largest line-of-battle ships can now enter the port at spring tides in perfect safety. This is in reality a piece of good news, which all interested in the commercial prosperity of Kurrachee will most assuredly receive joyously.—Scinde paper.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A MEETING OF THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE BACK BAY RECLAMATION COMPANY was held on the 6th ult., when a rough statement of the accounts were presented, and a resolution passed that the premium realised on the sale of 400 shares of the company in June last, with interest, should be carried to a separate account, and be appropriated in such a manner only as the capital of the company is applicable.

DEATH OF MR. J. BALL.—We regret to learn that a very sad occurrence recently took place at a short distance from the Kussarah Railway station, which caused a most painful sensation amongst the European residents in that neighbourhood. It appears that Mr. John Ball, a permanent way inspector, who has resided for the last four years in an isolated cottage at a place called Mokonda, between Kussarah station and Kurdee, was missing from his home for several days, and, after a diligent search, his skeleton was found on the bank of the Rewtunda Nullah, in the heart of a very jungly country infested by wild animals, at a distance of about two and a half miles from the station, and about the same distance from his own home. The deceased was last seen alive early on the morning of Tuesday, the 9th May, when he was leaving the station unaccompanied by any one, and his remains were not discovered until the following Friday. Portions of the clothing, with the watch of the deceased, were found close to his remains, as also a small sum in copper. His hat was found amongst some bushes on a very steep bank forty or fifty feet above where the remains were lying. It is supposed that the deceased, on the morning of the day on which he met his death, had gone alone into the jungle in search of a pool of water, which the natives had informed him existed in the nullah in the vicinity of the spot where his remains were found, and that he had fallen over the precipice. The deceased was a faithful and hard working servant of his employers, and it would appear that in his zeal for their service he lost his life. There is a great scarcity of water this year at Kussarah for the railway engines, and the deceased is supposed to have been in the act of searching for a supply when he came by his death.—Times of India.

CASHMERE—OUTBREAK OF SHAWL MAKERS.—A Calcutta paper tells us that an outbreak has taken place among the shawl makers of Cashmere in consequence of the exactions of the Maharajah. They struck work, and the military had to be called out, but, strange thing to relate regarding an Asiatic populace, the malcontents paraded the streets en masse, and burnt the chief pundit in effigy for his supposed share in the tax which was to add to their difficulties. An up country paper adds:—A letter from Cashmere, of a later date than that which we inserted in our last issue, tells us that the shawl manufacturers had settled down quietly, and that the pundits were still in prison. The Maharajah shows no signs of moving from Jummoo.

THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—It is understood that no attempt will be made to carry out the project of an International Exhibition until after the 1st July next. The Governor's interest in the scheme is undiminished; and many of the promoters of the original joint stock company are still anxious to fulfil their promise of guaranteeing the estimated expenses; but the expediency of postponing further operations while Bombay remains in its present prostrate condition is recognised by all. It is, indeed, unlikely that the ambitious idea of an International Exhibition will be proceeded with for some years to come: and the suggestion that a compromise might perhaps be effected in favour of a Local Exhibition next year is more in consonance with our now humble circumstances.

FEMALE SPECULATION AT BOMBAY.—A Bombay paper says that a curious fact has come to light in connection with the recent share depreciation. It appears that during the recent mania a large number of Parsee women dabbled in shares, and in order to do this raised loans on their jewels, and, where this was not practicable, sold them, in order to raise the requisite funds. Now that the crash has come, such a tearing of hair, beating of breasts, and gnashing of teeth as is now taking place in the Parsee quarter of Bombay has no parallel in the recollection of living man.

FAILURES IN BOMBAY.—The Friend of India says:—Failures in Hong Kong to the extent of £120,000, followed by the fall of Byramjee Hormusjee Cama of Bombay for three millions sterling, a fourth of which is unrepresented by assets, would at any time be alarming. The former were long expected, and will affect seriously only one young bank. But the latter is likely to have a most evil result in the present state of Bombay, where despairing speculators are so hard pressed that one is said to have offered a Bank of Bombay share at par, and the shareholders of mushroom Financial Associations indulge in uproarious recriminations disgraceful to human nature. We fear there is hardly a bank in Bombay which will not suffer heavily from this Cama failure. It renders fruitless all those compromises and expedients by which legitimate speculators had hoped to stave off the evil day till October and to lessen the crash when it came. The announcement of the Cama failure has caused a panic in Calcutta more serious than any yet experienced, but not fully justified by the state of the money market on this side. The Bombay Gazette, alluding to the same subject, says:—"The trust deed of Mr. Byramjee Hormusjee Cama's estate was sent home by last mail, a duly authenticated copy being kept in Bombay. The deed has been signed by all the principal creditors, by Mr. Cama himself, and by the trustees, with the exception of Mr. Muncherjee Franjee Cama, who has refused to act. Mr. Muncherjee is a distant relative, and not a brother of Mr. Byramjee. We hear that the Bank of Bombay is the largest creditor of all the local banks, and that Mr. Premchund Roychund has claims against the estate, chiefly in time-bargains, to the amount of seventy lakhs of rupees. The failure of Messrs Leckie and Co. is also announced. It was one of the oldest and most respectable firms in Bombay. The event was quite unexpected, as the house made a great deal of money in cotton in 1862-63, and has latterly taken no conspicuous part in the speculative enterprises of the day. The immediate cause of the failure of the Bombay house was the failure, announced by telegraph, of the London firm of Rimington, Cartwright, and Co., which consisted of the partners in the firm of Leckie and Co. The suspension of Messrs. Passmore and Co. was announced on the 6th of June."

DREADFUL EARTHQUAKE IN CABOOL.—The Delhi Gazette's correspondent in Cabool, writing on the 5th instant, says:—"The following letter was received to-day from Sirdar Fyz Mohamed, from Ukhcha in Toorkistan:—"A severe shock of earthquake has been felt here; almost the whole city of Ukhcha has been destroyed by it. The shock was felt all over Balkh, but not so severely as in Ukhcha. In Shiburghun about two thousand men were buried under their houses, while in Tukhta Bool and the Muzar Shurreef the shock was felt very slightly, and, consequently, the damage was not much."

OPENING OF THE BOMBAY GAS WORKS.—It is not yet quite two years since the works of the Bombay Gas Company were commenced, and the prophets of the time gave the company till July or December, 1865, to complete them. The vaticinations that accompany the commencement of most undertakings are generally over-sanguine in stating the period of their accomplishment, but those as to the completion of the Bombay Gas Works form an exception. The inauguration of the works took place on Friday evening, 26th May, and the interest of the occasion may be judged of by the fact that upwards of a thousand persons were present—European, Hindoo, Parsee, and Mahomedan—and among them the leading men of the various sections of the community in Bombay. The works were brilliantly illuminated, but their low situation at Chinchpogly—being somewhat below the level of the road—did not give the illumination the commanding and striking appearance which it would have had if one could have seen the devices and lines of light from a distance instead of the radiance merely which the myriads of burners threw into the air. Opposite the entrance of the works, however, the whole of the illumination was very beautiful. The company undertake to supply gas at seven rupees per 1,000 cubic feet, which quantity we may mention for the sake of our native readers is equal to 6,232 English gallons. The average quantity consumed by one burner in one hour is not quite four feet, and any ready arithmetician can easily calculate from these data what it would cost him to light his house with gas, and compare the expense of the gas with the outlay for oil. The company are already prepared to supply gas in many parts of the native town and wait on the Municipal Commissioners erecting the lamps in its streets. The banquet was of the most sumptuous description, and the guests were legion. The native visitors stood in hundreds behind the tables, and looked on till the British lions had finished their meal, after which they joined heartily in the toasts of the evening. His Excellency the Governor was expected to have presided, but, at his Excellency's suggestion, the duty was entrusted to R. B. Barton, Esq., acting senior magistrate of police. The directors of the Bombay Gas Company entertained their European workmen to supper on Saturday night (27th May), on the completion of the works, in which they have been engaged during the last eighteen months. It would have been neglectful on the part of the directors if they had omitted to recognise in this simple but truly English fashion their gratification that the works had been brought to a favourable issue, and that their successful completion had been dependent on those clear European heads which had been drafted from among the artisans of England, not to superintend, but actually do work with which native workmen dared not be entrusted.—Bombay Gazette.

THE BISHOP OF CALCUTTA.—The Bishop of Calcutta reached Srinuggur in Cashmere on the 12th May. A day or two before the Rev. J. Handcock, of the Peshawur mission, was informed by the local representative of the Maharaja of Cashmeer that he must not preach the Gospel in the bazaars of the town as he had done once or twice! He proposes, in consequence, leaving Srinuggur. Should the bishop, following the example of his Right Reverend Brethren of London and Oxford, take to open-air preaching, would Dewan Kirparam venture on a similar prohibition?—Delhi Gazette.

A MILD DOSE OF JUSTICE.—In the Jeypore Raj justice seems to look kindly on criminals of tender age and of the tender sex. A news writer says that an extraordinary case of poisoning is said to have occurred here on the 14th instant. A girl about fourteen years of age, while in her father-in-law's house, mixed dhutoora, a kind of poison, in the day's meal, and poisoned her husband, her father-in-law, her mother-in-law, and her two brothers-in-law. The girl was apprehended, and, after the case had been thoroughly investigated, she was sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

MUTILATION.—The Chief of Jhubbooa in Central India having knowingly permitted a case of mutilation to occur at his capital, in which a person confined under suspicion of theft was deliberately deprived of a foot and hand, his Excellency the Governor-General in Council, in order publicly to mark the displeasure with which the British Government regard the conduct of the chief, directs that the salute of eleven guns to which he has been hitherto entitled be henceforth discontinued.

THE RAJASHS OF TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN have at length agreed to remove the fiscal restrictions on trade between British India and their own states, in the manner proposed by the Government of India.

THE COTTON FRAUDS ACT.—The Secretary of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce addressed a communication to Government, dated 27th ult., on the general results of the working of the Cotton Frauds Act during the past year, in which he states that the working of this Act was considered at a general meeting of the Chamber on the 23rd March, when the following resolution was agreed to:—"That though in the opinion of the Chamber there has been less admixture of foreign substances since the Cotton Frauds Act came into operation, the equally or even greater evil of mixing varieties of cotton has in no way diminished, and the cost of the working of the Act is disproportionate to any advantage derived from it." In placing this resolution before his Excellency the Governor in Council, the attention of Government is drawn to the fact that the Act is found to be inoperative when attempted to be put in force for the punishment of one of the principal evils which it was expected to cure.

SCINDE RAILWAY.—Since our last Mr. George Rawlinson, the agent of the Scinde Railway Company, has left Kurrachee for England, ostensibly for a year on sick leave, but really for good. Mr. D. McNeil, has, to the great delight of the whole of the railway subordinates, from first to last, been appointed acting agent; Mr. Ross to the post of traffic manager; Mr. Tavenor succeeded Mr. Ross. These nominations, are, to say the least of them, most judicious, for popular men always make the best leaders, and we have not the slightest doubt that Messrs. McNeil, Ross, and Tavenor will fully realize public expectation and render their department more comfortable to subordinates than unfortunately it has for some time past been.—Our Paper.

SUDDEN DEATH FROM CHOLERA.—We regret to announce the death of Lieutenant Hancock, of H.M.'s 33rd Regiment, which took place at this station from cholera yesterday morning. The deceased had dined at mess, and was attacked whilst sitting with a friend after dinner. He expired about two in the morning, and was buried last evening at half-past five. The deceased was a promising young officer, and his death will be deeply regretted by his numerous friends and acquaintances, to whom his genial and kind nature was well known, and with whom he was a general favourite.—Poona Observer.

THE TELEGRAPH IN INDIA.—The Bombay Gazette says:—We yesterday (30th ult.) published a telegram, dated London, May 17, a copy of which was forwarded to us by post from Reuter's agent at Kurrachee on the 23rd inst. The telegram itself came to hand yesterday about four P.M., having been despatched from Kurrachee on the 23rd inst., at 8.30 A.M., so that it was only seven days and seven hours in course of transit by the Government wire, and about two days, two hours, and thirty minutes longer than it took to come through from London to Kurrachee.

THE "STAR OF THE SOUTH."—Messrs. W. Nicol and Co., through the agency of Mr. Kessowjee Naik, have negotiated the sale to the Guicowar of Baroda of the celebrated diamond "Star of the South," for the sum of rupees eight lakhs and three-quarters. The "Star of the South" is, next to the "Koh-i-noor," the largest diamond in the world; weighing 125 carats, and is a gem of extraordinary purity and lustre.

COLONEL BRIGGS' MISSION TO ENGLAND.—Among the passengers who proceeded by a late mail was Lieut.-Colonel T. Briggs, R.A. This officer, we understand, has been deputed to England by Government in connection with a work on the Architectural Antiquities of Western India, which it is in contemplation to bring out under the management of a local committee. The work promises to be of great interest to the literary public of the Western Presidency.

THE ADVANCE OF RUSSIA.—There is a report that the Punjab Government have received information that a Russian force of 1,000 men, with a battery of artillery, has advanced as far as Yarkhand, close to the Cashmere frontier.

THE MURDERER OF MAJOR MAINWARING.—The native trooper, belonging to the Scinde Horse, who made such a desperate attempt on the life of Major Mainwaring at Jacobabad last month, has been tried by court-martial, convicted, and sentenced to be hanged.

PROPOSED RAILWAY FROM CAIRO TO A STATION ON THE RED SEA.—Sir H. Bulwer has been endeavouring to obtain the Viceroy's consent to a railway from Cairo to Ras Bennis, on the Red Sea, which would shorten by nearly two days the voyage to India.

CEYLON.

The Colombo Observer, of the 6th of June, contains the following paragraphs:—

The Governor, having returned from his Ouhah trip, has been busy at Kandy arranging with his Executive Council the programme of measures for the ensuing session of Council, and celebrating in the usual style Her Majesty's Birthday. And yet not in the usual style, for much surprise has been expressed at the omission of the accustomed loyal toast "Her Majesty's health." But Sir Hercules Robinson must have acted advisedly in this matter as in others. His Excellency during the fortnight has passed from his chrysalis state and is now full governor—complete representative of Her Majesty. He is understood to be in favour of "long walks" and short meetings of Council, and certainly Mr. Secretary Cardwell by his contemptuous annihilation of the unofficial element in the Council makes the latter condition easy.

It is rumoured that Colonel Milman, well-known here as an officer of the 37th Regiment, is to succeed Major-General O'Brien as commander of the forces. The latter gallant officer has somewhat recovered, but continues in feeble health.

May 22.—No. 504.—With reference to G.G.O., No. 363 and 364, dated March 30, 1860, the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following paragraphs of a letter from the Right Hon. the Secy. of State for India, No. 109, dated April 7, 1865, and to notify that the increased allowances therein authorised are to have effect from May 1:—

With my letter dated Nov. 24, 1859, No. 412, I transmitted to you copies of a Royal Warrant, dated July 1, 1859, regulating the rank, pay, promotion, and retirement of veterinary surgeons of H.M.'s British forces; and I directed that such parts of this warrant as related to relative rank and precedence should be made applicable to veterinary surgeons of H.M.'s Indian forces. At that time it was not considered expedient to alter the existing regulations affecting the pay and allowances, or the conditions of invaliding and retirement of this class of officers.

Consequent on the recent extension to medical officers of the benefits of the rates of pay and allowances fixed by the Royal Warrant of Oct. 1, 1858, for the medical officers of the army, I have had under my consideration in Council the subject of the allowances drawn in India by veterinary surgeons of the British and Indian Forces respectively.

Your letter dated Dec. 21 last, No. 470, also draws my attention to the present scale of pay to veterinary surgeons in India, which is stated to be relatively much less than that granted in England and the Colonies.

It appears to me that the time has now arrived at which other provisions of the Royal Warrant of July 1, 1859, may be introduced into India, in addition to those specified in my letter of Nov. 24, 1859, above referred to.

It has been accordingly resolved that the rate of pay laid down in the Royal Warrant, with the Indian allowances of the relative rank of the officer, shall, for the future, be adopted as the scale of pay for veterinary surgeons of the British and Indian forces. From the date of the commencement of these allowances, all extra allowance of whatever description will cease.

Vety. surgs. compelled to leave the service on account of ill-health, and entitled to half-pay pensions under present regulations, will be allowed the Indian rates of half-pay of their relative rank, as laid down in the Royal Warrant of July 1, 1859.

Vety. surgs. of the Indian medical service will be allowed to retire on the following scale of pension, on completion of the required periods of service, viz. :—

After 20 years...	£200 a-year
30 " " " "	300 "

The amalgamation of the vety. surgs. of the British and Indian forces being contemplated, no further alteration in regard to the position on retirement of the vety. surgs. of the latter forces appears to me to be at present called for.

The other advantages held out by the Royal Warrant to vety. surgs. and their families are to be adopted and declared applicable to India, as far as the differences of the service will admit.

Such vety. surgs. of the local forces as have expressed their desire to volunteer for general service should be allowed to re-consider their decision on your receipt of this despatch.

The present rules on the subject of the relative rank of field officers and other officers of the regular army and volunteer corps, are that the volunteer officers rank with officers of the regular army as jun. of their respective grades :—

General Order No. 850.

Horse Guards, S.W., Aug. 16, 1864.

H.R.H. the Field Marshal comd'g. in chief has received H.M.'s commands to promulgate to the army the following regulation, which has been decided on in concurrence with the Sec. of State for War, viz. :—

The order, as contained in H.M.'s book of regulations, for the relative rank of the officers of the army and royal marines, with those of the militia, yeomanry and volunteers, shall be held applicable also to officers of colonial militia, yeomanry and volunteer corps which have been, or may hereafter be, raised by the legislature of the colonies, with the sanction of H.M. the Queen during the period of their embodiment and service with H.M.'s regular forces.

ASSISTANT SURGEONS FOR THE INDIAN SERVICE.

No. 507.—With reference to G.G.O., No. 1,060, dated Dec. 23, 1864, the following paragraphs of a military letter from the Right Hon. the Secy. of State for India, No. 127, dated 15th ult., are published for general information :—

Para. 1. In anticipation of the receipt of the report called for from your Govt., military despatch to India, No. 340, Nov. 7, 1864, paras. 19 to 21, as to the future establishment of medical officers required for the separate and local Indian service, I have to acquaint you that measures have been taken for providing asst. surgs. for the Indian service.

2. Shortly after my despatch of Nov. 7, 1864, had been forwarded to you, notices were inserted in the public papers that an examination for thirty appointments to H.M.'s Indian medical service would be held in Feb., 1865.

3. The examination was held at Chelsea Hospital, under the direction of the army medical dept.

4. Twenty-seven candidates have been returned as successful, and with the exceptions hereafter named, they have joined the army medical school at Netley, for the purpose of undergoing a course of instruction in hygiene, military medicine, &c.

5. The following arrangements have been made with regard to medical officers who may be appointed to the Indian service :—

1. Passage allowance to India will be given on appointment.

2. Pay at War-office rates—i.e., 10s. a day—will be allowed from date of passing final examination at Netley.

3. Indian allowances and time of service for pension will reckon from date of arrival in India. The period of residence at the Army Medical School will reckon as service for the full pay pension only.

6. The following gentlemen being students at the Army Medical School, Netley, were permitted, with the sanction of the Secy. of State for War, to compete at the examination :—

Messrs. H. Cook, J. Cleghorn, R. Harvey, J. Bennett, J. T. Welsh, and A. Barrie.

7. As they have already undergone the course of instruction at the Army Medical School, they have not been required to proceed there with the other candidates on March 31, but have received instructions to proceed to India within two months from that date.

8. They have been appd. as asst. surgs. from March 31, 1865, and allotted as follows :—

J. Cleghorn, M.D., [R. Harvey, M.B., J. Bennett, M.D.

Bombay.

H. Cook, M.D., J. T. Welsh, M.D., A. Barrie, M.D. Their relative position on the list of asst. surgs. with that of the others who passed at the same examination, and are now at Netley, will be communicated to you hereafter.

9. In order that these six asst. surgs. may not obtain an undue advantage over the other candidates now at Netley, by being allowed to proceed to India before them, they will not be allowed to reckon the period they have already passed at the Army Medical School as service for full pay pension. They will, however, draw Indian allowances, and reckon service for pension from the date of their arrival in India.

Head Quarters, Simla, April 28.—The accompanying memorandum is published to the army, by order of H.E. the C. in C., who desires, at the same time, to express his hearty satisfaction at receiving from General Sir Hugh Rose this gratifying testimony to the valuable services of the officers of the staff at head quarters, during the period of Sir Hugh Rose's command in India.

MEMORANDUM.

By entire inadvertence in Sir Hugh Rose's farewell general order, his thanks to the head quarters staff were omitted, a circumstance which H.E. regrets extremely, as, perhaps, never has a C. in C. been more indebted to a staff for unwearied zeal and able assistance; never has an officer holding the chief command more consulted a staff on matters of their competency, and with results so satisfactory to the service and himself, than Sir Hugh Rose.

Since H.E. has held the chief command in India, various matters of great military importance, so well known as not necessary to be enumerated, have been transacted by Sir Hugh Rose; and the great importance of these matters naturally induces him to feel the more sincerely indebted to the staff, who assisted him with such unvaried ability, and with such never-failing good will.

In requesting the adjutant general, Colonel Haythorne, to communicate these sentiments to the head quarters staff, H.E. cannot forget that he is the officer who has, for the greater length of time, and the more constantly, been in the position to give him that assistance for which he now expresses his most sincere and unfeigned acknowledgments.

E. HAYTHORNE, Col., Adj. gen.

REMOVAL OF THE ADJUTANT OF A REGIMENT.

Adj. Genl's Office, Poona, May 18.—No. 488.—The commander of the forces has observed that a practice obtains in many regts. of the native army of removing the adjt. from his appointment, and placing him in command of a wing which happens to become vacant.

This system is prejudicial to the discipline of a regt., as the important duties of adjt. cannot, with advantage, be constantly transferred from one officer to another.

It is, therefore, to be considered a rule that the adjt. of a regt. shall not be removed from his appointment on any account without orders from army head quarters.

There will be no objection to an adjt. being placed in temp. charge of a wing, but this duty must be performed in addition to his own.

First Charge.—For having, at Camp Deesa, on or about Nov. 18, 1864, when under arrest at large, broken it by leaving the cantonment of Deesa without permission.

Second Charge.—For having, at the same place and time as mentioned in the first charge, deserted from the head quarters of H.M.'s 56th regt. foot, and not returning until brought back a prisoner on or about Jan. 25, 1865.

The above being in breach of the Articles of War. Finding.—The Court, from the evidence before it, finds the prisoner, Ensign A. A. L. F. Levert, 56th regt.—

Guilty of the first charge.

With respect to the second charge, Not Guilty of desertion, of which the Court acquits him, but Guilty of absence without leave from Nov. 19, 1864, to Jan. 25, 1865.

The Court having found the prisoner Guilty as above specified, sentences him, Ensign A. A. L. F. Levert, H.M.'s 56th regt. foot, to be cashiered.

RECOMMENDATION TO MERCY.

The Court having performed its duty in awarding the only sentence authorised by the Articles of War, respectfully beg to recommend the prisoner to the merciful consideration of the confirming authority, on the grounds of his youth and inexperience.

Revised Finding.—The Court having considered the remarks in the Acting Judge Advocate general's letter above referred to, together with the evidence in the case, now finds the prisoner, Ensign A. A. L. F. Levert, H.M.'s 56th regt.—

Guilty of the first charge.

Guilty of the second charge.

Revised Sentence.—The Court having found the prisoner Guilty as above specified, sentences him, Ensign A. A. L. F. Levert, H.M.'s 56th regt. foot, to be cashiered.

APPROVED AND CONFIRMED.

(Signed) W. R. MANSFIELD, Gen., C. in C. in India.

Head Quarters, Simla, April 21, 1865.

RECOMMENDATION TO MERCY.

The Court having revised the finding agreeably to the suggestions contained in the letter of the Acting Judge Advocate general of the army, still trust that their recommendation to mercy may meet with approval.

The Court having done their duty, I hereby remit the sentence, because I believe that Ensign Levert may not have been conscious that he was committing the crime of desertion when he absented himself without leave, he having, as he imagined, guarded himself by sending the resignation of his commission to his commanding officer.

RAILWAY PROGRESS IN THE PUNJAB.

ANOTHER section of one of those great works for which the public—and may we not say the civilised world?—are so much indebted to Mr. W. P. Andrew—has just been brought into active operation. The Lahore and Mooltan section of the Punjab Railway has been opened for public traffic. The entire distance of two hundred and twenty-one miles is now traversed daily in twelve hours, so that the traveller may take his chota hazree either at Umritsur or Lahore, at six in the morning, breakfast pleasantly en route, and arrive at Mooltan, the third city in importance in the country of the Five Rivers, in ample time for the usual dinner hour, proceeding thence, if it so pleases him, by the Indus Flotilla (in communication with the Punjab line) to Kotree, near Hyderabad, whence the Scinde Railway will carry him on to Kurrachee, the great port of the North-West. It may be some time, as a local writer suggests, before the benefits of this great accommodation are fully appreciated; for the utility of the line is not to be measured merely by the convenience afforded to our travelling countrymen, and the natives are always long in learning the advantages of changes of this kind. Not, however, that there has as yet been any sign of ignorance on the subject, for we are told that the concourse of Cabuliese and border people who came from their homes to avail themselves of the new route, was very large, and far beyond all expectation; and it may be anticipated that these classes will come in increased numbers to swell the traffic of the line.

That so much should have been done in so short a time, considering the many difficulties which have attended the undertaking, is the best possible assurance of the energy with which the operations of the company have been conducted. But our newest provinces are proverbially the most progressive; and at some not very distant day we shall certainly see not only the completion of railway communication to Delhi (and thence, of course, to Calcutta) on the one hand, but on the other a direct line through Scinde, so that the delay of the river route may be altogether avoided. That indeed will be a great day for the Punjab, which, between Europe and Central Asia, will command the commerce of a large portion of the civilised world. In the meantime the work which has been accomplished is not only a welcome social benefit, but a great advantage to trade, and a protection to the frontier of immense political importance.

THE OFFICIAL VIEW OF THE FATAL MARCH.

WE could do no more than glance, in our last number, at the conclusions arrived at by the Bombay authorities concerning the "Fatal march from Mhow." During the unusually long interval which has elapsed between our publications, the topic has been much discussed in this country, and the general opinion, as reflected in the press, is that Major-general Green, the officer commanding at the station, has been unjustly censured for his share in the proceeding.

The facts of the case, though occupying a considerable space in official documents, may be reduced to very small compass. The order from home for the reduction of the B Battery 21st Brigade was received in Bombay about the 17th or 18th of February, when Sir William Mansfield was leaving to take up the chief command. Before his departure he made the necessary communication on the subject, and Lieut.-colonel Phayre, the Quarter-master-general, who accompanied him, also left directions with his deputy that all such details should be attended to in his absence. But no communication being received from the Adjutant-general's Office, nothing was done in his department, and he was surprised, on the 7th of April, a few days after his return, at receiving a communication from Major-general Green, asking if the detachment should be sent to Kirkee. Not having made an immediate reply, he received another telegram on the 10th reiterating the inquiry. To this he returned an answer the same day directing that orders be given for the march of the detachment to Nargaum. In the meantime, on the 4th of April, Lieut.-colonel Phayre had addressed a letter to Major-general Green concerning some deserters from the Inniskilling Dragoons, whom it was desirable to send to their regiment for trial. In reply he received a telegram, dated the 10th, concerning means of transit, and afterwards a letter, with the same date, in which the Major-general entered into further particulars, adding that he would deprecate the men being sent up at that time of year, as great heat had set in and there was cholera on the road. To this Lieut.-col. Phayre made a rejoinder that Sir Charles Van Straubenzee adopted the suggestion as to the deserters, and adding that as the same objection seemed to apply to the immediate march of the artillery, the Deputy Inspector-general of Hospitals should be consulted on the subject. The intimation, however, arrived too late, the march of the detachment having already taken place.

Lieut.-colonel Phayre, who cites these facts in the minute which he has drawn up on the subject, makes them a ground for throwing all the blame upon Major-General Green, who, he declares, did not give explicit warning of cholera until too late to save the artillery detachment, and even then only incidentally, and in reference to another subject. Sir Charles Van Straubenzee also takes the same view of the case, which is endorsed by Sir Bartle Frere, the result being a severe censure cast upon Major-general Green, who is told that it was his duty to have exercised discretion in the matter, and that he "appears to have overlooked" the general order prohibiting the removal of troops in the hot season.

To some extent there seemed a prima facie case against Major-general Green, but this would be only upon the supposition that the superior authorities required information of the peculiar source of danger. But Sir Charles Van Straubenzee as well as Lieutenant-colonel Phayre are officers of Indian experience, and the latter at least is specially acquainted with the district, and must have been aware that the route across the Nerbudda is always highly dangerous after the 1st of April, when cholera is a continued source of apprehension. Indeed, attention had been called to the fact in 1862 by Major-general Farrall, then in command at Mhow, who urgently deprecated the marching of troops at such a season on account of cholera, and was informed in reply that the part of the country referred to was not dangerous until after the rains. Only last year, too, Major-general Green himself—who cites these facts in his own justification—made a report to the same effect, and was told that "the requirements of the service must not be stopped on account of vague cholera reports." And when, shortly afterwards, reporting the death of an officer on the road from the epidemic, he represented the danger to life caused by exposure in reaching the station during the hot season, his communication remained unacknowledged. Under these circumstances, Major-general Green naturally concluded that he had sufficiently performed his duty by expressing his opinion, and more especially as he had never received any orders from headquarters in reference to the B battery, the orders being sent to the officer commanding that battery, with whom he conceived himself bound to act in concert. That the higher authorities were unaware of the danger could scarcely be supposed; nor does the Major-general's reminder in the case of the deserters invalidate his claim to this assumption. The march of the detachment—delayed as it had been—he might well have supposed imperative, while the despatch of the deserters could scarcely be considered in that light; or indeed it may have been that the possibility of the authorities having forgotten the danger was not suggested to him until the proposal to incur it for the second time. With regard to his having overlooked the general order against removing troops at the season—issued so recently as 1860—it is preposterous to presume that Major-general Green was required to remind his superiors that they were taking illegal action. Is it to be supposed that the Commander-in-chief and the Quartermaster-general were not bound to know of such an order, and that it is the business of a general commanding a division to warn them that they are infringing it?

The fault most certainly lies elsewhere than at Mhow, for if Major-general Green might have assumed more discretion with advantage, he was not called upon to do so by official rule, and an officer cannot fairly be blamed for merely doing his duty. The disaster was brought about, in the first place, by the absence of Lieutenant-colonel Phayre, through which, owing to the inaction of the Adjutant-general's Department, the march was delayed. But for the despatch of the detachment at a dangerous time Lieutenant-colonel Phayre and Sir Charles Van Straubenzee are both responsible, for they should not have needed the warning which Major-general Green must be considered justified in having withheld. In a less direct manner, too, Sir William Mansfield is to blame, for had Major-general Green and his predecessor not met with such sharp rebukes for their previous suggestions, it is probable that the march would not have been made.

The Bombay authorities—it is due to them to record the fact—have manifested the greatest sympathy with the sufferers by this unhappy series of mistakes, and have recommended to special notice the services of those who, by their devoted conduct, mitigated the horrors of the crisis. Of these the most prominent are Lieutenant Stevenson, commanding the detachment, and Captain Scott, of the Nimar Police, who happened to be travelling on the road, and volunteered his services.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE INDIAN ARMY.—SECOND SERIES. No. III.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Although the Court of Directors were by law restricted from exercising independent power in respect to the direct government of India, they, from the experience of the great majority of that body in the East, possessed very considerable influence in the Board of Control. Educated as they had been in a school remote from the political factions of Parliament at home, they entered on their English career pretty free from party. The Indian governors who were appointed, too, very soon found this to be the case, and the urgencies of the public service, limited as its numbers were, compelled the former to make use of the materials at hand, and to select the best agents they could find for their purpose, restricted in some measure by certain rules of seniority which had been the fundamental principle of the Company's Service, both at home and abroad. So far so good. But in cases of peace and war the Court of Directors, as a body, had no voice, the secret committee, which has been before described, being in all respects a mere form guided by the representative of the party in power in England. Unfortunately, the so-called Liberals were in office in 1839, when it was determined to carry on war in Afghanistan without sufficiently considering all the circumstances connected with such a resolution. The result of that notable project is still fresh in the memory of all, and the fatal consequences on the army at Cabul, when out of 17,000 individuals, but one, an assistant-surgeon, reached the frontier post of Jelahabad to tell the sad tale. At the very outset of that campaign the Duke of Wellington, the leader of the Conservative party, at once condemned the whole project, and even when he heard of the first successes said—"It is true you have carried your army into Afghanistan, but how are you to bring it away?" The disaster of the Cabul army tended more than any other circumstance to change the feeling of the Bengal Sepoys towards the British Government. Till then they had never experienced any such defeat; they saw for the first time their European comrades, whom they had hitherto deemed indomitable, succumbing to the effects of the winter climate, and falling helplessly before the swords of an enemy which, during the previous campaign, had offered but a feeble resistance. The Cabul calamity dissipated the prestige of the European soldiery. The survivors among the natives, who eventually forced their way back, were loud in complaint against the Government for requiring Hindoos to cross the waters of the Attock or boundary of India, and they included in these feelings blame to their European officers. The latter even have not failed to ascribe the subsequent discontent to the same excuse—that of carrying their men so far away from their homes. But this must be considered an idle and frivolous pretence, when it is remembered that from the first formation of the Bengal Army it had frequently fought in the Carnatic along with Madras troops, on the western side of India with the Bombay army, and had, like them, occasionally embarked for foreign service, whether in Egypt, in Burmah, in the Indian Archipelago, or in remote China. As I have before stated, the whole system of discipline in the Bengal Native Army was lax in time of peace, though there never were braver nor higher minded soldiers in time of war. The spirit which sustained them on other occasions was evinced in the two campaigns against the Sikhs in 1845 and 1849, but as the latter have now taken the place of the former Bengal Army in our service, it may not be out of place briefly to refer to the causes which led to the mutiny, as also to the character of the new Bengal Army which has succeeded to the old.

The history of the administration of Lord Dalhousie and of Lord Canning in India, by the Duke of Argyll, has entered fully into the question of the Bengal mutiny. Within the last year a second work on the same subject has appeared, denominated the "Sepoy War," of which the first of three volumes only has yet come out, by Mr. John Kaye, the political secretary of the India Office. From these two works, the materials of which are derived from similar sources, we have before us a series of facts as to the origin and progress of that calamitous event.

The ascendancy which the Brahminical caste exercised over the Hindoo portion of the army is clearly established, and from the circumstance of the disaffection commencing at Calcutta and its vicinity, and continuing from January, 1857, till May, without its having broken out elsewhere, shows first, that it was no previously-conceived sepoy plot, and the committee of officers which sat in Calcutta to ascertain how far it might be so considered, declared that the Mahomedans and Sikhs in the regiments which had been implicated in disaffection might be trusted, but not the Hindoos. The Edinburgh Reviewer remarks, "It is certain that the panic began not in Oude, not in Delhi, but in the stations close to Calcutta itself," from whence it spread. General Hearsey, the general officer commanding the Presidency division, wrote as early as the 8th February:—"I, moreover, consider it necessary to add my conviction that the sepoys are tampered with by designing villains when on duty in Fort William and in Calcutta." "Thus we find (says the reviewer) allusion made to a Brahmin agency or religious Hindoo party called the Dhurma Sobha (ad conservandum fidei), which, after the manner of its kind in other countries, had been angered by tolerance which were to it intolerable." "But it does not follow that some political agencies may not have been at work to aggravate and to use the superstition of the sepoy." It is natural that the reviewer being connected with the party which originated and carried out the policy of annexation, that he should say all that he could to screen and justify that system, and to ascribe the disaffection to a simple panic on the use of greased cartridges. But Lord Canning himself "wrote to the Indian Minister at home that he had not a doubt that the rebellion had been fomented by Brahmins on religious pretences, and by others for political motives,"—Kaye, p. 617. Now, as some parties have endeavoured to defend the discontent of the sepoys, and to justify their apprehension of losing caste by using greased cartridges, it is well known that they, in common with the sepoys at Madras, had been using greased cartridges for rifles for many years. The Madras Rifle Corps was formed out of picked men from the native army as early as 1815, and were highly distinguished in the battle of Mehidpoor in 1817. Rifles were issued in Bengal in 1847, when a formula for making up the cartridges was issued by Lord Hardinge in a letter from the Military Secretary, dated April 6th in that year, wherein it was directed that the cartridges should be greased with "linseed oil and bees-wax," in certain proportions, and no trace of a subsequent order is found; so far from it, the Inspector-general of Ordnance, during the administration of Lord Dalhousie and Lord Canning, assured Mr. Kaye (the author of the "Sepoy War") that this composition continued in use up to 1857. So that what was asserted afterwards by persons found instigating rebellion in Mysore (while sedition was brewing elsewhere) was literally true, namely, that the greased cartridges were merely used as a pretext. If the reviewer has endeavoured, as far as he could, to confine the insurrection to a senseless panic, Mr. Kaye, who possessed more ample materials than what were "laid before Parliament relative to the Mutinies," has entered fully into the subject with the boldness and honesty of a faithful historian. He describes the irritation throughout India in respect of the annexation policy—a policy deliberately adopted by the Cabinet in England before Lord Dalhousie went to India—a policy which created not only discontent among the native States, but a panic more serious and dangerous even than the mutiny itself. The gross injustice and mischievous consequences of that system have been ably commented on and exposed by the author of "Thoughts on the Policy of the Crown towards India," Mr. J. M. Ludlow, resulting from considerations of the Queen's proclamation promulgated in November, 1858. He has handled the question of Hindoo adoption with the skill of a thorough lawyer, his opinions having been subsequently confirmed in the admirable despatch of Lord Canning, dated April 30, 1860.

The difficulty which this subject presents has arisen from not consulting the highest Hindoo law authorities, nor referring to precedents among native princes, but from adopting opinions of European functionaries and a Government at home and abroad desirous of taking advantage of every favourable opportunity of acquiring fresh territory, and of adding to the finances of the British Government in India. In this way there have been great differences of opinion on the subject of the right of adoption, and even Sir George Clerk, the staunch defender of native rights, and of strict justice and good faith, observes that "the Hindoo law, which is comprehensive regarding rights to private property, does not provide distinctly for chiefships." But where no such distinction prevails in the law, is it fair for those interested in the case to make a distinction to suit their own purposes? Lord Canning states "that he can find no single instance in which adoption by a Sovereign prince has been invalidated by a refusal of assent from the paramount Power," and yet the Great Mogul was for centuries the paramount Power in India, which had fallen to the Mahomedan arms, and exercised direct sway over a larger extent of country than we ourselves at this moment possess; and, with the bigotry and propensity to convert the Hindoo population, it is unlikely the Mussulmans would have foregone any feasible opportunity of annexation for which they had the smallest pretext. This fact of itself speaks volumes. It ought never to have been overlooked, nor will the fatal consequences of disregarding it be ever forgotten. J. B.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The Anglo-Indian army, in the year 1858, suffered extreme hardships under a blazing torrid sun in the deserts of Central India. A young friend of mine served under General Roberts' command, and he informs me that no remuneration or prize money has been yet awarded by the Crown either to the officers or soldiers. This is no encouragement to the poor troops who fight in the burning forests of Afghanistan, and appears inequitable to

AN OLD SOLDIER.

BOOKS.

India under Dalhousie and Canning. By the Duke of Argyll. From the Edinburgh Review of January and April, 1863. Longman and Co.

A Vindication of the Marquis of Dalhousie's Indian Administration. By Sir Charles Jackson. Smith, Elder, and Co.

The Duke of Argyll has here avowed the authorship of two articles in the Edinburgh which he was already known to have written. They are tolerably familiar to those interested in their subjects; but the republication is opportune now that, as his grace remarks in his preface, "the violent reactions of feeling and opinion which arose out of the Great Indian Mutiny are beginning to subside." It is principally in reference to the acts of Lord Dalhousie, however, that the author appears desirous to influence the public, in whose mind he conceives much misconception to exist. Sir Charles Jackson takes similar ground, and has breasted the current of opinion with much vigour and ability. His work being new to our readers, will probably call for more particular examination in these columns.

The Domestic Life, Character, and Customs of the Natives of India. By James Kerr, M.A., late Principal of the Hindoo College, Calcutta. W. H. Allen, and Co.

"It is seldom," says the author in his preface, "that Europeans in India have opportunities of becoming intimately acquainted with the natives of the country. There is a great gulf between us and them." Mr. Kerr was more fortunate; and of the facilities afforded him he has made good use. The opinions which he expresses are for the most part individual opinions, founded upon his own observation; but he has naturally gone to acknowledged authorities for matters of fact, and on all disputed points he has, he tells us, given due weight to their decisions. The result is a very valuable work, and one which may be read with almost equal advantage by those who have and those who have not sojourned among the people described. For the former have frequently been too busy to "learn" the country in which they have been making their money, —though they are expected to know all about it when they come home—even if they have nothing to unlearn in the way of misimpressions and prejudices; while the latter have the advantage of making pleasant acquaintance with a subject upon which the majority of our countrymen seem to have almost concentrated their ignorance. We can guarantee the pleasure by the way; for Mr. Kerr writes in no pedantic vein, but imparts what he knows and what he thinks in a manner which need not frighten the most fastidious reader. So pleasant are his pages, indeed, that that difficult person may go from one end of the book to the other without an idea that he is doing himself the slightest good—and if he objects to being instructed in spite of himself, we have no pity to offer him.

Mr. Kerr's most remarkable chapters are those upon caste. As a general rule the writers upon this subject take their materials one from another; and certain established formulas are handed down from time to time without reference to the changes which they have undergone in connection with a people who are by no means so conservative and stationary as it is customary to call them. How far the author differs from most authorities on the subject may be judged by the fact that he goes to work boldly to dispute the fundamental points as generally received—

1st. That the Hindoos are still divided into four great classes or castes.

2nd. That the Brahmins and other Hindoos scrupulously abstain from eating animal food.

3rd. That among the Hindoos all professions are strictly hereditary.

4th. That all Brahmins are priests, and none but priests are Brahmins.

5th. That to kill or have anything to do with killing a Brahmin is a crime of the deepest dye.

6th. That loss of caste involves inconceivable misery and suffering, and that the evil is beyond redemption.

We need not enter into the writer's statements as to the great modification which all of these principles have undergone. But any man who has lived in India, and observed native customs with any sort of care, knows that he is in the right; and an examination of the results arrived at will be a very useful exercise both for the old and the new student.

Upon these and general grounds the work is worthy of cordial recommendation.

Regulations Applicable to the European Officer in India. Part II. Commands, &c. By George E. Cochrane, Military Secretary, India-office. By Authority. Harrison and Sons, W. H. Allen and Co.

The second part of this useful—and we may almost say indispensable—guide, is in every way worthy of the first, the information being comprehensive and minute, the arrangement systematic and easy of reference. With the complete index at his command, it will be strange indeed if the officer does not find out whatever he wants to know within the limits of the subject matter here contained.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—JUNE 20.

SINGAPORE AND THE MALACCA SETTLEMENTS.

The Earl of ALBEMARLE asked the President of the Council what progress had been made for the transfer of Singapore and the other settlements in the Straits of Malacca from the Indian to the Colonial department.

Earl GRANVILLE said the representatives of the three islands interested in this question had held several meetings and agreed upon the course to be adopted, but there was some difficulty in the practical details, which would require the authority of Parliament to remove, and he could not give an assurance that a Bill would be brought in this Session to effect this purpose.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JUNE 20.

THE DHAR PRIZE-MONEY.

Mr. H. LEWIS asked when the second issue of the Dhar prize money would take place; what was the cause of the delay of such issue, and what was the total amount now available for distribution.

Sir C. WOOD was understood to say that no information on the subject had arrived from India.

THE LAND TENURE IN OUDE.

Lord STANLEY inquired whether the right hon. gentleman (Sir C. Wood) had received any report, official or otherwise, concerning the inquiry into the land tenure in Oude.

Sir C. WOOD said he was not in possession of any official report, but he had received information as to what was going on. The result was substantially to this effect: that Mr. Davis had received all the official reports of the commissioners of inquiry with the exception of one or two, and the general tendency of those reports in the great majority of cases was that although it was quite true that by common custom the occupier had not been disturbed by the landlords, whether talookdars or zemindars, so long as the ordinary rent was paid, yet in very few cases had they been able to establish anything like a legal right. In fact, they had manifested the greatest indifference on the subject. The result on the whole was to confirm the parties in the possession of their estates.

LAHORE BISHOPRIC BILL.

In reply to a question by Mr. H. SEYMOUR, Sir C. WOOD said it was not his intention to proceed with the second reading of the Bill, and he, therefore, moved that the order be discharged.

Mr. H. SEYMOUR said that it was his intention to take the sense of the House on the policy of extending the English Church Establishment in India at the expense of her Majesty's subjects and other religious denominations.

THE INDIAN MAILS.

In Committee of Supply, upon the vote of £841,867 for the Post-office and packet service,

Mr. WHITE asked whether it had been decided that there should be a weekly mail despatched to India on Friday, an arrangement which would be of great advantage to persons engaged in the East India and China trades.

Mr. CRUM-EWING expressed his opinion that there would be great convenience to the trade of the north, and a saving of time if the mails were despatched from Falmouth.

Colonel SYKES drew attention to an increase in the vote, and suggested a mode of getting rid of this extra charge. The Government had on hand a proposition for building large transport vessels of the Himalaya class, to ply between here and Alexandria, and between Suez and Bombay and Calcutta. There were 19,000 troops in transitu between this country and India every year, and these large vessels could only be employed in conveying them for six months in the year. He suggested that they should be employed during the remainder of the time in carrying the mails, and there would be such a number of vessels as to admit of weekly communication. He wished for some explanation of the increase of charge, and also of a similar increase in reference to the West Indies.

Mr. Alderman ROSE said that several interviews had been had with the Postmaster-General in reference to the mail boats working from Falmouth or Plymouth instead of from Southampton, and it had been demonstrated that though there might at times be a saving of a few hours by the proposed change, there would as a rule be a loss of time. He could assure the committee that the communication between Southampton and the north was quite as rapid as between Falmouth and the north.

Mr. PEEL said that, referring to what the hon. gentleman the member for London said on a previous occasion when the committee was counted out, with reference to a memorial that had been presented from the commercial community of London, praying that the departure of the mails for India might be on a fixed day of the week, instead of as now on a fixed day in the month, owing to the inconvenience that was experienced with regard to the latter course being adopted, that the Postmaster-General was as sensible of its value as the hon. members for London and Brighton could be. But it was a question of expense, and it should be borne in mind that the Mail service of India did not stand alone, but it was connected with China and Australia, and that, therefore, any alteration in one branch of the service necessitated a change in the others. Taking into account the large amount that would be received by an increase of the postage rates, it was still thought not desirable to throw away so large a sum as would be necessarily required to make up the difference in the expense by increasing it one-twelfth upon the general public—(hear). The Postmaster-General had more than once recommended that the postage rate between this country and India should be raised from 6d. to 1s., and two or three years ago, when it was proposed to give a second fortnightly mail to Hong Kong, and increase the postage of letters to China from 6d. to 1s., the parties who were applied to readily and cheerfully acceded to the proposition—(hear, hear)—and he was not aware that the alteration had given rise to a single complaint. His hon. friend the member for the City of London referred not only to the charge of 16d. on letters to India by way of Southampton, but he also referred to the additional 4d. by way of Marseilles, which was charged by the French Government on letters going via Marseilles to India. He quite concurred in the remarks made on a former occasion by the hon. and learned gentleman the member for the Tower Hamlets as to that high rate of charge, and said it was the opinion of the Post-office authorities that the Government of France would be amply remunerated for carrying our mails through France if they reduced their present charge by one-fourth. Now with regard to fixed days weekly for the departure of mails to India he thought it ought not to be confined to Bombay, but to go alternately to Bombay and Calcutta, the railway facilities from the latter place being now very great. The hon. and learned gentleman the member for Aberdeen had referred to the communication between this country and Alexandria, and between Suez and Bombay and Calcutta, and he also referred to some transport vessels that were being built for that purpose by the Indian Government. At present he believed there were only two running this side of Egypt and three on the other side. He did not know the number of transports that would be necessary for that service, but as the whole of the ships would not be finished until the 1st of October, 1867, there would be ample time to discuss that question on a future occasion. With regard to the West India packets receiving their mails at Falmouth instead of Southampton, he thought it would not be easy to make the transfer, considering the immense docks the company had established at the latter place; but, on the other hand, he thought that if a saving of time could be effected by landing and receiving the mails at Falmouth, instead of at Southampton, and proper arrangements could be made with the railway companies, the Post-office authorities would have no hesitation in adopting it. He, however, doubted that there would be such a saving in the landing of the mails at Falmouth as had been stated by the hon. member. There was a reduction of £15,000 in the Peninsular and Oriental contract, because it had been arranged that they should charge the military and civil servants of India the full passage rates to and from India, instead of the reduced rate of two-thirds of the regular passage rates as agreed under the old contract. The net loss last year was £100,360, but that had this year been reduced to £88,000, one-half of which would fall upon the Indian Government. After some conversation, Mr. Peel added that the change would not be carried out without the concurrence of the Indian Government, and the India House had not given their concurrence.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JUNE 23.

THE INDIAN MUTINY MEDAL.

Mr. STANILAND called attention to the claims of the Satpoora field force, and of the Goa frontier field force (portions of the Indian army), to the Indian Mutiny Medal, the Government of India having rejected their claims. The warrant sent out by the Crown at the close of the general mutiny declared that the medal would be open to be conferred on all who had been engaged against the rebels. The medals were actually struck and sent out to India, but unfortunately the commander-in-chief was not consulted, and while the Madras portion of the force had received the medal, it had been refused to the contingent to which his motion referred.

Mr. T. G. BARING begged to state, on the part of his right hon. friend (Sir C. Wood) that this case was of such a kind that the Government of India must be left to deal with it. The regulation on this subject was that for any military force to become entitled to the distinction of the medal, it must have been engaged in actual conflict in the field. A letter had been addressed to the commander-in-chief on the subject, and he had stated, in reply, that there was no rule of the service which would authorise the granting of the Indian mutiny medal to the Satpoora field force, and in that opinion the Government of India concurred. He hoped the hon. gentleman would not proceed in the matter, in which the authorities on the spot were best fitted to decide.

THE LUCKNOW PRIZE MONEY.

Sir M. FARQUHAR asked the Secretary of State for India when the second payment of the Lacknow prize money, already ordered to be distributed in India, was to be made in this country, and when a decision was likely to be come to with reference to the Kirwee prize money.

Sir C. WOOD regretted to say that he was compelled to give the same answer to the question as that which he had given with respect to the Dhar prize money. In March last he had written to India for information on the subject, but no answer had yet been received. With respect to the Kirwee prize money, that was not under his control, but that of the Treasury.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JUNE 29.

THE INDIAN MEDICAL WARRANT.

Mr. BAZLEY asked the Secretary of State for India whether it was true or not, as stated in the United Service Gazette and Home News that the Indian medical warrant had been cancelled; if such was the case, what measures were to be taken as regarded the pay and organisation of the medical department, and when would those measures be reported to the House; and why, pending such changes, medical officers in India had not at least received the pay of their relative rank.

Sir C. WOOD said that last year he introduced a Bill for the purpose of enabling assistant surgeons who had entered the Queen's general service by competition, to form a medical staff corps. The House rejected that Bill on the third reading, and he was consequently under the necessity of maintaining a separate medical establishment in India for the purpose to which the question of the hon. member referred. The Government of India had pointed out the great disadvantage and additional expense which was caused by the maintenance of that double establishment; but no steps had been taken in consequence of that representation. The statement implied in the question of the hon. member was entirely incorrect. The warrant had not been cancelled. It had given great satisfaction to the medical staff as regarded pay and advantages.

BRITISH INDIA AND COLONIAL TRUST AND AGENCY CORPORATION (LIMITED).

Mr. CRAWFORD asked the President of the Board of Trade whether it was true that a charter of incorporation had been granted by the Crown to the British India and Colonial Trust and Agency Corporation (Limited).

Mr. M. GIBSON said the Crown had not been advised to grant a charter, and no charter had been granted. There would be no objection to lay the correspondence on the table when it was concluded.

GRIEVANCES OF INDIAN OFFICERS.

Colonel SYKES asked the Secretary of State for India whether the Royal Commission to inquire into the grievances of Indian officers had been appointed; the names of the Commissioners; when the Commission was likely to commence its labours; and whether the 717 petitions presented to the House of Commons could be brought to the consideration of the Commission.

Sir C. WOOD said he had been very anxious that a Commission should be appointed much sooner, but he had experienced the greatest difficulty in finding qualified persons to conduct the inquiry. He wished his noble friend opposite (Lord Hotham) would have consented to act, but he felt an over-scrupulous delicacy on the subject in consequence of a recent vote which he had given. It was not until last week that he was able to find any one to act, and the Commission sat for the first time last Monday for the purpose of appointing their secretary.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

In committee of the whole House Sir C. WOOD made his annual exposition of the financial affairs of India. After tracing the progress of revenue and expenditure during the last three years, and noting the differences between the actual and ordinary estimates, he observed that the gradual and steady improvement in the income clearly proved the advance of general prosperity from one end of the country to the other. On the other hand, the charge had gone on increasing, especially for the army, owing to the increased price of provisions, the half batta, the Bhootan war, and the augmented pay to medical officers. There had also been a large increased outlay for public works, law and justice, education and superannuations. Now, although a considerable portion of the increase could not be prevented, and seemed to be justified by the extraordinary and satisfactory increase in the revenue year after year, nevertheless he urged that it was absolutely necessary that the strictest economy should be enforced; for upon that depended the safety of the finances of India. Referring to the important subject of the encouragement given to public works, Sir Charles stated that he believed the people of India were ready to expend any amount of money in that direction; and he himself was prepared to borrow money for the purpose whenever they supplied him with any well-digested plan for the execution of really necessary and useful works, but he certainly would not go hand over head, and raise loans for every project that was started. During the last six years there had been an enormous expenditure on this account; namely, out of public funds, £30,000,000, and from local funds £4,500,000; whilst there had been expended for railways £38,500,000, making a total for the six years of £73,000,000. Taking the last two years only, the outlay for the same object was from public funds upwards of £11,000,000, and from local funds upwards of £2,000,000; together with £13,200,000, and that exclusive of the railroads constructed. With regard to the cultivation of cotton in India, the increased price and the measures adopted to stimulate this branch of industry had been attended with great success; and he was informed that capitalists at Bombay were introducing at the various railway stations establishments and machinery for cleaning, pressing, and packing cotton, and to a certain extent weaving a class of goods that would not compete with English manufactures, but displace the wasteful process of hand-loom weaving, and so divert the persons so employed to useful agricultural pursuits and the culture of the cotton plant. The right hon. gentleman also adverted to the questions lately in dispute with the talookdars of Oude, and stated that the rights of this class of proprietors had been established; that a very good feeling existed between them and the ryots, and that there had been no necessity for appealing to a judicial decision. After stating the present position of the Bhootanese difficulty the right hon. gentleman moved the following resolutions:—

1. "That the total net revenues of the territories and departments under the immediate control of the Government of India for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £3,956,776 sterling, and the charges thereof for the same period, other than military charges, amounted to £3,208,118 sterling."

2. "That the total net revenues of the Bengal Presidency for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £11,662,738 sterling, and the charges thereof for the same period, other than military charges, amounted to £2,513,263 sterling."

3. "That the total net revenues of the North-Western provinces, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £1,847,051 sterling, and the charges thereof for the same period, other than military charges, amounted to £1,485,351 sterling."

4. "That the total net revenues of the Punjab, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £2,755,169 sterling, and the charges thereof for the same period, other than military charges, amounted to £1,096,999 sterling."

5. "That the total net revenues of the territories and departments under the immediate control of the Government of India, of the Bengal Presidency, of the North-Western provinces, and of the Punjab, together, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £28,221,734 sterling, and the charges thereupon, including the military charges, amounted to £15,464,862 sterling, leaving a surplus available for the general charges of India, of £7,756,872 sterling."

6. "That the total net revenues of the Madras Presidency (Fort St. George), for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £5,973,818 sterling, and the net charges thereof, for the same period, amounted to £5,167,165 sterling, leaving a surplus available in the above Presidency, for the general charges of India, of £806,148 sterling."

7. "That the total net revenues of the Bombay Presidency, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £6,441,851 sterling, and the net charges thereof, for the same period, amounted to £5,386,361 sterling, leaving a surplus available in the above Presidency, for the general charges of India, of £1,005,490 sterling."

8. "That the total net revenues of the several presidencies, for the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £35,636,898 sterling, and the charges thereof amounted to £26,018,388 sterling, leaving a surplus revenue of £9,618,510 sterling."

9. "That the interest on the registered debt of India, paid in the year ended the 30th day of April, 1864, amounted to £3,093,250 sterling, and the charges defrayed in England, on account of the Indian territory, in the same period, including interest on debt incurred in England and guaranteed interest on the capital of railway and other companies, after deducting net traffic receipts of railways, amounted to £6,446,913 sterling, leaving a surplus of Indian income for the year ended as aforesaid, after defraying the above interest and charges of £78,347 sterling."

Mr. H. SEYMOUR entered into a minute criticism of the several items in the budget, and observed that proper economy had clearly not been used, particularly with respect to the military expenditure, which required the most careful attention. He contended that no increase of taxation should be resorted to, and recommended that the military finance committee should be revived, and a rigid examination instituted into the number of European troops that were really required without too great a strain upon recruiting in the United Kingdom. Only two things were requisite to ensure the continuous and permanent prosperity of India. These were to respect the systems found existing there, without endeavouring to carry out theories of our own, and next to leave the religion of the natives entirely uninterfered with.

Mr. VANSITTART regretted that the Indian Minister had taken upon himself to reverse Sir Charles Trevelyan's arrangements, especially as they had received the approval of Sir John Lawrence and his Council. The Government had no alternative but to give up the income-tax, as when it was imposed by the late Mr. Wilson he gave a solemn assurance that it should not be continued for more than five years.

Mr. BUXTON considered that the European force maintained in India was excessive, regard being had to the fact that the artillery and the chief strong places of defence had been taken altogether out of the hands of the native troops.

Mr. BAZLEY commented generally upon the unnecessary expense incurred in the Government of India, especially the cost of collecting the revenue, which he said amounted to 25 per cent. of the entire receipts.

Colonel SYKES also urged the duty of the Government to keep faith with the people of India by abolishing the Income-tax.

Mr. KINNAIRD replied to the criticisms of Mr. SEYMOUR and other members, and lauded the policy and administration of the Government in India to the highest.

After a few words from Mr. W. EWART, the debate, which had been carried on throughout the greater portion of it in a House of half a dozen members, was brought to a close by some brief observations from Sir C. WOOD, and the resolutions were agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JUNE 30.

THE "ARMS SUIT."

Mr. HENNESSY called attention to the delay of justice in the Arms (Dyce Sombre) suit brought against the Indian Government, and a recent proceeding of the Secretary of State for India in endeavouring to overrule a decision of the Queen in Council.

In the course of the discussion which succeeded,

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL stated that the whole question in dispute was whether certain property was public or private, and that from a communication he had lately received from Sir John Lawrence he had reason to believe that the suit would shortly be brought to a conclusion.

COMMUNICATION WITH INDIA.

Mr. AYRTON suggested the expediency of appointing a select committee to inquire into the course being pursued for the establishment of a line of steam transports between England and India, and into the postal service between England and her Majesty's Eastern dominions and China via Alexandria.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—JULY 3.

TITLES TO LAND.

The Marquis of CLANRICARDE asked if the Governor-general of India had taken steps to inquire into the titles to land in other parts of India similar to those which had been adopted in the province of Oude.

Lord DUFFERIN said that Sir John Lawrence had ordered an inquiry into titles to land, but only for fiscal purposes. There had been no reversal of the policy of Lord Canning in this respect, and no steps had been taken similar to those which were adopted in Oude.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—JULY 4.

ABYSSINIAN PRISONERS.

Lord CHELMSFORD called attention to the papers relating to British captives in Abyssinia, which, he contended, absolved the late Mr. Plowden and Captain Cameron from the charges made against them by Mr. Layard, of having disobeyed his instructions and interfered in the internal affairs of the country.

Earl RUSSELL justified the proceedings of the Foreign Office, which had acted on the best advice it could obtain, and would lose no opportunity and neglect no means of procuring the release of these unfortunate persons.

INDIAN ARMY.

The Earl of LONGFORD asked whether it was intended that the Royal Commission recently appointed to inquire into certain matters connected with the Indian army should be empowered to indicate the nature of the alterations which in their opinion would be desirable and practicable in the existing system.

Lord DUFFERIN said the duty of the Commission would be to inquire to what extent the recommendation of the previous Commission could be carried out.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NEW SANSKRIT SOCIETY.—We are happy to announce that, under the patronage of the Prince of Wales, a "Sanskrit Text Society" has been founded, "for the purpose of publishing important Sanskrit works belonging to the ancient and mediæval literature of India." The vice-patron of the society is his Royal Highness the Duc de Brabant; its president is the Duc d'Aumale; its vice-presidents are the Belgian Minister, M. Van de Weyer and Lord Dufferin and Claneboye; its honorary secretary is M. Octave Delepiere, and its principal editor Prof. Th. Goldstücker. Amongst its members we find the names of the Bishop of Oxford, Sir John Acton, Bart., M.P., Col. Balfour, C.B., Sir T. E. Colebrooke, Bart., M.P., Sir Francis H. Goldsmid, Bart., M.P., Sir John Peter Grant, K.C.B., Alex. J. B. Beresford Hope, Esq., Prof. Dadashai Naoraji, Sir Thomas Erskine Perry, Baron Lionel de Rothschild, M.P., Sir John Simeon, Bart., and Wm. Stirling, Esq., M.P. The first meeting of the society was held on the 19th ult., at the residence of the Belgian Minister, M. Van de Weyer, when, after some introductory words by the Duc d'Aumale, Prof. Goldstücker expressed his views of the objects of the society and its mode of operation. After a discussion which ensued, the society elected a managing committee and a treasurer. The activity of the society, we understand, will begin forthwith, and it is to be hoped that it will prove a powerful support of Sanskrit studies in this country.

A RETURN FROM ROME.—A correspondent sends us the following account of a remarkable reconversion:—"Mr. William Gifford Palgrave, of the order of Jesuits, and son of the late Sir Francis Palgrave, has lately seceded from the Roman Catholic Church. This gentleman was formerly a student at Oriel, and took a very excellent degree at the University. Being what was thought in those days an ultra-Tractarian, he declined being ordained in the English Church, and went out to Bombay as a cadet in the Indian army, joining the 8th Native Infantry. He served for five or six years in the east, and then left the army, becoming at the same time a Roman Catholic, and entering the order of the Jesuits. He studied at Rome as well as in France, and after a long probation was ordained a priest of the Roman Catholic Church, and sent by his Order as a missionary to Syria, where he has laboured with great zeal in the cause of his creed for ten or twelve years. Many Londoners may recollect a celebrated lecture which Mr. Palgrave delivered before the Geographical Society about eighteen months ago, in which he gave an account of his travels in Arabia Petrea, a country he has traversed further than any living European. The lecture was from first to last one of the most admirable pieces of word-painting that has ever been delivered before that society. Mr. or "Father" Palgrave, as he was then called, is perhaps the best living Arabic scholar, speaking, reading, and writing that language like a native. At Beyrout and all over the Lebanon he was known as the energetic opponent of the Protestant missionaries, preaching as he did in the native churches in the Arabic language, and always getting the best of the argument. He made a public recantation of the Roman Catholic creed at Berlin a few days ago, and has accepted an appointment to proceed to Bagdad as Prussian Consul-General."—Express.

BALANCE-SHEET OF INDIA.—The estimated accounts of revenue and expenditure of the Government of India for the year ending the 30th of April, 1865, have been issued, together with the actual accounts for the previous year. In the year ending the 30th of April, 1864, the gross revenue, after deducting drawback and repayments, amounted to £44,279,467, but direct claims upon revenue, including charges of collection, cost and charges of opium and salt, allowances under treaties, and other charges, amounting in all to £8,642,569, reduced the net receipt into the Government treasuries to £35,636,898; and the expenditure of the year being £35,558,551, there was a surplus of £78,347. For the year ending the 30th of April, 1865, the gross receipts are estimated at £45,994,636, and the claims upon revenue, amounting to £9,362,700, leave a net revenue of £36,631,936, or nearly a million more than in the previous year; but the expenditure being estimated at £36,895,313, there is a deficiency of £263,377. The great item of land revenue, abkaree, &c., though still producing above £20,000,000, brought in a net income in the year 1864-65 less than in the previous year by about £160,000. The assessed taxes produced some £1,196,000, showing a decline of about £240,000. The Customs brought in £2,065,000, a falling off to the extent of about £140,000. Salt produced £530,000 more than in 1863-64, rising to £5,262,000; opium £280,000 more, advancing to £4,806,000; and stamps above £180,000 more, producing £1,815,000. The cost of collection of the land revenue increased in the year 1864-65 and exceeded 11 per cent.; of assessed taxes the cost of collection advanced to 3.26 per cent., and of Customs to 8.44 per cent. The cost of collection of salt revenue fell to 3.85 per cent., but including the cost of salt it rose to 6.431 per cent. The cost of collection of opium revenue fell to 1.92 per cent., but including the cost of opium it rose to 36 per cent. The tributes from native States rose to £742,280. The allowances and assignments under treaties, of which a list is given for 1863-64, include some large items—£120,000, the pension of the ex-King of Oude; £73,255, the personal allowance of his Highness Newab Nazim; £53,570, stipend, &c., of the Prince Azeem Jah Bahadoor. The military charges of India in the year 1864-65 are estimated at £15,607,779, an increase of a million over the charges of the previous year. Public works, taking £5,685,817, absorbed a greater expenditure than in 1863-64 by £310,000. The salaries and expenses of public departments took £1,171,220, being more by £13,700; law and justice, £2,306,890, being more by £186,000; police, £2,347,240, more by £47,000; education, science, and art, £585,780, more by £144,000. The interest on the debt declined from £5,095,819 in 1863-64 to £4,981,594. The guaranteed interest on the capital of railway and other companies took £2,490,831 in 1863-64, from which was to be deducted £821,548 net traffic receipts, leaving a deficiency of £1,669,283. In 1864-65 the guaranteed interest absorbed £2,718,952, but the net traffic receipts rose to £1,323,667, leaving a deficiency of £1,395,285.

NEW COMPANIES.—A prospectus has been issued of the Chubwa Tea Company of Assam, with a capital of £300,000, of which £200,000 is to be first subscribed, to purchase certain tea estates in Upper Assam for a sum of £168,500, payable in instalments extending over five years. A prospectus has been issued of the British India and Colonial Trust and Agency Corporation, with a capital of £100,000, in £20 shares, to be increased to £500,000 on the settlement of the Royal charter under which the company is to be constituted, and which is now before the Board of Trade. The Duke of Wellington, Lord Harris, and the Hon. Arthur Kinnaid are to act as trustees, and there is a board of eight directors. The object is to undertake all the functions of agents, trustees, executors, administrators, and assigns for all classes of clients, and especially for officers in the army and navy and for British subjects and colonists in India and China, Australia, the Cape, America, and all parts of the world. The company propose likewise to undertake the custody of valuable property in fire-proof buildings and to act in such cases as insurers.

THE INDIAN ARMY COMMISSION.—(India Office, June 27).—The Queen has been pleased to appoint General Sir John Aitchison, K.C.B., Lieut.-General Sir Robert Napier, K.C.B., Major-General Sir Sydney John Cotton, K.C.B., Major-General Henry Eyre, Major-General Charles Alfred Browne, Major-General David Russell, C.B., and Major-General Sir William Marcus Coghlan, K.C.B., to be her Majesty's Commissioners to inquire whether the measures taken, consequent on the report of the Commissioners appointed by her Majesty in March, 1863, to investigate the complaints made in memorials from officers of the late Indian armies, are effectual and sufficient for the purpose of removing such causes of complaint as were reported by the said Commissioners to have arisen by a departure from the assurance given by Parliament.

THE DRAWING-ROOM.—Among the presentations at the last Drawing-room, we notice that of Miss Manockjee Cursetjee, from Bombay, by the Duchess of Wellington.

MILITARY ITEMS.—60th Rifles. We have to announce the death, at Rangoon, on the 30th of April last, of Captain the Hon. Richard Prendergast Vereker, of the 3rd battalion, son of Viscount Gort. This gallant young officer served with his regiment in the campaign of China, and had the medal with clasps for Taku Forts and capture of Peking. The officers of his battalion have gone into mourning out of respect to his memory. This death will promote Lieut. Watson, of the 3rd Battalion, to a company. Lieut. Crofton, who had been promoted by purchase, will receive his step without purchase, in succession; and Ensign Gumbleton becomes lieutenant by purchase in his place. A grand ball, numerously and fashionably attended, was given on Wednesday evening, at Dover, by Colonel and Mrs. Palmer, in honour of the Queen's accession. Lord Melville, and other distinguished officers who had once served in the 60th—the 2nd battalion of which is stationed in the town, under the command of Colonel Palmer, C.B.—were present.—66th Regiment. The transport Tyburnia, 57 days from Madras, left St. Helena on May 5, with the right wing of the regiment, 320 women and children, under the command of Lieut.-Colonel Tom Benson, for Plymouth. The Merchantman, 56 days from Madras, with the left wing, 284 men, women, and children, sailed from St. Helena on the 7th for Plymouth. The officers are Major Aylmer, Captain Ready, Lieutenants Lynch, Saunders, and Westropp; Ensigns Whitty and Humphrey, Dr. M'Creevey, and Quartermaster Gilby, &c.—81st Regiment. The Red Rose, 66 days from Calcutta, left St. Helena on the 12th of May for Portsmouth; she brings Major Flanagan, Captains Bouchier and Harmer; Lieutenants Maturin, Bevan, Jones, and Pedder; Ensigns Purdon, Woods, and Conolly; and 326 men, women, and children belonging to the regiment.—89th Regiment. On arrival from India the regiment will be quartered at Dover, occupying the quarters to be vacated by the 37th Regiment.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The report of the directors, adopted by the proprietors at the nineteenth half-yearly general meeting, held at the London Tavern, on the 22nd, contained the following announcements:—On the 28th November last the line was opened for passenger traffic from Bulsar to Grant-road (Bombay), a further distance of 120½ miles, thus making the length of line open for passengers 306 miles, whilst for goods it still remains at 185½ miles. The long-desired object of reaching Bombay may thus be said to have been at length attained. But the full effect of this upon the traffic receipts has not yet been seen, for the following reasons, viz.—1st. The break in the Nerbudda-bridge, referred to in the last report, has proved a great hindrance to the passenger traffic, and has almost entirely stopped the goods traffic. 2nd. The terminal accommodation for goods traffic at Grant-road station (Bombay) being still incomplete (through delay in obtaining possession of the land) and also very limited, no traffic of that description has yet been brought below Bulsar. 3rd. The interval of 3½ miles between the present terminus at Grant-road and the port of Bombay, as well as the absence of the permanent goods terminus at Colaba, cannot but have an unfavourable effect upon the traffic for some time to come. The Nerbudda-bridge has been repaired and strengthened, and by the last mail from India the information was received that the trains are running over it. The erections and arrangements for a temporary goods station at Grant-road are in progress; and it is hoped that these, supplemented by the additional space from Malabar Point-road to Back Bay, arranged for with the Bombay Government, will shortly enable the company to begin the goods traffic business at Bombay, though at first it may only be to a limited extent. With regard to the completion of the line to the harbour at Colaba, it was intimated in the last report that some delays had occurred in the reclamation operations. The progress made by the Reclamation Company has not yet been so rapid as could be wished, but the works of that company are being pushed on with energy. Under all the circumstances before alluded to, the board consider that to have obtained an average weekly passenger traffic of £14 per mile over the whole 306 miles of open line during the first quarter of this year, is a very satisfactory indication of what may be expected hereafter under more favourable conditions. The board, owing to circumstances already referred to, are unable to report as to the working expenses or the net revenue for the half-years ending in June and December of 1864. The usual audited statement of the capital account, to the 31st December, 1864, shows that the total amount received up to that period was £5,144,557, of which the sum of £451,190. 10s. (less £56,400 bonds repaid) was received in the last half-year. The total amount of audited expenditure in England and India to the same period (including stores) was £4,543,758. 19s. 4d. In addition to this a further amount of £650,467. 6s. 5d. had been spent on the works in India to the same date, which was awaiting the final audit of the Bombay Government. The payments for works, &c., in India, together with the cost of the materials supplied from England, have more than exhausted the capital authorised by the proprietors, and there is still much to be done before the line can be said to be fully completed. The report was adopted, and also resolutions authorising the directors to create new capital, by the issue of new shares on debenture bonds, as might be sanctioned by the Secretary of State for India, and for the consolidation of the present paid-up shares into capital stock.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY.—The eighteenth annual general meeting was held on Friday last, at the London Tavern; Mr. R. W. Crawford, M.P., in the chair. The report of the directors contained the following announcements:—With the exception of some minor works, the line in Bengal may be considered complete as a single line, that 40½ additional miles have been opened in the North-Western Provinces, and that the remaining works are rapidly progressing towards completion. The board are glad to be able to report that the site of the Jubbulpore station has at length been determined upon, and that they have every reason to be satisfied with the amount of work done upon the Jubbulpore line under Messrs. Waring, Bros., and Hunt's contract. During the half-year under review the line has been worked as one line from Calcutta, and the distinction previously made between the two divisions—"Bengal and North-Western Provinces"—has ceased, so far as all revenue purposes are concerned. The locomotives and other rolling stock are in good order. The permanent way and works have been thoroughly well maintained, partly by contract and partly by the company's own officers, at a cost of 10½d. per train mile. The working expenses for the half-year ended the 31st December were 51·96 per cent., against 62·17 per cent. in the corresponding half-year. The working expenses for the year ended 31st December last were 50·81 per cent., against 55·56 for the previous year. The total number of passengers carried during the year 1864 has been 4,015,718, against 3,274,292 in 1863, showing an increase of 741,426; the average mileage in 1863 being 926½, and in 1864 being 1,058. The tonnage in goods and minerals, exclusive of parcels, carriages, and live stock, for the half-year ended 31st December last, has been 279,678 tons, against 214,700 tons in the corresponding half-year. The tonnage in goods and minerals for the year 1864 (average number of miles 1,058) has been 607,357 tons, against 479,861 tons in 1863 (average number of miles 926½), showing an increase of 127,496 tons. The foregoing figures include no tonnage carried on account of the railway company. The gross receipts for the half-year ended 31st December last have been £620,428. 7s. 11d., against £473,692. 0s. 11d. in the corresponding half-year. The gross receipts for the year ended 31st December, 1864, have been £1,272,576. 3s. 1d., against £990,056. 4s. for the year ended 31st December, 1863, showing an increase of £282,519. 19s. 1d. Large as the traffic has been, in some instances returning a dividend at the rate of five per cent. on the capital, the board are informed that a very large amount has been refused, owing to the impossibility of carrying it on a single line, and the Government of India has suggested that the time has arrived when the line should be doubled from the Khanoo Junction to Allahabad; it follows that if the traffic ready to come upon the line is anything like so great as it is represented to be, an outlay of from £5,000 to £6,000 per mile, the estimated cost (including bridges) of the doubling, would at once secure to the shareholders a dividend in excess of the guaranteed interest. The board have been most anxious, before submitting any fresh proposals to the shareholders, to be satisfied of the maximum amount of traffic that could be carried on the line as a single line, and the concurrent testimony of the Government and of their own officers that that maximum has been reached is so decided, that it is impossible to resist the conclusion that some further means must be adopted to secure the full benefit which the traffic of the country is ready to afford. The board have therefore given the suggestion of the Government of India their most careful consideration, and if in their opinion there were no better means of attaining the end in view, they would have been prepared to have recommended the shareholders to have acted upon it: but in their judgment a far more preferable alternative is to be found in the construction of the proposed chord line from the Barrakur to Luckie Serai, more particularly referred to in their report of 30th October, 1863. The Government of India concurs in the expediency of making the line, and the Secretary of State having invited proposals from the board, they have replied that—the shareholders consenting—the company will undertake it upon a guarantee of 5 per cent. interest, presuming that, until the line is completed, the capital, estimated at £2,400,000, will be kept quite independent of, and distinct from, that of the main line, the one merging in the other so soon as the line is completed. The only part of the main line which the board hope will then require doubling will be from Khanoo Junction to Seetarampore, where the chord line starts—16 miles—and from Luckie Serai to Allahabad—300 miles—at an estimated cost of £2,050,000. The board submit a resolution to create capital for the construction of the chord line. £2,400,000, and for doubling the main line from Khanoo Junction to Seetarampore, and from Luckie Serai to Allahabad, £2,050,000; the raising and expenditure of which sums will certainly be spread over five years. A resolution is submitted to this meeting consolidating into stock all the paid-up shares in the company which have not already been consolidated into stock. The board announce with most sincere regret the death of Frederick Walter Simms, Esq. They have elected in his stead Sir Frederick James Halliday, K.C.B., late Lieutenant-governor of Bengal. The following directors and auditor retire at this meeting, and, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election:—Joseph Baxendale, Esq., George Lyall, Esq., M.P., Sir Macdonald Stephenson, directors; and Arthur Morgan, Esq., auditor. The revenue account for the half-year shows a total of £620,428. 7s. 11d., out of which a balance remains of £298,016. 13s. 7d. The total of the capital account is £2,381,856. 0s. 10d., the balance being £1,232,962. 6s. 11d. The report was adopted, as well as the necessary resolutions to carry out its recommendations.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for 25,00,000 rupees (£250,000) in bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 21st ult., at the Bank of England, and the following are the official particulars: The proportions allotted were, to Calcutta, 12,12,000 rupees; to Madras, 3,12,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 10,00,000 rupees. The minimum price was, as before, 1s. 10½d. on Calcutta and Madras, and 1s. 10½d. on Bombay. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras, at 1s. 11d., will receive about 60 per cent.; on Bombay, at 1s. 11½d., about 45 per cent.; and above these prices in full. It will be seen from these particulars that there is an increased demand for means of remittance to India, the quotations realised being about 1½ per cent. higher than on the previous occasion. The recent rise in the value of cotton at Liverpool will, in some measure, account for the improvement in the above rates.

OVERLAND TRAVELLERS TO EGYPT.—Lady Duff Gordon, in her admirable "Letters from Egypt," makes a remark upon the pranks of some of the overland passengers, which the Reader recommends to the attention of the Civil Service Commissioners:—"It is really heartbreaking to see what we are sending to India now. The mail days are dreaded; we never know when some brutal outrage may possibly excite 'Mussulman fanaticism.' They try their hands on the Arabs, in order to be in good training for insulting Hindoos. The English tradesmen here complain as much as any of the natives, and I . . . hear what the Arabs really think. . . . I have come to hate the sight of a hat in this country."

OUTWARD MAILS.—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Ripon, Capt. Weeks, sailed from Southampton on the 27th ult., with the mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Bombay, and Upper Bengal, together with 17 first and 50 second-class passengers; amongst whom are Captain Macartney, Lieutenant Carter, Captain Brittan, and Sir John Hay. The Ripon took out a full cargo; and, for Bombay, silver thread, watches, and jewellery, value £1,113. The Peninsular and Oriental Company's screw steamship Poonah, Captain J. S. Field, sailed on the 20th ult. for Gibraltar, Malta, and Alexandria, with the Calcutta, China, and Australian mails. She has on freight 71 boxes of specie, jewellery, &c., value £21,388. 11s., viz.:—For Alexandria.—Watches, £150; sovereigns, £5,000. For the Mauritius.—Jewellery and watches £131. For Madras.—Gold coin, £410. 10s.; gold thread, watches, &c., £1,037. For Calcutta.—Precious stones and jewellery, £684. For Singapore.—Watches and jewellery, £120. For Hong Kong. Silver coin, £4,700; bar silver, £1,930; jewellery, gold thread, &c., £1,473. For Shanghai.—Dollars, £4,000. Amongst the passengers are Captain Jackson and Captain Vibart, for Gibraltar; Commander Fenwick, Captain R. P. Caton, and Surgeon Pollard, for Malta, Captain and Mrs. Dana, for Suez; Captain and Mrs. Stewart, Major Ramsey, Major Gray, Major and Mrs. Pearce, for Madras; Lieutenant Thorpe, Mr. and Mrs. Mesurier, Mr. and Mrs. Conolly, for Calcutta; Captain D. Sinclair, Assistant Surgeons Whitley, Gaven, and E. Hudson, for Hong Kong, &c. The P. and O. Company's steam ship Pera, Captain Jamieson, sailed on the 4th inst. with the mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, India (except Bombay), and China. She took out 21 first, and 27 second-class passengers, and on freight 94 boxes specie, value £26,739. Amongst the passengers by this mail are Captains Forbes, Herger, and M'Kinder, Major Elliot, Ensign Jamieson, and Mr. Anderson.

COMMERCIAL FAILURES.—The failure of Messrs. J. T. Bell and Co., of London, has been announced. Notwithstanding the suspension has been compulsory through the situation of the house in Bombay, which has been brought down owing to the operations of the partner there connected with a native broker, it is believed the liquidation will be 20s. in the pound, with interest. The debts and liabilities, according to one authority, are not more than £160,000, and it is stated the assets in produce, goods, &c., are, at least, £380,000. Another authority places the indebtedness at £380,000, included in which are acceptances against consignments to the extent of about £80,000, which will either be taken up by the drawers, or the proceeds of the goods will fully cover the same. It is satisfactory, however, under any circumstances to find that payment in full is confidently anticipated. The suspension of Messrs. C. J. Nasmyth and Co., in the India trade, was known on Saturday, but the fact was not thoroughly confirmed till yesterday. The debts and liabilities are placed at £65,000 to £70,000; the assets, it is imagined, may prove uncertain.

THE BLUE ENSIGN.—The first vessel of the Mercantile Marine which has obtained the Admiralty warrant to fly the blue ensign is the Golden Fleece of London, 2,768 tons, and 500-horse power, commanded by Lieutenant R. W. Ker, of the Royal Naval Reserve, and owned by the East India and London Shipping Company (Limited).

APPOINTMENT.—CEYLON.—Lieut.-Colonel G. S. Young, unattached, has been appointed Assistant Military Secretary to Major-General Studholme Hodgson, the new Commander of the Forces in Ceylon. Lieut.-Colonel Young served with the 80th Regiment in the Sulej campaign, and during the Indian Mutiny.

At a short distance from the Plantations there is a Cheer (pinus longifolia) Forest, of about 100 acres in extent, in which the purchaser will have the right to cut timber which is well fitted for making tea chests, firewood, &c.

There are on the Estate three large slated houses, numerous slated offices, a large slated factory, two large slated godowns, a slated barrack for Chinese tea manufacturers, and the stock and block of the factory are complete for tea operations, and in working order.

These two Estates will be sold in one lot in fee simple, free of all demands on account of land revenue, exclusive of existing local cesses, such as road, educational, and postal cesses, or such as may be hereafter legally imposed, at an upset price of Rs. 2,00,000 (two lacs of rupees).

A small portion of the Plantation of Ayar Toli, named Bincolle, belonging to the Temple of Nagath, will bear an annual rental of Rs. 24 (twenty-four rupees) per annum.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This Company is formed for the purpose of purchasing, working, and further developing several valuable and extensive Tea Estates in Upper Assam, in British India.

These estates, which will be conveyed to the Company partly in freehold and partly on perpetual lease, comprise in all not less than 16,000 acres, chiefly of fine forest land, the bulk of which is admirably adapted for tea cultivation, and are situated in the district of Luckimpore, at a distance of from six to twenty miles from Dibronghur, the principal station, in proximity to the rivers Tingri, Dikhom, Dehing, Tiping, and other streams, and to the two chief roads of the district. They possess the advantage of a considerable supply of local labour, and the suitability of the locality for tea planting as to soil and climate has been sufficiently proved by the success with which the cultivation has hitherto been attended, both in these gardens and in those of the principal Companies already established in that part of Assam.

Of these plantations 1,685 acres are planted in tea gardens, the particulars of which are subjoined. The produce of the estates has obtained a high reputation in the London market.

A minimum yearly dividend of 10 per cent. on the paid-up capital, payable half-yearly, has been guaranteed. After the expiration of the third year, as nearly all the plantations will be in full bearing, it is confidently expected that considerably larger dividends will be progressively realised, and the calculations from which this result is arrived at have been made altogether exclusively of any return from the sale of tea seed.

The price for the property has been fixed at £168,500, payable by annual instalments, with interest at 5 per cent., extending over a period of five years.

Eleven thousand shares have already been applied for. No promotion money whatever will be paid, and the preliminary expenses will be strictly confined to what are indispensable to the formation of the Company.

The articles of association and provisional contracts may be seen at the Offices of the Company.

In consequence of inquiries which have already been made, the Directors have decided to receive a limited number of applications for shares fully paid up, participating in the dividend from the date of payment.

Applications for shares to be made in the accompanying forms to the Company's Brokers, Bankers, or Secretary, from whom prospectuses can be obtained.

London, June, 1865.

Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown.—(See Times, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.J. D. DOUGALL, Inventor and Patentee, 59, St. James's-

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

GINGER has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine, and, combined with camomile, it is the most efficient stomachic tonic known, for while the ginger relieves the stomach from distension and flatulency, arising from impaired digestion, the camomile strengthens the coats of the stomach, and by that means gives it a healthy and invigorating tone. So highly concentrated is this preparation, it is unimpaired by age or climate, and well adapted for exportation. In Gout, Spasms, Dysentery, Cholera, or those complaints incidental to tropical climates, it is invaluable, as in numerous cases a dose or two has checked and frequently cured most alarming attacks. No family should be without it. Sold in half-pints, quarter-pints, and one-eighth pints.
Agreeable Seidlitz Powder, in one bottle, protected by a case, with measure and spoon included. The advantage of this preparation is the perfect combination of the solid ingredients of the Seidlitz Spring in one compound powder.
It is very cooling and refreshing, well adapted for exportation, or travellers by land or sea.
Aromatic Tincture of Quinidine.—For the prevention of Fever, Intermitting or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria.
No person exposed to the influence or predisposing cause of Fevers should be without it, for it taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria.—Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.
The above articles prepared only by THOS. WILKINSON late Wilkinson, Bridge, & Co., 270, Regent-street London, W.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH-
ING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR
TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.
Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

Earl Russell sent to the College of Physicians a communication received by him from Manila (where Cholera had been raging fearfully), to the effect, that, of all remedies tried, Chlorodyne was the most effective.—See Brit. Med. J., Dec. 31, 1864.

CHLORODYNE (TOWLE'S). Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c., immediately relieved by a dose of TOWLE'S CHLORODYNE, which is admitted to be a most wonderful and valuable medicine, and preferred by the profession for its known composition and moderate price.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.

Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1864. Ship Gertrude.
Mr. TOWLE.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marseilles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne, from which myself and crew found immediate relief; and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.
(Signed) GEORGE ALLEN, Chief Officer.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS.
Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 223, Piccadilly, London.
Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 6d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-
Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-
IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

We have received our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 10th of June, Madras to the 14th, and Ceylon to the 17th of that month.

The Englishman sums up the events of the week, in the City of Palaces, in one word—"stagnation." The depression pervading the money market had, under the influence of the unfavourable accounts from Bombay, become greater than at the date of the previous despatch. All kinds of stock had receded still further than before, except Government paper, which had slightly improved. The Mohurrum had come and gone, but the usual sensation elements had been wanting upon the occasion, there being no bloodshed or affray, and no sinister rumours of disaffection and conspiracy usually circulated at this period.

The Bengal Chamber of Commerce had met, and discussed the half-yearly report of their committee. The President, in his address, referred to the success of the Indo-European telegraph, and the extremely unsatisfactory working of the line between Kurrachee and Calcutta, which bids fair, unless greatly improved, to deprive Calcutta of much of the benefit of rapid communication with London. He also, continues the Englishman, from which we take this abstract of his speech, congratulated his hearers on the accomplishment of the first step towards the development of Port Canning, in the subscription of the required capital—adding, with ill-suppressed sarcasm, that it was now left to the promoters to prove that they had not overrated the capabilities of the port. With reference to the order of the Secretary of State, disallowing the export duties, he thought it would have been better to have spared the dignity of the Government by allowing them to be levied, and fixing an early date for their repeal. He hoped that a Bill, sanctioning the principle of commanditarian partnership, would be introduced in the next Session of the Governor-General's Council; recommended that sovereigns be declared a legal tender at ten rupees; and spoke hopefully of the ability of Calcutta to come safely through the commercial crisis now so severely affecting Bombay. The meeting passed a resolution expressive of their horror at the assassination of President Lincoln, and also one in favour of the general recognition of a Saturday half-holiday. The Hon. Mr. Bullen was elected president, the Hon. Mr. Rowe vice-president, and Messrs. P. T. Ralli, Dundas, Eldridge, Goodenough, and Moncrief, the committee for the ensuing year.

The American community had held a meeting, and passed resolutions in honour of their murdered President.

The Bhootan frontier was quiet; but the Bhoteas were said to be making preparations to attack the Dooars after the rains.

The story of the mission to Khokan was not quite without foundation. The Government, we are now told, have determined to send a native agent, but not an accredited one, with the Khokanee envoy, to ascertain the real state of affairs in Central Asia with reference to the alleged movements of Russia.

The Calcutta people were getting anxious about the deficit in the budget, and were beginning to think that the Government at home were rash in sacrificing so much revenue without making provision to fill up the gap. They are under the firm belief, however, in consequence of an announcement by telegraph, that Sir Charles Wood has been raised to the Peerage, and that as Earl of Halifax he will no longer administer Indian affairs; so they comfort themselves by expecting immense things from his successor. Mr. Massey had fully confirmed the anticipations of a "masterly inactivity" policy as regards new ways and means.

At Madras there was little stirring, and at Ceylon less. Sir Hope Grant's Farewell Order had been published in the former place, and will be found elsewhere.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which in regular course would be due at Marseilles on the 18th inst., but according to a telegram from Alexandria it has been detained by bad weather.

Casualties by Death in the Armies of India reported since last Publication.

[Before Mr. Registrar ROCHE.]

IN RE COLONEL W. P. WAUGH.

This was a first meeting under the third bankruptcy of Colonel William Petrie Waugh, a former petitioner by the gallant colonel having been recently dismissed by Mr. Commissioner Goulburn, on the ground that the bankrupt had omitted from his preliminary statement of debts and liabilities all mention of a debt due to Lord Garvagh, upon which judgment had been recovered. The adjudication under the present proceedings is made upon the petition of Mr. Maurice Evans, of 31, Throgmorton-street, wine merchant. Colonel Waugh remains in Whitecross-street.

This was the first meeting for proof of debts and choice of assignees.

Mr. Maurice Evans, of 31, Throgmorton-street, the petitioning creditor, and Mr. Wilkinson, of Southampton-buildings, solicitor, were now chosen trade assignees, and upon the application of Mr. R. Griffiths, the 12th of August was fixed for the bankrupt to apply for his order of discharge.

VICTORIA CROSS.—In the Gazette a notification appears, stating that her Majesty has been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on Lieut. (now Captain) George Vincent Fosberry, for the daring and gallant manner in which, on the 30th of October, 1863, acting as a volunteer at the time, he led a party of his regiment, during the operations at Umbeyla, on the North-Western frontier of India, to re-capture the Crag Picquet, after its garrison had been driven in by the enemy, on which occasion sixty of them were killed in desperate hand to hand fighting.

CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Syria, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived at Southampton on the 10th inst. with 165 passengers and a general cargo, including 947 bales of raw silk, value £80,000.

TORTURE IN NATIVE STATES.—It was only the other day that the Gazette of India contained a notification that the Chief of Jhubbooa had been deprived of his salute for mutilating a man suspected of thieving. Cruelty to prisoners is unfortunately too common amongst native States. The Bombay papers contain particulars of the atrocities by which the Guicowar hopes to make his will respected. We noticed the doings of this chief in our paper of the 22nd ult. Several escaped convicts have been captured, and put to death by the sword. One, however, met with a terrible fate. He was chained, bound hand and foot to an elephant's leg, and dragged through the city until death relieved him of his sufferings. —Hurkaru.

BENGAL.

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE INCOME-TAX.

Mr. Massey is about to do a bold thing. It is generally understood that no specific substitute is to be provided for the Income-tax, which ceases on the 1st of August, and that the financial member is to trust to the elasticity of the general revenue to make up for it. Without the figures before us, on which this scheme was based, it is impossible for us to offer any valuable criticism on the probability of its being realised. We cannot refrain from noticing, however, that it publicly acknowledges a new element in Indian finance. Mr. Massey, at the outset of his Indian career, has declared himself a believer in the development of the country. He has announced that, in a land where financiers have been wont to make allowance for steady deficits, the time has come when the natural and normal state of things is one of progression. If any person will take the trouble to look over the Almanack de Gotha, he will there find set forth, with most praiseworthy precision, the estimated and the actual incomes of all the States in the world which have a revenue to collect, or an income to spend. The form of the Budget varies in every country, but the returns show, in one respect, an invariable result. The actual income of the year is, somehow or other, always short of the recettes présumées of the preceding budget. To this general rule there has hitherto been only two exceptions—England and America. Money is flowing into the State exchequer at home at such a rate that Mr. Gladstone hardly knows what to do with his good fortune. If he closes one channel, it floods the others he has left open, and the more he takes off the greater is the surplus. Last year, in spite of reductions of all sorts, the income exceeded the expenditure by three millions eight hundred thousand sterling, and this year, if the country goes on prospering as heretofore, the surplus will exceed four millions. Mr. Gladstone is the first English financier who has deliberately trusted to an increase in the productive powers of a tax, without actually raising it. If more money was wanted, the stock expedient was an additional penny on the income-tax. Mr. Gladstone, however, does differently. He says to the nation, "Increase your incomes, and there will be no need of increasing the tax; and he backs his speech by removing every fiscal obstruction to the spread of commerce and industrial enterprise. Mr. Massey practically says the same thing to India. He offers to trust to the increase of the wealth of the country to make good the loss caused by the removal of the export duties. Now, this increase of wealth, if it is to take place at all, can only arise from the impetus which English energy and English capital are giving to India. The standing problem for future historians will be to explain how a country, which had remained stagnant for two thousand years, woke up, almost in a moment, to the activity which characterises the great cities of India at present. Five years ago it used to be a question, each April, how much the indispensable expenses of the coming year would exceed the receipts. The deficit for 1857-58 was seven and three-quarter millions sterling; for 1858-59 it was over thirteen and a-half millions sterling, and the calculated deficit for 1859-60 was, including guaranteed interest on railways, close on nine millions sterling. Then came an English financier, and things changed. The great ideas of Mr. Wilson were carried out, with some modification, by a man reared in the same school, and the tide of prosperity began to run as strongly as the tide of disaster had previously ran. During the past two years the finances of India have, to say the least, not progressed at the rate which they did under men of a different class. All we ask of an Indian financier is not to obstruct; let us alone, and give commerce its head. If, under Mr. Massey, it should prove that India is the only country in the world, besides England, in which the surest way to increase the revenue is to take off taxes, we shall have to thank the men who applied to Indian finance the principles which they have learned at home. We trust that, with the removal of these ill-fated Export duties, the chief cause which has divided the head of the Government from those over whom he rules, will be removed. He has now at his side a man who is free from crotchets, and who understands the lessons which the late financial experiences of England so pointedly teach. As we have said before, these are not times which demand ingenious fiscal devices. All the country requires is a man whom one-sidedness will not lead into blunders, and who enters on his duties with a clear understanding as to what is expected of him. Such a man, we trust, India has now got at the head of her Exchequer.—Englishman, June 5.

THE "SATURDAY REVIEW" ON CALCUTTA.

There is great comfort in meeting with an old friend whom we fancied lost to us for ever. Last year the newspaper-reading public of India were cheered once a week by a writer who, as the Irish littérateur said of himself, combined "the wildest imagination with the most withering powers of denunciation." Brilliant and slashing assertions, gross personalities, a wonderful memory for jokes, and fine inventive powers in matters of fact, are qualities which we do not meet every day, and which we ought to appreciate when we do meet them. But it is a comfort that in this world nothing fades away altogether:—

"Oh! never star"

Was lost here, but it rose afar;"

and the last Bombay mail brought us the cheering certainty that the bright particular star, whose extinction we have been since Christmas deploring, is not really extinguished, but "tricks his beams, and, with new-fangled ore," flames in the forehead of the Saturday Review—for there is no mistaking that fine Roman hand. Our readers have only to turn to the article on Calcutta, reprinted in another part of our issue, to convince themselves that absence only makes the pen grow sourer, and that we are not yet to lose the benefit of the amiable style, and happy instinct for the agreeable, which, characterised our departed friend. Saturday Reviewers have always cultivated the art of being uncommonly disagreeable. It is their stock-in-trade. We have met Saturday Reviewers who, in private life are as amiable, not to say mild as people in general; any soft nothings to the ladies; make weak remarks about the weather, and so on; but, with the goose-quill in hands all their milk turns to gall. They know that it is expected of them to be bitter, and savage, and cynical; to rail, like Timons, at what the world admires; and to expose the weaknesses of the weaker sex, and of most part of their own. This it is which has given a distinctive tone to the paper, and constitutes the great secret of its success. A man with a prominent nasal organ stands a much better chance of making his way in society, ceteris paribus, than one with no such distinction; not because people like long noses—rather the reverse; but because that feature at once constitutes its owner a man of mark, and gives you something to know him by. This is what the cynicism of the Saturday Review has done for it; and that cynicism is cherished and loved by it in consequence, and comes out in a variety of different forms, and with infinite diversity. But cynicism in the hands of gentlemen seldom or never degenerates into malice or personal spite; and we are therefore surprised that the editor should have admitted an article which teems with personal ill-feeling and ill-concealed grudges—which is, in fact, a parting kick at a society which did not appreciate the writer at his own estimate of himself. We purpose to bring together a few facts which will confute some of this writer's more extraordinary assertions with regard to the sanitary state of Calcutta; but we desire, in the first place, to make some general observations on the tone and temper which he has displayed. The worst of the article is that it will not hurt only those whom it is intended to hurt. We have in our way considerable respect for the Bengal Government, the Municipality of Calcutta, and its health officer; but they can defend themselves, and, if they do not care to measure weapons with an anonymous assailant in the literary arena, their works will speak for them. An actual improvement in the health of Calcutta will be worth more than pages of refutation—more than anything we or they can say; and what we do say is not for their sakes only or chiefly. Exaggerate the unhealthiness of Calcutta—its dirt, its smells, its nuisances—as much as you like, as far as we are concerned. We live on, keep our health, do our work, enjoy our dinners, and laugh at you. But our mothers and sisters at home read these horrible details with far different eyes. A paper like this does infinite mischief among those who love us and long for our return. On that Saturday, the 29th of April, how many fair cheeks, think you, were pale, how many tears were shed, how many trembling prayers were breathed, how many soft eyes were unsealed by sleep through the livelong night, in agonising anxiety for the welfare of dear ones far away, after your smart and rattling essay had been read and discussed in the family circle? Statements like these, if true, and uttered with a solemn and befitting consciousness of their truth, involve an awful responsibility; if they are false, or careless, or exaggerated—if they are rattled forth in a gay and festive way, mixed with ancient jokes about raw competition-wallahs, and consignments to the matrimonial market—they are little short of a crime. Little things have great effects; and the harm that may be done by representations like these, and by a few careless passages of similar purport, in Mr. George Trevelyan's already well-discussed book, can hardly be calculated. If we want to keep an Indian empire, why should we allow a handful of flippant and unconsidering writers to sneer or frighten the best of the rising youth of England from volunteering their services in this great work. And since those who come out to accompany and cheer us as wives or daughters are also labouring in their quiet and unobtrusive way in the same cause, we cannot afford, by exaggerating their perils, and misconstruing their motives, to diminish the number or depreciate the worth of these amiable and most agreeable volunteers. We hope some one will break a lance with this insolent writer on behalf of the ladies of Calcutta, who are represented—how falsely we all well know—as “sharp, angular, and stiff;” as “a little soured and very stupid;” as adventurers who have tried the east when their chances elsewhere have failed. We even think a word might be said for the children, against whom a perfect battery of abuse is directed. What can these poor innocents have done to this Reviewer that he should call them “shy, awkward, and uncouth—fractious, enervated, and foolish?” But we leave this point, as one which, unhappily, does not concern us personally, and shall, when we resume our pen, deal with the more important statements on the subject of the health of Calcutta.—Englishman, June 6.

SIR MACDONALD STEPHENSON'S RAILWAY SCHEME.

The exploration of the country between Bunder Abbas and Cape Jask, by Lieutenant-Colonel Pelly, though undertaken solely in connection with the proposal to extend the Mekran Telegraph, has an important bearing upon a scheme of even greater interest and magnitude. The tantalising scraps of intelligence which we now receive by the wires, generally too brief and imperfect to enable us to form a correct notion of their import, but, at the same time, sufficiently intelligible to deprive most of the news brought by the mails of all but secondary interest, make the tardy transport of the latter all the more intolerable. We all, not unnaturally, begin to feel that the present mode of Overland transit is rather behind the age than in advance of it, although the subject has long been under discussion, and some of the most important conditions of improvement have been long since secured. It is well known to all our readers that there are three schemes, each with its own advocates, for uniting England and India more or less perfectly by railways. The most magnificent, and undoubtedly the most arduous of these schemes, is that which proposes an unbroken chain of iron road from the Straits of Dover to Calcutta, crossing from Europe into Asia by a bridge thrown over the Bosphorus, and reaching Kurrachee by Asia Minor, Persia and Beloochistan. This is the plan of Sir Macdonald Stephenson, who estimates that by it the duration of the Overland route will be reduced to seven days. There is little doubt, as we have said, that, of the three projects before the public, this is the most arduous; but we cannot sympathise with the feeling that appears likely indefinitely to postpone its consideration, on account of the magnitude of the obstacles to be contended against. Through Asia Minor and Persia, to Bushire on the Persian Gulf, sufficient is known of the nature of the country to remove all doubts of the feasibility of the plan as far as that point. The great bugbear has hitherto been the line of coast from Bushire to Kurrachee. Previously to Lieutenant-colonel Pelly's journey, in November last, only about three hundred miles of this coast west of the Indus had been explored by Europeans. The unknown is always more terrible than the known; and it is scarcely to be wondered at that imagination should have invested this region, which is undoubtedly an inhospitable one, with a reputation far worse than there are any reasonable grounds to suppose the reality would justify. Of its practicability in an engineering point of view it was hardly possible to form even a conjecture; while, as far as political obstacles are concerned, there appears to have been a very general conviction that they are most formidable, if not insurmountable. It is not to be wondered at, we say, that such notions should prevail regarding a tract about which so little is known; but, we think, it is to be wondered at and regretted that no attempt has been made to ascertain the truth. We have plenty of indefatigable explorers, who have only to know that an important object is at stake, and be supported, to set the whole question at rest in a few months. It is, indeed, a matter of surprise to us that, of the numbers who appear to travel for travel's sake, and rush into difficulties for the mere glory of overcoming them, no one has yet selected this line of country as the scene of his battle for fame; but it is still more surprising that a Government which has such vast interests involved in the question, has not long since employed the services of some competent person for this undertaking. The Levant Herald, in an article on the subject of railway communication between India and Europe, fairly expresses the general feeling on the subject, when it says:—“Through this terra incognita, therefore, it is not likely that the present—if even the next—generation will see railway communication carried.” If the presentiment of the Levant Herald be realised, we believe it will be solely attributable to the apathy to which it gives expression. The papers of Lieutenant-Colonel Pelly, which we published yesterday, must, as far as the portion of the country they refer to is concerned, tend very much to remove the grave doubts that exist as to the practicability of the scheme. From what we gather from them, we should think that there exist, at all events, no political difficulties which could not be easily overcome. In an engineering point of view, the level nature of the country is highly favourable to the scheme; and, although in the immediate neighbourhood of the sea, the land is so low as to be liable to floods, it does not appear that they are of any great depth, and higher ground is to be found further inland. There is one cause which would, probably, make the line expensive. Lieutenant-colonel Pelly says:—“It so chanced that heavy rain commenced to fall while I was passing the shore line. The whole plain assumed the appearance of a lake in half an hour or so. Every hollow at once became filled from the Beshun Kard Mountains. The rivers and nullahs became torrents, six and eight feet deep, and, in fact, the entire plain wore the appearance of a flood of water poured down from the Beshun Kard Hills, across a level of two or three fursacs into the ocean.” It is probable from this that the rush of water is, after heavy rain, very great, and the bridge work required would be correspondingly heavy. There is another difficulty, also, we believe, surmountable. It is quite evident that the country could not furnish an adequate supply of labour, nor feed labourers brought from a distance. There would, however, be no difficulty in importing labour, and there would be still less difficulty in supplying, from ship's depots of stores in the immediate neighbourhood of the sea. We trust soon to hear that the Indian Government has taken steps to have the whole of the coast from Kurrachee to Bushire thoroughly and scientifically explored.—Englishman, June 2.

MUTILATION AND TORTURE IN NATIVE STATES.

Most of us have read with horror how, as in Europe in former days, torture was resorted to in India in the days of the renowned Tippoo Sahib and others, both as a punishment for crime and as a means of extorting confessions of guilt from suspected offenders. The details of the lingering death in excruciating agony induced by impalement on the stake under exposure to the burning rays of a tropical sun, as also the scarcely less unbearable agony of the cup full of red ants applied over the surface of the stomach, while the victim was so bound that he could not move; these are specimens of barbaric punishment which made us shudder when reading of them, and which make all the denizens of India feel thankful for the blessings which we enjoy as regards the administration of justice and the more humane punishments used in the present day. We have lately boasted much of our success in taming wild tribes, and civilising to a greater or less extent the whole continent of India; but the fire of barbarism, it appears, is only damped—it is by no means altogether extinguished, for it is sometimes seen to burst forth where there is opportunity afforded for resorting to it with impunity. It is well-known that cases of torture were very recently discovered as having been practised by the police,—so recently, in fact, that it is far from improbable that this method of obtaining evidence has not been altogether abandoned in some of the out-of-the-way districts of the Mofussil. These cases referred to, however, occurred amongst a set of people who were not raised in the scale of humanity much if anything above the other inhabitants of the jungles from whence they had been originally brought. But the particular instance of cruelty which has called forth these remarks occurred, it is said, not long ago under the orders of one who is called an ally of England's merciful Queen—one who has been for many years well acquainted with the views of civilised nations with regard to punishment for even the most serious crimes. The Guicowar—for it is he to whom we refer—has, we believe, been looked upon as of such a manly disposition as to be worthy of one of the orders of knighthood; and he has the advantage of having a British officer at his side to aid and advise him upon all matters affecting his reputation as a ruler. Yet notwithstanding all this we see it stated that the Guicowar has been resorting to a most barbarous and cruel method of punishing an offender, viz., by having him bound hand and foot, then, being tied to the leg of an elephant, the wretched culprit was dragged through the capital of Guzerat, bruised, battered, and torn, till death put an end to his writhings and sufferings. Can anything be more monstrous, even supposing the victim of the Guicowar's rage to have been guilty of some gross insult or injury towards his Highness's person or throne? What shall we say, then, when, as reported in the newspapers, the offence was simply one of such a trivial nature as an attempt to escape from jail? It cannot be believed for a moment that such a punishment was inflicted even with the cognisance of the representative of England. Had our Resident been amongst savages one would think that his remonstrances would have obtained the award of a more merciful method of execution, if death, indeed, was necessary to expiate such a trifling offence. It may and will be argued that the Guicowar is a Sovereign with the power of life or death within the limits of his own dominions. But it is notorious that the Government, through the political agents, often exercises great control or influence over the rulers of the East; and it is not too much to expect that the Resident is bound to clear himself from any knowledge of such barbarity as that under consideration. Only a few days since the Governor-General ordered that the ordinary salute on entering our camps should be discontinued in the instance of a rajah who had caused a criminal to be mutilated by way of punishment. Why should we continue to pay honour to the Guicowar, due only to a humane and law-respecting prince, when, if these reports be true, "his Highness" would seem to be little removed from the savage? We should feel considerable relief to learn that the statement is an exaggeration, or, better still, that it has no foundation in fact.—Hurkaru.

THE DEATH OF MR. SANDYS. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "ENGLISHMAN."

SIR,—As an account of the incidents connected with the death of Mr. Sandys, the late judge of Dinapore, might be acceptable to many of your readers, I will undertake to describe the same, and can vouch for its correctness, as I had the peculiar opportunity of hearing it from the sufferer himself. Mr. Sandys, accompanied by Mr. Coxhead, an Assistant Magistrate, were out pig-sticking, when they came across and hunted a tigress. Several shots were fired at her, and she was, to all appearance, killed. The elephants, which were not very stanch, took alarm, and backed out of the jungle, and could not be got to go up to the spot where the tigress had fallen. Mr. Coxhead dismounted, and entered the jungle (a dense one of high grass), with the view of gratifying his curiosity; but, fortunately for himself, he lost his way, when Mr. Sandys followed him, to support him if he came to any grief. He had not, however, advanced many paces, when he came across the tigress, which was supposed to be dead, but was only wounded, though not severely enough to prevent her making a charge at him, when he discharged at her the only barrel of a double rifle, which happened to be loaded, and in his hands. This stopped her for a moment; then she made a second charge, which was met by the stanch shikaree, in a boxing attitude. The animal, rising on its hind legs, seized his left hand in her mouth, when, in the language of the brave man, "With my right fist I gave her a oner on her nose, which made her drop my left hand;" but she seized and pulled him down by the right arm, and then began to gnaw at both arms; after which, seizing the back of his head in her mouth, she dragged him deeper into the jungle—and then only, for the first time, did he call for help. Mr. Coxhead hastened, as quickly as he could, through the dense grass, in the direction from whence the sounds of distress proceeded. He nearly ran right upon the animal, for he shot her dead from a distance of about two yards, at a moment when she dropped Mr. Sandys' head, evidently on getting sight of Mr. Coxhead, for she made a movement towards him. The scene I have been attempting to portray occurred about forty miles from the station. Immediate information was brought in, and the civil surgeon started to render assistance. Mr. Sandys was met in a palkee on the road, and brought home, when he was found to be injured as follows:—The left hand was bitten through; a deep wound about six inches long and several distinct deep teeth marks on the left fore-arm; while, on the right fore-arm, he had a deep wound about four inches long; and this arm, from the wrist to the shoulder, was fairly riddled with almost innumerable teeth-marks. But the severest injury was that on the head, where the scalp, in a direction from one ear to the other, clean cut across as if by a knife, was torn backwards, and was resting on the nape of the neck. Dr. Simpson, of Darjeeling, was called for consultation. Both medical men agreed that the wounds were very severe and dangerous, but they had hopes of his recovery, on the grounds of the then cool weather, his iron constitution, and his known abstemious habits. Everything progressed favourably till the eleventh day, when tetanus, which the doctors feared, set in, and was the immediate cause of death. I cannot refrain from noticing here the wonderful powers of endurance which Mr. Sandys possessed. From the spot where he was injured he rode, on a pad elephant, a distance of six miles, to the nearest dak bungalow, where he cauterised one of the large wounds on his right arm, and actually superintended the measurement of the tigress (eight feet eight inches long); and, when arrived home, would insist upon sitting in a chair to have his wounds dressed, and did not even wince while the doctor stitched, strapped, and ligatured. He retained perfect consciousness to within a couple of days of his death.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE SUBSTITUTE FOR THE GRAND JURY.—The Hurkaru thus alludes to a case which was causing some discussion in Calcutta:—The trial of Mr. Weatherall and his companions, in the misfortune of having been the first to tempt the soundness of the new system, is such a sample of the procedure invented by a theoretical legislator as should make all who assisted him blush for their handiwork. The charge was framed under Section 300 of the Penal Code, and amounted to one of murder against three chuprassies of a coolie depot, and to one of intentionally aiding and abetting this offence against Mr. Weatherall and Baboo Gobind Chunder Dutt, superintendents of the depot. A special jury was empanelled to try the case, so that we had the liberty, if not the life, of a respectable native at stake, as well as that of an European, and the lives of the chuprassies. We were told that the status of the gentlemen who should be called upon to serve on special juries would be consulted, yet the first thing we learn of the new system is, according to Mr. Theobald, "that a special jury was on the same footing as a petty or common jury with respect to the foreman!" The result of the trial was that the case for the prosecution broke down in a way seldom if ever seen in a Calcutta Criminal Court.

It could hardly have been otherwise. A set of Madras coolies manage when drunk to get into a row, ending in a fight with their Bengalee comrades. A man is killed, and in consequence three of the chowkeydars in charge of the depot are arraigned on a charge of murder, and the superintendents for having aided and abetted in the commission of the crime. Of the evidence against Mr. Weatherall, the counsel for the Crown, whilst confessing that, "to say the least of the matter, the prisoners stood in an extremely serious position," was also obliged to admit that, "as regarded the charge against prisoner Weatherall, he was bound to say that, looking at the evidence that would be produced before the jury, the case against him was not a strong case." Now, setting aside that no magistrate with a week's experience of a police court ought to have committed the prisoners, we are brought face to face with the fact that here were five men, one of them a European, arraigned on the most serious of charges, and brought to trial, in a case in which we venture to say no grand jury would have returned a true bill. It is needless to go into details. The verdict of the jury has rendered that unnecessary. We may, however, remark that under Mr. Maine's theoretically faultless substitute for a grand jury, the judge is expected to read the depositions in each case, and to decide whether the evidence there given justifies the arraignment of the accused before a petty jury having "the assistance of a judge and counsel!" Remembering this the question naturally arises whether the Judge could in this instance have read the depositions!—Whether in fact he could have committed himself to the opinion that Weatherall and the others had done anything which rendered their trial before a petty jury necessary? This is the more important, as if the judge under the new system decide a man has, according to the evidence, committed murder, he has to sit in judgment as much upon his own opinion of the evidence as upon the accused himself.

SALE OF CHILDREN.—We have gathered some further particulars relating to the sale of children. This practice, although dying out, as we have said, in districts like Bengal, which are subject to regular laws, and which are under a regular and settled form of Government, still prevails in the remote districts of the peninsula, and flourishes almost unchecked in many of the native States. Very recently a case occurred in the assigned districts in which a woman was sentenced to four months' imprisonment for selling her child. The punishment was but a light one, but it would probably have considerable effect, as showing the people the way in which the English Government look upon this practice. In the territories of the Nizam, at a place called Rodock, Golams and Bundeas are regularly sold every half-year. The supply is fair, and the price moderate, and no attempt seems yet to have been made to check it. The general cause of people bringing their children to the market would seem to be their extreme poverty. In hard years, when their crops fail them, they have even been known to give their children into slavery rather than see them suffer the pangs they felt themselves unable to alleviate. It is worthy of note that the purchasers, as a rule, are Mohammedans, and not Hindoos. The Government must have an immense mass of information on this subject at its disposal.

THE VICEROY.—We hear that the Viceroy will leave Simla in the first week in October, and will hold two durbars on his way down country. One will be held in the Punjab, but the exact localities have not yet been fixed upon.

PETTY CRIMES are said to be on the increase in Central and Upper India. The cause is said to be an unusual scarcity of grain. The people steal to live.

CAPTAIN MACDONALD AT DEWANGIRI.—General Tombs, previous to leaving the Light Brigade of the Bhootan Field Force, reported to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief the gallantry and skill displayed by Captain Macdonald in handling a body of the police. On the morning of the attack on Dewangiri the general added a company of the 29th N.I. to the police force under Captain Macdonald, and directed that officer to make an attack upon the extreme left of the position taken up by the Bhootas. Captain Macdonald, to carry out his orders, had to descend into the valley between the ridge along which the main body of our troops was advancing and the Monastery-hill on the right, until he, with the small force he commanded, reached a spur, which led out from the east face of the Dewangiri plateau into the valley, and on the west of which was a stone building called the Gorroo Dlama's house. This was occupied by the enemy in force, and formed the extreme left of their position, and it was to attack this part of their line that Captain Macdonald was detached; the instructions given him were ably carried out. The General reports that he led his party with great judgment and gallantry to the attack, after a sharp contest drove the Bhootas out of the house, and by this success turned their left. In this affair Mr. Weldon was severely wounded, and the party suffered several casualties. As a reward for his gallantry the General recommended that he should be appointed to the post of wing officer of a native infantry corps, the more especially as by uncovering the enemy's left Captain Macdonald materially assisted the general operations, and rendered a service of considerable value.—Hurkaru.

PUNJABISM.—In a recent issue we supported the policy of the Viceroy in filling many official appointments of great trust and distinction with men of the Punjab school, known and tried by him during his rule in that province. We moreover urged that the Punjab still maintains for its officers a character for vigour and capacity which does not appear so strongly, mainly we believe for lack of opportunity, in the men of the Regulation Provinces. We are supported in this view by the voice of public opinion in England, which now-a-days, as we are brought nearer by the power of steam and the medium of the telegraph, we can less afford to disregard. Several instances have lately come to our knowledge of Government officials in the Punjab having been offered strong inducements to forsake the service, and accept the management of the numerous commercial undertakings which are now springing up in different parts of India. This tribute to the business habits of the officers of a particular province, besides being gratifying to those concerned, affords an argument in favour of them, which the voice of disappointed candidates for high office under Government cannot gainsay when canvassing the merits of the appointments before alluded to. We have now a fresh instance of the public faith in this much-abused Punjabism, for we learn on good authority that an offer has been made, on behalf of the directors of the Punjab and Delhi Railways, to one of the senior military Deputy Commissioners in the Punjab, in the hope that he will resign the service and undertake the important office of Agent to the Northern Railways of India. This officer, one of the most popular in the province, is in the prime of life, and is well known for his ability, thorough business habits, and great literary attainments. We can only hope he will see his own interests in accepting the appointment, which is one we hail with satisfaction as likely not only to be popular with Government and the Railway staff, but which will more than any other prove a solid guarantee for the welfare of the Railway interests.—Pioneer.

MOFUSSIL COURTS.—Mr. Smith, the sub-contractor and inspector on the East India line of railway from Allahabad to Jubbulpore, who was recently maltreated by Gunga Pershad and some other natives, since sentenced by the sessions to imprisonment, has now been made defendant in a case of libel by Mr. Hildebrand, an agent to the contractors, Messrs. Hunt and Elmsley, on the same line. It is said that Mr. Smith called on Mr. Hildebrand for some money due to him as an inspector prior to Gunga Pershad's affair; that, according to Mr. Smith's version, Mr. Hildebrand got him to sign a receipt for Rs. 1,500 clear of all demands, when such was not the case; Smith, not being able to read, was shortly after informed that he had signed such a receipt; whereupon Mr. Smith called on Mr. Hildebrand again, and asked the latter to read the receipt to him. This Mr. Hildebrand refused to do, and Mr. Smith then ventured to suggest that "it appears you wish to cheat me out of my money." Hereon has been based the libel. And the case has been instituted in the Deputy-Commissioner's Court (Civil Side) at Jubbulpore. But what "bangs Bannagher" is, that the presiding officer has permitted Mr. Smith, and I am told Mr. Hildebrand too, to call in counsel in the person of men who are neither barristers-at-law nor licentiate pleaders. Verily, our Mofussil Courts are very backward yet! I wonder if the Judicial Commissioner of the Central Provinces knows anything about this matter. And what a proof is this that some of our Mofussil judges are so very "green" that any man with an ounce of "cheek" may succeed in throwing dust into a judge's eyes, and in then over-riding an irregularity. Oh, for a barrister of a moment's standing in such a province!—Hurkaru.

INCIDENTS ON BOARD THE "NEMESIS."—A letter from one of the passengers on board this steamer when she went on shore contains the following:—"Of the scene that presented itself when it was known that the ship was hopelessly embedded in the sand your informant has already given you a good general idea. There were episodes, however, in which the ludicrous contrasted strangely with the heroic. There were some passengers of the male persuasion,—I shall scarcely call them gentlemen—who evinced a desire to establish themselves in the boats as they were lowered, without any curious inquiry as to the provision to be made for the rescue of the weaker sex and the little ones. It needed, however, but a word from our most decided captain to convince them that such was not to be the order of an exodus from the good ship Nemesis. At such a moment no doubt the regard for the first numeral becomes strong, but I have rarely seen such amusing instances of selfishness as were exhibited by some one or two of the passengers. One gentleman brought strongly to my mind the old story of the shipwrecked Jew, who cried out to the Deal boatmen as they approached the wreck, 'Here; here! take my poor money boksh, never mind te peplesh,—te peplesh can schwim!' The gentleman I allude to appeared among the long file of passengers descending the ships' side, laden with an enormous portmanteau. In vain were all remonstrances; it was a case of facilis decensus, and the portmanteau with its noble-minded owner was safely deposited in the boat. You may imagine we were scarcely prepared for the sight which met our gaze when looking upwards as the boats were on the point of shoving off we saw the same gentleman make a second and sudden appearance on the gangway laden with another portmanteau. Nor was this all the boats were destined to carry in addition to their human freight. Among the last to leave the ship was a heroic sample of the Anglo-Saxon race, who bore high above his head a basket full of parrots—and they were not his own! Oh, sacred friendship! what limits shall we assign to thy beneficent influence?"

GOVERNMENT OFFICERS HOLDING LAND.—The Hurkaru says:—A Mr. J. Philips, of Nowgong, Assam, recently complained to the Local Government against Captain W. N. Lees, and Captain B. Lees. He stated that they bid against the planters for lands, and were large owners of waste tracts in that province. The complaint, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-governor, did not call for any action on the part of the Bengal Government, as far as its authority over the officers complained against was concerned. Mr. Beadon, however, considered it his duty to bring the matter to the notice of the Supreme Government, and to draw its attention to the fact that Captain B. Lees was taking an active part in the management of his property and estates in Assam. The orders of the Government of India, in the military department, state explicitly enough that military officers may hold lands in India, provided only that they abstain from taking part in the active management of such property. There is no objection to Captain Jones or Major Smith becoming a zemindar or a tea planter, only he must not himself look to the management of his estates. That duty he must relegate to a steward. He may hold lands in India, just as he may hold lands in England, but he must employ the same agency in either case to look after his interests. When called upon to explain his position, in regard to the estates he was supposed to hold in Assam, Captain B. Lees informed the Indian Government that he is managing the property of a tea company. Upon this confession the Lieut.-governor remarks that it is not clear what further evidence is required by the Supreme Government, for it cannot be supposed that Captain B. Lees would actually describe himself as guilty of a distinct breach of the orders of Government. Military officers, his Honour observes, are not under the orders of the Bengal Government. Perhaps it is as well for them they are not, for Mr. Beadon certainly seems inclined to stretch a point when necessary to uphold the authority of a Government order. If, however, they were under his authority, Mr. Beadon naively remarks, he would himself enforce the orders of Government in this respect, as he has done in the case of officers serving in Assam in a civil capacity.

THE "NEMESIS" passed Garden Reach yesterday morning at half-past seven, and reached town about ten o'clock. She anchored off the Union Docks for a short time, and went into dock in the afternoon. She did not appear to be the worse for the accident, and we are told that she had sustained no injury whatever. She is said to have crossed the Rangafulla Sand from the inner to the outer channel, and was warped off with one anchor and 190 fathoms of cable. She had 400 tons of coal on board, and on this, with the cargo, being removed, she drew 17-0-4. She floated about a quarter past ten on the morning of the 7th instant.—Hurkaru, June 10.

RUMOURS OF WARS.—There are again rumours from Thibet of civil war and commotion. It is said that the Llamas lately endeavoured to impose some additional taxes upon the Kajeas, and these rose in rebellion to resist the impost. Considering that a change in Thibet might furnish the Bhootas with aid from beyond the mountains, we think the Government would do well to send an envoy to Lhasa, not so much to represent our interest, as to assure the Thibetans of our peaceful intentions, and to acquaint himself with the character of the country and the power of the factions and tribes inhabiting it.—Hurkaru.

OFFICIAL ITEMS.—The office of civil paymaster, N. W. P., has been amalgamated with that of the accountant-general for those Provinces. The chief engineer, Irrigation Works, N. W. P., will, for the future, be designated under secretary, P. W. D., Irrigation Branch.

A DEVOTED WIFE.—The Hurkaru quotes the following from some "Notes of a Tour in the Tributary Mehals," by Colonel Dalton, published in the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal:—In connection with Gangpore, the inhabitants of which seem to have a rather evil reputation as antrefois cannibals, we give a rather romantic story of a suttee that occurred fifty years ago. A Brahmin took a dislike to a girl he had just married, and turned her out of doors, a wedded maid. She took refuge with her parents, who were poor, and who soon after died, leaving her destitute; then she wandered from village to village subsisting on alms, and leading a wretched widowed life. Her husband married a second time, and sons and daughters were born to him and grew up about him, and in the fulness of years he died. His second wife had preceded him, so his corpse was placed alone on the funeral pile, and the torch was about to be applied to it, when a poor emaciated and meanly clad female stepped forward, and as the first, the faithful and only surviving wife of the deceased, claimed the right of suttee. Her request was complied with. Bathed, anointed, clothed, and adorned with flowers like a bride, she ascended the pile, and clinging to the corpse of the husband who had so cruelly discarded her, and for the first time in her life pressing her lips to his, the flames arose and their ashes were mingled together!

A "VICTIM" TO THE VIOLENT PASSIONS OF A NATIVE.—A correspondent of the Englishman makes the following cool remarks. The italics are our own:—"All who have the pleasure of his acquaintance will be sorry to learn that the surgeon in medical charge of Mussoorie has been so unfortunate as to fall a victim to the violent passions of a Native. Full particulars have not yet reached me, but it seems that the clever, kind-hearted doctor found it necessary to administer a slight blow with a cane to a native (moonshee); and the man, in a rage at the insult, or perhaps with a view of involving the doctor in a difficulty, committed suicide. This is the reason given for the rash act, and it remains to be proved whether it is the true one. An enquiry is going on, and an impartial investigation will doubtless be made, but I doubt if any culpability against the doctor can be proved; for if every European or Native is to be made answerable for the folly and villany of Asiatics, there will soon be no safety for anybody. I know a case not far from Delhi in which the manager of a large estate is said to have abused a respectable man to such an extent, that he threw himself into a well and was drowned; but this gentleman is still at large, and his conduct has not even been made the subject of enquiry, probably because it happened in his own elaka, and his serfs are too much afraid of him to say a word about it."

CEREMONY AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.—The Hindoo Patriot says:—"According to the Calcutta correspondent of the Times of India, Sir John Lawrence received, 'in slippers,' the deputation of the Chamber of Commerce on Export Duties. It appears it was this untoward incident which irritated the merchants so much. But they ought to have remembered that Sir John Lawrence used to receive greater men in that way while in the Punjab. When Chief Commissioner of the Punjab, he once received Maharajah Golab Sing with his shirt on." The latter assertion is somewhat ambiguously expressed. Was it the Rajah or Sir John Lawrence who had the shirt on? And in either case, are we to understand that his only garment was the one in question?

AN EASTERN SATIRIST ON WESTERN MANNERS.—The freedom and publicity of action allowed to Christian women must strike the true Asiatic as inexplicable. The Dnyanprakash, a Marathi paper translated by Native Opinion, publishes a letter thus caricaturing the European ideas on this subject. The writer, who signs himself Ghost, is made to say that the Queen is going to issue the following commands regarding the conduct of husband and wife towards each other. Every husband must bow twelve times to his wife the first thing in the morning. Next he should fetch water and bathe her, and having washed her clothes cook for the family. After that he should seat her in a becoming manner, and serve her food. He is then to give her Vida, and then care for his own stomach. The wife in her turn must kick him twelve times early every morning, and, making him work at the usual drudgery, go to office. Women are at perfect liberty to behave as they like. Adultery will not be reckoned sinful, neither will the Government look upon it as penal. The women are fully authorised to use the rod towards their husbands.

NEW SYSTEM OF WEATHER SIGNALS.—Government has at last awakened to a sense of something being necessary in a port like Calcutta to enable captains of ships to prepare for the heavy gales so often experienced. The master attendant has been directed to place himself in communication with the Meteorological committee appointed by Government. The object of this movement on the part of the authorities is said to be the establishment of a system of weather signals, to be carried out by the marine department in accordance with the suggestion of the committee. It is in contemplation also to turn to account the experience and observations of the officers in charge of the Saugor and False Point lighthouses, and those of the commanders of the light vessels. We trust the carrying of this idea into effect will meet with as few official delays and obstructions as possible.—Englishman.

ECONOMY IN INDIA is evidently at its wits end for victims, and for occasions on which it might do service to the State. The other day it prompted the Supreme Government to inquire why the salaries of the police magistrates in Calcutta had been raised from 800 to 1,500 rupees per mensem? Verily the question is one to be asked in all seriousness, and answered with the greatest possible gravity. The Bengal Government replied that the salaries had been gradually raised because it was found that properly qualified persons could not be had at the "former figure!" Mr. Beadon might have also added—and scarcely at the latter rate. 1,500 rupees per mensem is not a very large income for a barrister of any standing, unless he has no practice.—Englishman.

THE INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY.—The first quarterly inspection report of the Nulhatee and Azimgunge line does not speak favourably of the condition of the fencing, and indeed the whole seems to be a gingerbread affair—we mean, of course, on this particular line. Major Hovenden says:—"The passenger-carriages are of great length, and open throughout their length, somewhat like the American cars. They are not uncomfortable, but are deficient in roof ventilation. Each carriage runs on six wheels. They are somewhat flimsy in construction, but appear to answer very well for a low rate of speed. The goods-wagons are of various patterns, having been constructed at various times as experiments, with a view of ascertaining how the requisite strength and capacity could be obtained with the smallest amount of dead weight and at the least cost.—Hurkaru.

THE RESIDUE OF THE REBELS IN OUDE would seem to be in but a bad plight. When the late Dundoopt Nana Rao, Umer Singh, and Huzrut Mahal first sought an asylum in Nepal they led about 1,700 men, women, and children with them into exile. Disease and privation have done their work in reducing the little band of rebels; and recently cholera was reported as having broken out amongst the few surviving. At present they number but twenty-one, and to these we think the Government would do well to hold out some hope of amnesty.—Hurkaru.

HONOURS AT A DISCOUNT.—We (Hurkaru) hear of a strange sequel to the dissatisfaction expressed by the Goorkhas at the Indian mutiny medal. It would seem that the Nepalese think but little of what the medal is meant to typify, whilst they do set considerable store on the actual value of the reward to be given them. They have lately suggested that, if the Government have no objection, they would be glad to receive the value of the 17,000 medals distributed amongst them, in Terai lands, and that, of course, if the Government agree to this, they would at once return all the medals. We trust the lesson will not be thrown away.

A FRENCH RAILWAY PROJECT REJECTED BY GOVERNMENT.—Sir Charles Wood has refused to give any assistance to a French project of a railway from Pondichery to Tripatore on the Madras line, because it would divert to Pondichera much of the traffic which now goes to Madras, and the Madras line does not nearly pay the guaranteed interest. The collector of South Arcot and the Madras Government were anxious that the line should be made. We hope yet to see the French undertake it on their own account, when their territory has been increased by land given in exchange for Chandernagore.—Friend of India.

MADRAS.

FAREWELL ORDER OF SIR HOPE GRANT.

As our readers are already aware, the late Commander-in-Chief and Lady Grant embarked for Europe by the last steamer, bearing with them the heart-felt good wishes of the whole community of Madras, where they were much respected and liked for their many eminent qualities, and for the good that they took delight in doing. Prior to his departure Sir Hope Grant issued a farewell general order to the army, in which he spoke of its discipline and efficiency in the highest terms. A valedictory address was presented to Lady Grant and himself by the society of Madras, and they are requested to sit for their portraits when they reach home, which will be fitly placed in the Lawrence Asylum at Ootacamund.

The Farewell Order is as follows:—

1. Lieut.-governor Sir J. Hope Grant, C.C.B., having been appointed by her Majesty quarter-master-general of the forces, and Lieut.-general Sir J. Gaspard LeMarchant, C.C.M.G., having arrived to relieve him of his command, his Excellency bids farewell to the officers and soldiers who have served under him during the last three years and a-half.
2. When he assumed command of the Madras army in 1861, the amalgamation of the local European forces with the British army had just been ordered, and in the following year it was carried into effect. Sir Hope Grant cannot forbear from noticing the excellent spirit and activity displayed by all ranks of the Artillery and the new line regiments in carrying out this important measure. Very great changes were necessary to assimilate the Artillery with the old Royal Artillery, so as to secure perfect uniformity; these have been most successfully effected.
3. The conduct of the whole of the European troops has been very good during his Excellency's command, but especially so during the past year, in which courts-martial have been fewer, and the crimes of a less serious nature.
4. Sir Hope Grant further desires to place on record the high opinion he entertains of the discipline and efficiency of the Native Army of Madras. The continual foreign service to which every regiment is habituated tends very materially to their usefulness.
5. The Madras Army has not had much opportunity of late years of seeing active service, but portions of it have served under his Excellency both in Bengal and in China, where they behaved exceedingly well, especially the Sappers, who proved themselves to be good and steady workmen under fire. The conduct of the whole Native Army has been most exemplary.
6. The Commander-in-Chief begs to thank the officers of every arm in this Presidency for their zeal on all occasions.
7. Sir Hope Grant desires to thank Major-generals Williams, Armstrong, the Hon. A. A. Spencer, C.B., McCleverty, Duke, and McLeod, commanding divisions; as also the inspector of Royal Artillery, the brigadier-generals commanding brigades, and the officers commanding regiments, corps, and batteries, for the support they have given him in carrying out their duties.

8. He is also much indebted to the staff and heads of departments for the able assistance they have always given him, especially to Colonel Primrose, adjutant-general; to Lieut.-col. Woods, who was adjutant-general up to the time of the amalgamation of the staff; to Lieut.-col. Scott, quarter-master-general; to Col. Pritchard, judge-advocate-general; to Dr. Cole, principal inspector-general, Medical Department; and to Dr. Inglis, C.B., deputy inspector-general of her Majesty's hospitals.

Sir Hope Grant feels bound to add that the duties of the Ordnance and Commissariat Departments have been most effectually carried out; and he tenders his best thanks to Colonel Simpson and Colonel Hill, the heads of these two departments.

9. All reports from this date will be made to Lieutenant-General Sir J. Gaspard Le Marchant, G.C.M.G.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GOVERNOR.—It is rumoured that Sir W. Denison does not purpose to pass the present hot season on the Neilgherries; but it is said to be his Excellency's intention to take up a house in Bangalore, where Lady Denison and family will reside, while he himself will be up and down occasionally.

THE BISHOP'S VISITATION TOUR.—The Right Reverend the Bishop of Madras has informed the Honourable the Governor in Council that he intends to commence, on Friday, 23rd June, a tour of visitation through a large part of the diocese, viz., the Ceded districts, Mysore, Malabar, Travancore, and Tinnevely, returning to Madras next February.

AN AMBITIOUS LADY.—We dare say but few of our readers ever heard of a potentate who styles himself Rajah of Sumpthur. Sumpthur is a petty raj in Central India, the chief of which having become insane, his Rane assumed charge of the affairs of the State, in trust for her minor son. The sweets of power once tasted are not easily laid aside—the Rane on her son's attaining his majority refused to abdicate, or to give up any of the authority she wielded. The matter was brought to the notice of the Viceroy, who, looking only to its merits, condemned the conduct of the ambitious lady, and instructed his representative in Central India to transfer the government to the young chief.

MESSES AND BANDS.—We fear that the days of these old established regimental institutions are numbered in the Madras Native Army; the following order, which appeared on the 6th instant, may be taken as a premonitory symptom of the early dissolution of Bands and Messes. "Officers commanding native infantry regiments will be good enough to send into the brigade office without delay, statements showing the debts and credits of their Regimental Mess and Band Fund on the 1st inst." A regiment without either a band or mess can hardly be called a regiment; any military man knows the influence these institutions have for good upon a corps, and much will be the regret, when they are swept away for aye and for ever. It is evident, however, that a regiment without officers cannot maintain in satisfactory working order institutions for whose existence a fair number of officers is necessary. The above order may be regarded, we think, as a preparatory step to the introduction of the irregular system.

THE REVENUE DEPARTMENT.—We hear that several great changes will soon take place in the Uncovenanted Branch of the Revenue Department. Government, it is said, have resolved upon removing from active service all such deputy collectors, thasildars, &c., as have served the requisite period to entitle them to pension, with the view of infusing new blood into the department. With this object, returns are to be called for of all super-annuated uncovenanted officials. If this resolution were put in force in the other departments of Government as well, much good would, no doubt, be the result.

A DEVOTED WIFE.—The Hurkaru quotes the following from some "Notes of a Tour in the Tributary Mehal," by Colonel Dalton, published in the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal:—In connection with Gangpore, the inhabitants of which seem to have a rather evil reputation as antrefois cannibals, we give a rather romantic story of a suttee that occurred fifty years ago. A Brahmin took a dislike to a girl he had just married, and turned her out of doors, a wedded maid. She took refuge with her parents, who were poor, and who soon after died, leaving her destitute; then she wandered from village to village subsisting on alms, and leading a wretched widowed life. Her husband married a second time, and sons and daughters were born to him and grew up about him, and in the fulness of years he died. His second wife had preceded him, so his corpse was placed alone on the funeral pile, and the torch was about to be applied to it, when a poor emaciated and meanly clad female stepped forward, and as the first, the faithful and only surviving wife of the deceased, claimed the right of suttee. Her request was complied with. Bathed, anointed, clothed, and adorned with flowers like a bride, she ascended the pile, and clinging to the corpse of the husband who had so cruelly discarded her, and for the first time in her life pressing her lips to his, the flames arose and their ashes were mingled together!

A "VICTIM" TO THE VIOLENT PASSIONS OF A NATIVE.—A correspondent of the Englishman makes the following cool remarks. The italics are our own:—"All who have the pleasure of his acquaintance will be sorry to learn that the surgeon in medical charge of Mussoorie has been so unfortunate as to fall a victim to the violent passions of a Native. Full particulars have not yet reached me, but it seems that the clever, kind-hearted doctor found it necessary to administer a slight blow with a cane to a native (moonshee); and the man, in a rage at the insult, or perhaps with a view of involving the doctor in a difficulty, committed suicide. This is the reason given for the rash act, and it remains to be proved whether it is the true one. An enquiry is going on, and an impartial investigation will doubtless be made, but I doubt if any culpability against the doctor can be proved; for if every European or Native is to be made answerable for the folly and villany of Asiatics, there will soon be no safety for anybody. I know a case not far from Delhi in which the manager of a large estate is said to have abused a respectable man to such an extent, that he threw himself into a well and was drowned; but this gentleman is still at large, and his conduct has not even been made the subject of enquiry, probably because it happened in his own elaka, and his serfs are too much afraid of him to say a word about it."

CEREMONY AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.—The Hindoo Patriot says:—"According to the Calcutta correspondent of the Times of India, Sir John Lawrence received, 'in slippers,' the deputation of the Chamber of Commerce on Export Duties. It appears it was this untoward incident which irritated the merchants so much. But they ought to have remembered that Sir John Lawrence used to receive greater men in that way while in the Punjab. When Chief Commissioner of the Punjab, he once received Maharajah Golab Sing with his shirt on." The latter assertion is somewhat ambiguously expressed. Was it the Rajah or Sir John Lawrence who had the shirt on? And in either case, are we to understand that his only garment was the one in question?

AN EASTERN SATIRIST ON WESTERN MANNERS.—The freedom and publicity of action allowed to Christian women must strike the true Asiatic as inexplicable. The Dnyanprakash, a Marathi paper translated by Native Opinion, publishes a letter thus caricaturing the European ideas on this subject. The writer, who signs himself Ghost, is made to say that the Queen is going to issue the following commands regarding the conduct of husband and wife towards each other. Every husband must bow twelve times to his wife the first thing in the morning. Next he should fetch water and bathe her, and having washed her clothes cook for the family. After that he should seat her in a becoming manner, and serve her food. He is then to give her Vida, and then care for his own stomach. The wife in her turn must kick him twelve times early every morning, and, making him work at the usual drudgery, go to office. Women are at perfect liberty to behave as they like. Adultery will not be reckoned sinful, neither will the Government look upon it as penal. The women are fully authorised to use the rod towards their husbands.

NEW SYSTEM OF WEATHER SIGNALS.—Government has at last awakened to a sense of something being necessary in a port like Calcutta to enable captains of ships to prepare for the heavy gales so often experienced. The master attendant has been directed to place himself in communication with the Meteorological committee appointed by Government. The object of this movement on the part of the authorities is said to be the establishment of a system of weather signals, to be carried out by the marine department in accordance with the suggestion of the committee. It is in contemplation also to turn to account the experience and observations of the officers in charge of the Saugor and False Point lighthouses, and those of the commanders of the light vessels. We trust the carrying of this idea into effect will meet with as few official delays and obstructions as possible.—Englishman.

ECONOMY IN INDIA is evidently at its wits end for victims, and for occasions on which it might do service to the State. The other day it prompted the Supreme Government to inquire why the salaries of the police magistrates in Calcutta had been raised from 800 to 1,500 rupees per mensem? Verily the question is one to be asked in all seriousness, and answered with the greatest possible gravity. The Bengal Government replied that the salaries had been gradually raised because it was found that properly qualified persons could not be had at the "former figure!" Mr. Beadon might have also added—and scarcely at the latter rate. 1,500 rupees per mensem is not a very large income for a barrister of any standing, unless he has no practice.—Englishman.

THE INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY.—The first quarterly inspection report of the Nulhattee and Azimgunge line does not speak favourably of the condition of the fencing, and indeed the whole seems to be a gingerbread affair—we mean, of course, on this particular line. Major Hovenden says:—"The passenger-carriages are of great length, and open throughout their length, somewhat like the American cars. They are not uncomfortable, but are deficient in roof ventilation. Each carriage runs on six wheels. They are somewhat flimsy in construction, but appear to answer very well for a low rate of speed. The goods-wagons are of various patterns, having been constructed at various times as experiments, with a view of ascertaining how the requisite strength and capacity could be obtained with the smallest amount of dead weight and at the least cost.—Hurkaru."

THE RESIDUE OF THE REBELS IN OUDE would seem to be in but a bad plight. When the late Dundoopt Nana Rao, Umer Singh, and Huzrut Mahal first sought an asylum in Nepal they led about 1,700 men, women, and children with them into exile. Disease and privation have done their work in reducing the little band of rebels; and recently cholera was reported as having broken out amongst the few surviving. At present they number but twenty-one, and to these we think the Government would do well to hold out some hope of amnesty.—Hurkaru.

HONOURS AT A DISCOUNT.—We (Hurkaru) hear of a strange sequel to the dissatisfaction expressed by the Goorkhas at the Indian mutiny medal. It would seem that the Nepalese think but little of what the medal is meant to typify, whilst they do set considerable store on the actual value of the reward to be given them. They have lately suggested that, if the Government have no objection, they would be glad to receive the value of the 17,000 medals distributed amongst them, in Terai lands, and that, of course, if the Government agree to this, they would at once return all the medals. We trust the lesson will not be thrown away.

A FRENCH RAILWAY PROJECT REJECTED BY GOVERNMENT.—Sir Charles Wood has refused to give any assistance to a French project of a railway from Pondichery to Tripatore on the Madras line, because it would divert to Pondichera much of the traffic which now goes to Madras, and the Madras line does not nearly pay the guaranteed interest. The collector of South Arcot and the Madras Government were anxious that the line should be made. We hope yet to see the French undertake it on their own account, when their territory has been increased by land given in exchange for Chandernagore.—Friend of India.

MADRAS.

FAREWELL ORDER OF SIR HOPE GRANT.

As our readers are already aware, the late Commander-in-Chief and Lady Grant embarked for Europe by the last steamer, bearing with them the heart-felt good wishes of the whole community of Madras, where they were much respected and liked for their many eminent qualities, and for the good that they took delight in doing. Prior to his departure Sir Hope Grant issued a farewell general order to the army, in which he spoke of its discipline and efficiency in the highest terms. A valedictory address was presented to Lady Grant and himself by the society of Madras, and they are requested to sit for their portraits when they reach home, which will be fitly placed in the Lawrence Asylum at Ootacamund.

1. Lieut.-governor Sir J. Hope Grant, G.C.B., having been appointed by her Majesty quarter-master-general of the forces, and Lieut.-general Sir J. Gaspard LeMarchant, G.C.M.G., having arrived to relieve him of his command, his Excellency bids farewell to the officers and soldiers who have served under him during the last three years and a-half.
2. When he assumed command of the Madras army in 1861, the amalgamation of the local European forces with the British army had just been ordered, and in the following year it was carried into effect. Sir Hope Grant cannot forbear from noticing the excellent spirit and activity displayed by all ranks of the Artillery and the new line regiments in carrying out this important measure. Very great changes were necessary to assimilate the Artillery with the old Royal Artillery, so as to secure perfect uniformity; these have been most successfully effected.
3. The conduct of the whole of the European troops has been very good during his Excellency's command, but especially so during the past year, in which courts-martial have been fewer, and the crimes of a less serious nature.
4. Sir Hope Grant further desires to place on record the high opinion he entertains of the discipline and efficiency of the Native Army of Madras. The continual foreign service to which every regiment is habituated tends very materially to their usefulness.
5. The Madras Army has not had much opportunity of late years of seeing active service, but portions of it have served under his Excellency both in Bengal and in China, where they behaved exceedingly well, especially the Sappers, who proved themselves to be good and steady workmen under fire. The conduct of the whole Native Army has been most exemplary.
6. The Commander-in-Chief begs to thank the officers of every arm in this Presidency for their zeal on all occasions.
7. Sir Hope Grant desires to thank Major-generals Williams, Armstrong, the Hon. A. A. Spencer, C.B., McCleverty, Duke, and McLeod, commanding divisions; as also the inspector of Royal Artillery, the brigadier-generals commanding brigades, and the officers commanding regiments, corps, and batteries, for the support they have given him in carrying out their duties.

8. He is also much indebted to the staff and heads of departments for the able assistance they have always given him, especially to Colonel Primrose, adjutant-general; to Lieut.-col. Woods, who was adjutant-general up to the time of the amalgamation of the staff; to Lieut.-col. Scott, quarter-master-general; to Col. Pritchard, judge-advocate-general; to Dr. Cole, principal inspector-general, Medical Department; and to Dr. Inglis, C.B., deputy inspector-general of her Majesty's hospitals.

Sir Hope Grant feels bound to add that the duties of the Ordnance and Commissariat Departments have been most effectually carried out; and he tenders his best thanks to Colonel Simpson and Colonel Hill, the heads of these two departments.

9. All reports from this date will be made to Lieutenant-General Sir J. Gaspard Le Marchant, G.C.M.G.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GOVERNOR.—It is rumoured that Sir W. Denison does not purpose to pass the present hot season on the Neigherries; but it is said to be his Excellency's intention to take up a house in Bangalore, where Lady Denison and family will reside, while he himself will be up and down occasionally.

THE BISHOP'S VISITATION TOUR.—The Right Reverend the Bishop of Madras has informed the Honourable the Governor in Council that he intends to commence, on Friday, 23rd June, a tour of visitation through a large part of the diocese, viz., the Ceded districts, Mysore, Malabar, Travancore, and Tinnevely, returning to Madras next February.

AN AMBITIOUS LADY.—We dare say but few of our readers ever heard of a potentate who styles himself Rajah of Sumpthur. Sumpthur is a petty raj in Central India, the chief of which having become insane, his Rane assumed charge of the affairs of the State, in trust for her minor son. The sweets of power once tasted are not easily laid aside—the Rane on her son's attaining his majority refused to abdicate, or to give up any of the authority she wielded. The matter was brought to the notice of the Viceroy, who, looking only to its merits, condemned the conduct of the ambitious lady, and instructed his representative in Central India to transfer the government to the young chief.

MESSES AND BANDS.—We fear that the days of these old established regimental institutions are numbered in the Madras Native Army; the following order, which appeared on the 6th instant, may be taken as a premonitory symptom of the early dissolution of Bands and Messes. "Officers commanding native infantry regiments will be good enough to send into the brigade office without delay, statements showing the debts and credits of their Regimental Mess and Band Fund on the 1st inst." A regiment without either a band or mess can hardly be called a regiment; any military man knows the influence these institutions have for good upon a corps, and much will be the regret, when they are swept away for aye and for ever. It is evident, however, that a regiment without officers cannot maintain in satisfactory working order institutions for whose existence a fair number of officers is necessary. The above order may be regarded, we think, as a preparatory step to the introduction of the irregular system.

THE REVENUE DEPARTMENT.—We hear that several great changes will soon take place in the Uncovenanted Branch of the Revenue Department. Government, it is said, have resolved upon removing from active service all such deputy collectors, thasildars, &c., as have served the requisite period to entitle them to pension, with the view of infusing new blood into the department. With this object, returns are to be called for of all super-annuated uncovenanted officials. If this resolution were put in force in the other departments of Government as well, much good would, no doubt, be the result.

A DEVOTED WIFE.—The Hurkaru quotes the following from some "Notes of a Tour in the Tributary Mehals," by Colonel Dalton, published in the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal:—In connection with Gangpore, the inhabitants of which seem to have a rather evil reputation as antrefois cannibals, we give a rather romantic story of a suttee that occurred fifty years ago. A Brahmin took a dislike to a girl he had just married, and turned her out of doors, a wedded maid. She took refuge with her parents, who were poor, and who soon after died, leaving her destitute; then she wandered from village to village subsisting on alms, and leading a wretched widowed life. Her husband married a second time, and sons and daughters were born to him and grew up about him, and in the fulness of years he died. His second wife had preceded him, so his corpse was placed alone on the funeral pile, and the torch was about to be applied to it, when a poor emaciated and meanly clad female stepped forward, and as the first, the faithful and only surviving wife of the deceased, claimed the right of suttee. Her request was complied with. Bathed, anointed, clothed, and adorned with flowers like a bride, she ascended the pile, and clinging to the corpse of the husband who had so cruelly discarded her, and for the first time in her life pressing her lips to his, the flames arose and their ashes were mingled together!

A "VICTIM" TO THE VIOLENT PASSIONS OF A NATIVE.—A correspondent of the Englishman makes the following cool remarks. The italics are our own:—"All who have the pleasure of his acquaintance will be sorry to learn that the surgeon in medical charge of Mussoorie has been so unfortunate as to fall a victim to the violent passions of a Native. Full particulars have not yet reached me, but it seems that the clever, kind-hearted doctor found it necessary to administer a slight blow with a cane to a native (moonshee); and the man, in a rage at the insult, or perhaps with a view of involving the doctor in a difficulty, committed suicide. This is the reason given for the rash act, and it remains to be proved whether it is the true one. An enquiry is going on, and an impartial investigation will doubtless be made, but I doubt if any culpability against the doctor can be proved; for if every European or Native is to be made answerable for the folly and villany of Asiatics, there will soon be no safety for anybody. I know a case not far from Delhi in which the manager of a large estate is said to have abused a respectable man to such an extent, that he threw himself into a well and was drowned; but this gentleman is still at large, and his conduct has not even been made the subject of enquiry, probably because it happened in his own elaka, and his serfs are too much afraid of him to say a word about it."

CEREMONY AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.—The Hindoo Patriot says:—"According to the Calcutta correspondent of the Times of India, Sir John Lawrence received, 'in slippers,' the deputation of the Chamber of Commerce on Export Duties. It appears it was this untoward incident which irritated the merchants so much. But they ought to have remembered that Sir John Lawrence used to receive greater men in that way while in the Punjab. When Chief Commissioner of the Punjab, he once received Maharajah Golab Sing with his shirt on." The latter assertion is somewhat ambiguously expressed. Was it the Rajah or Sir John Lawrence who had the shirt on? And in either case, are we to understand that his only garment was the one in question?

AN EASTERN SATIRIST ON WESTERN MANNERS.—The freedom and publicity of action allowed to Christian women must strike the true Asiatic as inexplicable. The Dnyanprakash, a Marathi paper translated by Native Opinion, publishes a letter thus caricaturing the European ideas on this subject. The writer, who signs himself Ghost, is made to say that the Queen is going to issue the following commands regarding the conduct of husband and wife towards each other. Every husband must bow twelve times to his wife the first thing in the morning. Next he should fetch water and bathe her, and having washed her clothes cook for the family. After that he should seat her in a becoming manner, and serve her food. He is then to give her Vida, and then care for his own stomach. The wife in her turn must kick him twelve times early every morning, and, making him work at the usual drudgery, go to office. Women are at perfect liberty to behave as they like. Adultery will not be reckoned sinful, neither will the Government look upon it as penal. The women are fully authorised to use the rod towards their husbands.

NEW SYSTEM OF WEATHER SIGNALS.—Government has at last awakened to a sense of something being necessary in a port like Calcutta to enable captains of ships to prepare for the heavy gales so often experienced. The master attendant has been directed to place himself in communication with the Meteorological committee appointed by Government. The object of this movement on the part of the authorities is said to be the establishment of a system of weather signals, to be carried out by the marine department in accordance with the suggestion of the committee. It is in contemplation also to turn to account the experience and observations of the officers in charge of the Saugor and False Point lighthouses, and those of the commanders of the light vessels. We trust the carrying of this idea into effect will meet with as few official delays and obstructions as possible.—Englishman.

ECONOMY IN INDIA is evidently at its wits end for victims, and for occasions on which it might do service to the State. The other day it prompted the Supreme Government to inquire why the salaries of the police magistrates in Calcutta had been raised from 800 to 1,500 rupees per mensem? Verily the question is one to be asked in all seriousness, and answered with the greatest possible gravity. The Bengal Government replied that the salaries had been gradually raised because it was found that properly qualified persons could not be had at the "former figure!" Mr. Beadon might have also added—and scarcely at the latter rate. 1,500 rupees per mensem is not a very large income for a barrister of any standing, unless he has no practice.—Englishman.

THE INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY.—The first quarterly inspection report of the Nulhattee and Azimgunge line does not speak favourably of the condition of the fencing, and indeed the whole seems to be a gingerbread affair—we mean, of course, on this particular line. Major Hovenden says:—"The passenger-carriages are of great length, and open throughout their length, somewhat like the American cars. They are not uncomfortable, but are deficient in roof ventilation. Each carriage runs on six wheels. They are somewhat flimsy in construction, but appear to answer very well for a low rate of speed. The goods-wagons are of various patterns, having been constructed at various times as experiments, with a view of ascertaining how the requisite strength and capacity could be obtained with the smallest amount of dead weight and at the least cost.—Hurkaru."

THE RESIDUE OF THE REBELS IN OUDE would seem to be in but a bad plight. When the late Dundoopt Nana Rao, Umer Singh, and Huzrut Mahal first sought an asylum in Nepal they led about 1,700 men, women, and children with them into exile. Disease and privation have done their work in reducing the little band of rebels; and recently cholera was reported as having broken out amongst the few surviving. At present they number but twenty-one, and to these we think the Government would do well to hold out some hope of amnesty.—Hurkaru.

HONOURS AT A DISCOUNT.—We (Hurkaru) hear of a strange sequel to the dissatisfaction expressed by the Goorkhas at the Indian mutiny medal. It would seem that the Nepalese think but little of what the medal is meant to typify, whilst they do set considerable store on the actual value of the reward to be given them. They have lately suggested that, if the Government have no objection, they would be glad to receive the value of the 17,000 medals distributed amongst them, in Terai lands, and that, of course, if the Government agree to this, they would at once return all the medals. We trust the lesson will not be thrown away.

A FRENCH RAILWAY PROJECT REJECTED BY GOVERNMENT.—Sir Charles Wood has refused to give any assistance to a French project of a railway from Pondichery to Tripatore on the Madras line, because it would divert to Pondichery much of the traffic which now goes to Madras, and the Madras line does not nearly pay the guaranteed interest. The collector of South Arcot and the Madras Government were anxious that the line should be made. We hope yet to see the French undertake it on their own account, when their territory has been increased by land given in exchange for Chandernagore.—Friend of India.

MADRAS.

FAREWELL ORDER OF SIR HOPE GRANT.

As our readers are already aware, the late Commander-in-Chief and Lady Grant embarked for Europe by the last steamer, bearing with them the heart-felt good wishes of the whole community of Madras, where they were much respected and liked for their many eminent qualities, and for the good that they took delight in doing. Prior to his departure Sir Hope Grant issued a farewell general order to the army, in which he spoke of its discipline and efficiency in the highest terms. A valedictory address was presented to Lady Grant and himself by the society of Madras, and they are requested to sit for their portraits when they reach home, which will be fitly placed in the Lawrence Asylum at Ootacamund.

1. Lieut.-governor Sir J. Hope Grant, G.C.B., having been appointed by her Majesty quarter-master-general of the forces, and Lieut.-general Sir J. Gaspard LeMerchant, G.C.M.G., having arrived to relieve him of his command, his Excellency bids farewell to the officers and soldiers who have served under him during the last three years and a-half.
2. When he assumed command of the Madras army in 1861, the amalgamation of the local European forces with the British army had just been ordered, and in the following year it was carried into effect. Sir Hope Grant cannot forbear from noticing the excellent spirit and activity displayed by all ranks of the Artillery and the new line regiments in carrying out this important measure. Very great changes were necessary to assimilate the Artillery with the old Royal Artillery, so as to secure perfect uniformity; these have been most successfully effected.
3. The conduct of the whole of the European troops has been very good during his Excellency's command, but especially so during the past year, in which courts-martial have been fewer, and the crimes of a less serious nature.
4. Sir Hope Grant further desires to place on record the high opinion he entertains of the discipline and efficiency of the Native Army of Madras. The continual foreign service to which every regiment is habituated tends very materially to their usefulness.
5. The Madras Army has not had much opportunity of late years of seeing active service, but portions of it have served under his Excellency both in Bengal and in China, where they behaved exceedingly well, especially the Sappers, who proved themselves to be good and steady workmen under fire. The conduct of the whole Native Army has been most exemplary.
6. The Commander-in-Chief begs to thank the officers of every arm in this Presidency for their zeal on all occasions.
7. Sir Hope Grant desires to thank Major-generals Williams, Armstrong, the Hon. A. A. Spencer, C.B., McCleverty, Duke, and McLeod, commanding divisions; as also the inspector of Royal Artillery, the brigadier-generals commanding brigades, and the officers commanding regiments, corps, and batteries, for the support they have given him in carrying out their duties.

8. He is also much indebted to the staff and heads of departments for the able assistance they have always given him, especially to Colonel Primrose, adjutant-general; to Lieut.-col. Woods, who was adjutant-general up to the time of the amalgamation of the staff; to Lieut.-col. Scott, quarter-master-general; to Col. Pritchard, judge-advocate-general; to Dr. Cole, principal inspector-general; to Dr. Inglis, C.B., deputy inspector-general of her Majesty's hospitals.

Sir Hope Grant feels bound to add that the duties of the Ordnance and Commissariat Departments have been most effectually carried out; and he tenders his best thanks to Colonel Simpson and Colonel Hill, the heads of these two departments.

9. All reports from this date will be made to Lieutenant-General Sir J. Gaspard Le Merchant, G.C.M.G.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GOVERNOR.—It is rumoured that Sir W. Denison does not purpose to pass the present hot season on the Neigherries; but it is said to be his Excellency's intention to take up a house in Bangalore, where Lady Denison and family will reside, while he himself will be up and down occasionally.

THE BISHOP'S VISITATION TOUR.—The Right Reverend the Bishop of Madras has informed the Honourable the Governor in Council that he intends to commence, on Friday, 23rd June, a tour of visitation through a large part of the diocese, viz., the Ceded districts, Mysore, Malabar, Travancore, and Tinnevely, returning to Madras next February.

AN AMBITIOUS LADY.—We dare say but few of our readers ever heard of a potentate who styles himself Rajah of Sumpthur. Sumpthur is a petty raj in Central India, the chief of which having become insane, his Rane assumed charge of the affairs of the State, in trust for her minor son. The sweets of power once tasted are not easily laid aside—the Rane on her son's attaining his majority refused to abdicate, or to give up any of the authority she wielded. The matter was brought to the notice of the Viceroy, who, looking only to its merits, condemned the conduct of the ambitious lady, and instructed his representative in Central India to transfer the government to the young chief.

MESSES AND BANDS.—We fear that the days of these old established regimental institutions are numbered in the Madras Native Army; the following order, which appeared on the 6th instant, may be taken as a premonitory symptom of the early dissolution of Bands and Messes. "Officers commanding native infantry regiments will be good enough to send into the brigade office without delay, statements showing the debts and credits of their Regimental Mess and Band Fund on the 1st inst." A regiment without either a band or mess can hardly be called a regiment; any military man knows the influence these institutions have for good upon a corps, and much will be the regret, when they are swept away for aye and for ever. It is evident, however, that a regiment without officers cannot maintain in satisfactory working order institutions for whose existence a fair number of officers is necessary. The above order may be regarded, we think, as a preparatory step to the introduction of the irregular system.

THE REVENUE DEPARTMENT.—We hear that several great changes will soon take place in the Uncovenanted Branch of the Revenue Department. Government, it is said, have resolved upon removing from active service all such deputy collectors, thasildars, &c., as have served the requisite period to entitle them to pension, with the view of infusing new blood into the department. With this object, returns are to be called for of all super-annuated uncovenanted officials. If this resolution were put in force in the other departments of Government as well, much good would, no doubt, be the result.

A DEVOTED WIFE.—The Hurkaru quotes the following from some "Notes of a Tour in the Tributary Mehals," by Colonel Dalton, published in the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal:—In connection with Gangpore, the inhabitants of which seem to have a rather evil reputation as antrefois cannibals, we give a rather romantic story of a suttee that occurred fifty years ago. A Brahmin took a dislike to a girl he had just married, and turned her out of doors, a wedded maid. She took refuge with her parents, who were poor, and who soon after died, leaving her destitute; then she wandered from village to village subsisting on alms, and leading a wretched widowed life. Her husband married a second time, and sons and daughters were born to him and grew up about him, and in the fulness of years he died. His second wife had preceded him, so his corpse was placed alone on the funeral pile, and the torch was about to be applied to it, when a poor emaciated and meanly clad female stepped forward, and as the first, the faithful and only surviving wife of the deceased, claimed the right of suttee. Her request was complied with. Bathed, anointed, clothed, and adorned with flowers like a bride, she ascended the pile, and clinging to the corpse of the husband who had so cruelly discarded her, and for the first time in her life pressing her lips to his, the flames arose and their ashes were mingled together!

A "VICTIM" TO THE VIOLENT PASSIONS OF A NATIVE.—A correspondent of the Englishman makes the following cool remarks. The italics are our own:—"All who have the pleasure of his acquaintance will be sorry to learn that the surgeon in medical charge of Mussoorie has been so unfortunate as to fall a victim to the violent passions of a Native. Full particulars have not yet reached me, but it seems that the clever, kind-hearted doctor found it necessary to administer a slight blow with a cane to a native (moonshee); and the man, in a rage at the insult, or perhaps with a view of involving the doctor in a difficulty, committed suicide. This is the reason given for the rash act, and it remains to be proved whether it is the true one. An enquiry is going on, and an impartial investigation will doubtless be made, but I doubt if any culpability against the doctor can be proved; for if every European or Native is to be made answerable for the folly and villany of Asiatics, there will soon be no safety for anybody. I know a case not far from Delhi in which the manager of a large estate is said to have abused a respectable man to such an extent, that he threw himself into a well and was drowned; but this gentleman is still at large, and his conduct has not even been made the subject of enquiry, probably because it happened in his own elaka, and his serfs are too much afraid of him to say a word about it."

CEREMONY AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.—The Hindoo Patriot says:—"According to the Calcutta correspondent of the Times of India, Sir John Lawrence received, 'in slippers,' the deputation of the Chamber of Commerce on Export Duties. It appears it was this untoward incident which irritated the merchants so much. But they ought to have remembered that Sir John Lawrence used to receive greater men in that way while in the Punjab. When Chief Commissioner of the Punjab, he once received Maharajah Golab Sing with his shirt on." The latter assertion is somewhat ambiguously expressed. Was it the Rajah or Sir John Lawrence who had the shirt on? And in either case, are we to understand that his only garment was the one in question?

AN EASTERN SATIRIST ON WESTERN MANNERS.—The freedom and publicity of action allowed to Christian women must strike the true Asiatic as inexplicable. The Dnyanprakash, a Marathi paper translated by Native Opinion, publishes a letter thus caricaturing the European ideas on this subject. The writer, who signs himself Ghost, is made to say that the Queen is going to issue the following commands regarding the conduct of husband and wife towards each other. Every husband must bow twelve times to his wife the first thing in the morning. Next he should fetch water and bathe her, and having washed her clothes cook for the family. After that he should seat her in a becoming manner, and serve her food. He is then to give her Vida, and then care for his own stomach. The wife in her turn must kick him twelve times early every morning, and, making him work at the usual drudgery, go to office. Women are at perfect liberty to behave as they like. Adultery will not be reckoned sinful, neither will the Government look upon it as penal. The women are fully authorised to use the rod towards their husbands.

NEW SYSTEM OF WEATHER SIGNALS.—Government has at last awakened to a sense of something being necessary in a port like Calcutta to enable captains of ships to prepare for the heavy gales so often experienced. The master attendant has been directed to place himself in communication with the Meteorological committee appointed by Government. The object of this movement on the part of the authorities is said to be the establishment of a system of weather signals, to be carried out by the marine department in accordance with the suggestion of the committee. It is in contemplation also to turn to account the experience and observations of the officers in charge of the Saugor and False Point lighthouses, and those of the commanders of the light vessels. We trust the carrying of this idea into effect will meet with as few official delays and obstructions as possible.—Englishman.

ECONOMY IN INDIA is evidently at its wits end for victims, and for occasions on which it might do service to the State. The other day it prompted the Supreme Government to inquire why the salaries of the police magistrates in Calcutta had been raised from 800 to 1,500 rupees per mensem? Verily the question is one to be asked in all seriousness, and answered with the greatest possible gravity. The Bengal Government replied that the salaries had been gradually raised because it was found that properly qualified persons could not be had at the "former figure!" Mr. Beadon might have also added—and scarcely at the latter rate. 1,500 rupees per mensem is not a very large income for a barrister of any standing, unless he has no practice.—Englishman.

THE INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY.—The first quarterly inspection report of the Nulhatee and Azimgunge line does not speak favourably of the condition of the fencing, and indeed the whole seems to be a gingerbread affair—we mean, of course, on this particular line. Major Hovenden says:—"The passenger-carriages are of great length, and open throughout their length, somewhat like the American cars. They are not uncomfortable, but are deficient in roof ventilation. Each carriage runs on six wheels. They are somewhat flimsy in construction, but appear to answer very well for a low rate of speed. The goods-wagons are of various patterns, having been constructed at various times as experiments, with a view of ascertaining how the requisite strength and capacity could be obtained with the smallest amount of dead weight and at the least cost.—Hurkaru."

THE RESIDUE OF THE REBELS IN OUDE would seem to be in but a bad plight. When the late Dundoopt Nana Rao, Umer Singh, and Huzrut Mahal first sought an asylum in Nepal they led about 1,700 men, women, and children with them into exile. Disease and privation have done their work in reducing the little band of rebels; and recently cholera was reported as having broken out amongst the few surviving. At present they number but twenty-one, and to these we think the Government would do well to hold out some hope of amnesty.—Hurkaru.

HONOURS AT A DISCOUNT.—We (Hurkaru) hear of a strange sequel to the dissatisfaction expressed by the Goorkhas at the Indian mutiny medal. It would seem that the Nepalese think but little of what the medal is meant to typify, whilst they do set considerable store on the actual value of the reward to be given them. They have lately suggested that, if the Government have no objection, they would be glad to receive the value of the 17,000 medals distributed amongst them, in Terai lands, and that, of course, if the Government agree to this, they would at once return all the medals. We trust the lesson will not be thrown away.

A FRENCH RAILWAY PROJECT REJECTED BY GOVERNMENT.—Sir Charles Wood has refused to give any assistance to a French project of a railway from Pondichery to Tripatore on the Madras line, because it would divert to Pondichera much of the traffic which now goes to Madras, and the Madras line does not nearly pay the guaranteed interest. The collector of South Arcot and the Madras Government were anxious that the line should be made. We hope yet to see the French undertake it on their own account, when their territory has been increased by land given in exchange for Chandernagore.—Friend of India.

MADRAS.

FAREWELL ORDER OF SIR HOPE GRANT.

As our readers are already aware, the late Commander-in-Chief and Lady Grant embarked for Europe by the last steamer, bearing with them the heart-felt good wishes of the whole community of Madras, where they were much respected and liked for their many eminent qualities, and for the good that they took delight in doing. Prior to his departure Sir Hope Grant issued a farewell general order to the army, in which he spoke of its discipline and efficiency in the highest terms. A valedictory address was presented to Lady Grant and himself by the society of Madras, and they are requested to sit for their portraits when they reach home, which will be fitly placed in the Lawrence Asylum at Ootacamund.

1. Lieut.-governor Sir J. Hope Grant, G.C.B., having been appointed by her Majesty quarter-master-general of the forces, and Lieut.-general Sir J. Gaspard LeMarchant, G.C.M.G., having arrived to relieve him of his command, his Excellency bids farewell to the officers and soldiers who have served under him during the last three years and a-half.
2. When he assumed command of the Madras army in 1861, the amalgamation of the local European forces with the British army had just been ordered, and in the following year it was carried into effect. Sir Hope Grant cannot forbear from noticing the excellent spirit and activity displayed by all ranks of the Artillery and the new line regiments in carrying out this important measure. Very great changes were necessary to assimilate the Artillery with the old Royal Artillery, so as to secure perfect uniformity; these have been most successfully effected.
3. The conduct of the whole of the European troops has been very good during his Excellency's command, but especially so during the past year, in which courts-martial have been fewer, and the crimes of a less serious nature.
4. Sir Hope Grant further desires to place on record the high opinion he entertains of the discipline and efficiency of the Native Army of Madras. The continual foreign service to which every regiment is habituated tends very materially to their usefulness.
5. The Madras Army has not had much opportunity of late years of seeing active service, but portions of it have served under his Excellency both in Bengal and in China, where they behaved exceedingly well, especially the Sappers, who proved themselves to be good and steady workmen under fire. The conduct of the whole Native Army has been most exemplary.
6. The Commander-in-Chief begs to thank the officers of every arm in this Presidency for their zeal on all occasions.
7. Sir Hope Grant desires to thank Major-generals Williams, Armstrong, the Hon. A. A. Spencer, C.B., McCleverty, Duke, and McLeod, commanding divisions; as also the inspector of Royal Artillery, and the brigadier-generals commanding brigades, and the officers commanding regiments, corps, and batteries, for the support they have given him in carrying out their duties.

8. He is also much indebted to the staff and heads of departments for the able assistance they have always given him, especially to Colonel Primrose, adjutant-general; to Lieut.-col. Woods, who was adjutant-general up to the time of the amalgamation of the staff; to Lieut.-col. Scott, quarter-master-general; to Col. Pritchard, judge-advocate-general; to Dr. Cole, principal inspector-general, Medical Department; and to Dr. Inglis, C.B., deputy inspector-general of her Majesty's hospitals.

Sir Hope Grant feels bound to add that the duties of the Ordnance and Commissariat Departments have been most effectually carried out; and he tenders his best thanks to Colonel Simpson and Colonel Hill, the heads of these two departments.

9. All reports from this date will be made to Lieutenant-General Sir J. Gaspard Le Marchant, G.C.M.G.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GOVERNOR.—It is rumoured that Sir W. Denison does not purpose to pass the present hot season on the Neilgherries; but it is said to be his Excellency's intention to take up a house in Bangalore, where Lady Denison and family will reside, while he himself will be up and down occasionally.

THE BISHOP'S VISITATION TOUR.—The Right Reverend the Bishop of Madras has informed the Honourable the Governor in Council that he intends to commence, on Friday, 23rd June, a tour of visitation through a large part of the diocese, viz., the Ceded districts, Mysore, Malabar, Travancore, and Tinnevely, returning to Madras next February.

AN AMBITIOUS LADY.—We dare say but few of our readers ever heard of a potentate who styles himself Rajah of Sumpthur. Sumpthur is a petty raj in Central India, the chief of which having become insane, his Ranees assumed charge of the affairs of the State, in trust for her minor son. The sweets of power once tasted are not easily laid aside—the Ranees on her son's attaining his majority refused to abdicate, or to give up any of the authority she wielded. The matter was brought to the notice of the Viceroy, who, looking only to its merits, condemned the conduct of the ambitious lady, and instructed his representative in Central India to transfer the government to the young chief.

MESSES AND BANDS.—We fear that the days of these old established regimental institutions are numbered in the Madras Native Army; the following order, which appeared on the 6th instant, may be taken as a premonitory symptom of the early dissolution of Bands and Messes. "Officers commanding native infantry regiments will be good enough to send into the brigade office without delay, statements showing the debts and credits of their Regimental Mess and Band Fund on the 1st inst." A regiment without either a band or mess can hardly be called a regiment; any military man knows the influence these institutions have for good upon a corps, and much will be the regret, when they are swept away for aye and for ever. It is evident, however, that a regiment without officers cannot maintain in satisfactory working order institutions for whose existence a fair number of officers is necessary. The above order may be regarded, we think, as a preparatory step to the introduction of the irregular system.

THE REVENUE DEPARTMENT.—We hear that several great changes will soon take place in the Uncovenanted Branch of the Revenue Department. Government, it is said, have resolved upon removing from active service all such deputy collectors, thasildars, &c., as have served the requisite period to entitle them to pension, with the view of infusing new blood into the department. With this object, returns are to be called for of all super-annuated uncovenanted officials. If this resolution were put in force in the other departments of Government as well, much good would, no doubt, be the result.

CHOLERA, we regret to hear, is raging fearfully at Bellary and the neighbourhood.

FREIGHTS.

Cotton to London and Liverpool.—£1. 10s. to £2. 5s.
Skins, £1. 17s. 6d. to £2. 7s. 6d.

STOCK AND SHARE MARKET.—The demand for money continues very slack, and loans are readily obtainable at 6 per cent. on the deposit of Government Securities. Government paper is in little demand, and is slightly weaker. We quote Five-and-a-Half per Cents., 109 to 110; Five per Cents., 102½ to 103½; and Four per Cents., 89½ to 90½. Bank of Madras shares have also declined in value, and are now quoted at 75 per cent. premium, without buyers.

IMPORTS.—There has been a moderate inquiry for goods during the fortnight, and transactions have been on a fair scale. Our market has been prejudicially influenced, however, by transshipments from Bombay and Calcutta, and the apprehension of further supplies from those quarters has made the dealers less liberal in their offers during the last day or two.

EXPORTS.—The demand for cotton has gradually increased during the fortnight, and fair western has advanced from Rs. 150 to Rs. 155 per candy. The dealers are supplying the market very cautiously, and are unwilling to enter into large contracts at current rates. The quantity sold during the fortnight has not been large, though the transactions have enabled the dealers to advance their rates from Rs. 15 to Rs. 20 per candy.

EXCHANGE.—Rates still tending downwards. Credits have been placed for this mail at 2s. 3-16d. to 2s. 0½d. Documents at 2½, and Bank Bills at 2s. 1-16d.

FREIGHTS.—There is no current demand for tonnage, yet the supply is almost daily increasing. Rates are almost nominal.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE MAHARAJAH OF CASHMERE.—The Maharajah of Cashmere has, we hear, requested that the number of visitors to the happy valley be limited to two hundred. The difficulty is about coolies. His Highness recognises the fact that very considerable profit to trade accrues every year from the increasing number of visitors. The visitors have augmented at the rate of twenty-five per annum, since the days when the drama of Adam and Eve used to be played in the gardens of Shalimar, to the delight of Goolab Singh, who liked to exhibit "Ye manners and customs of ye English" to the best advantage. It is a very sensible and reasonable request upon the part of the Maharajah, and likely to be acceded to. Some names appear steadily every year whose owners might be requested to give way in favour of those who have not seen the valley. One thing is certain, and that is, that sport has materially diminished, partly under the energies of British sportsmen, and partly under the orders of the authorities, who have as much game as possible killed in the winter in order to diminish the attraction.—Delhi Gazette.

CHINA.

We take the following from the China Mail of May 30th:—

"From Pekin we learn that considerable satisfaction has followed the reinstatement of Prince Kung; he seems to have possessed the confidence of all excepting a few designing people. In the private correspondence of Sir F. Bruce his course of action during four years has been favourably pointed out to the home Government.

"From Tientsin, Newchang, and Cheefoo there is no news of importance.

"From Shanghai and the Yang-tze the intelligence is exciting. At Hankow the Imperialist troops have revolted, owing to arrears of pay, and now threaten the foreign settlements. Two of her Majesty's gun boats have given what protection they can, and in the meantime matters are steady. It has quickly become evident to the Chinese of all provinces that Europeans are sure to be protected, so that our frequent alarms for their safety invariably prove needless. What this will lead to in China remains to be seen; in the meantime it is an established fact that the English power is not to be despised.

"Chinkiang continues to attract favourable attention as a rising port of trade. There is nothing in the way of news from the place, unless it be the decidedly growing conviction that its facilities for trade in different respects will sooner or later place it above Shanghai.

"From Nankin we do not hear of much progress being made in the way of preparing the place as a trading mart. There are some dim rumours to the effect that there will be a second call upon Tseng-Kwo-fan to suppress rebels. San-ko-lin-Sin is said to have suffered different reverses in the north, and perhaps those continued acts of rebellion are worthy of consideration."

The subjoined is from the North China Market Report:—

SOOCHOW.—It was perhaps fortunate that Li Futai did not comply with the suggestions thrown out at the time of Kwo Sung-ling's departure for Fukien, by sending his artillery to co-operate with the force investing Chang-chow, as it appears likely that the governor will find service for his batteries nearer home. Should the Nien-fei succeed in capturing Huei-an, and thence descend to Yang-chow, the Grand Canal traffic will be in their hands, and Chinkiang may suffer in consequence. So far foreigners are interested, but the Court of Pekin is likely to feel deeply any injury to which the great artery of the empire may be subjected by the insurgents. In such a case Li Futai could secure immunity only by bringing such a force into the field as might ensure success, while at any rate it would prove his devotion to the Imperial cause. The artillery is the most important branch of the disciplined Chinese army now in this province.

"From Shanghai, there is nothing to record in the way of political news.

"The rebels are said to have evacuated Chang-chow, so that our hints as to the speedy conclusion of the rebellion, have proved correct.

"From the other ports we have no news of importance.

"From Japan there is nothing worth reporting. Those who know Sir Harry Parkes are of opinion that he will make an excellent Japanese minister."

CEYLON.

The C Colombo Observer of June 17 contains the following:—

"The Committee on Military Expenditure will speedily be at work we presume. Its composition is to be as follows:—

Hon. R. T. Pennefather, Auditor-general, President; C. P. Layard, Esq., Government Agent, W.P. Member; W. J. MacCarthy, Esq., Registrar-general, do.; Alfred Wise, Esq., Chairman Chamber of Commerce, do.; Colonel Byrde, of Messrs. H. C. Byrde and Son, do.; C. B. Smith, Esq., Manager Ceylon Company (Limited), do. (The above have been appointed by his Excellency the Governor.) Dr. Fraser, Inspector-general of Hospitals, do.; Colonel Laffan, Royal Engineers, do.; and Deputy-commissary-general Fonblanque, do.;—with Mr. J. F. Dickson, it is said, as Secretary of the Commission.

"The commission, besides taking full evidence from all competent local authorities, will travel to different parts of the island, inspecting fortifications, barracks, &c.—probably, also, to Newera Ellia and Horton's Plains, to judge of their merits as Sanatoria.

"The Ceylon League has received numerous adhesions, and a public meeting is to be held on Wednesday, June 21.

"The railway system is to be extended, and altogether there are prospects of progress for the Colony. As yet the commercial crisis which is raging in Bombay has not reacted disastrously on Ceylon. Speculators in cotton have suffered, but the position of our own staple article is good. The burst of the Monsoon is over for the present and the weather is again not only hot but dry. There is some sickness but no epidemic.

"The present steamer takes from our shores, finally, we are sorry to believe, a Christian Missionary whose first arrival dates so far back as forty years ago. We allude to the Rev. R. S. Hardy who, after an absence of some fifteen years, returned to the island late in 1862, on a mission which he has well and thoroughly accomplished, that of re-organising the operations of the important Wesleyan Mission to the Singalese, assimilating the colonial to the home work. Mr. Hardy, besides his labours as an indefatigable Christian missionary, has taken a high place in the ranks of oriental literature."

The Northern Assam Tea Company (Limited) have this day paid, in terms of contract, the second instalment (£20,000) of the purchase money for "the north and eastern divisions" of the Assam Company's estates.

CAVALRY REMOUNTS.—We regret to learn that the difficulty of obtaining cavalry remounts from the dealers who come down annually from beyond our North-west Frontier has this year, proved greater than ever—a circumstance, no doubt, to be attributed in part to the prohibitive measures lately enforced by Dost Mahomed in his own territory. At the annual Hurdwar Fair only some twelve or thirteen fitting animals could be selected by the Government Committee; at the late Umritsur gathering none. We have not yet come to that refinement in long ranges that cavalry can be dispensed with, and we imagine that Government measures for ensuring a suitable supply of cattle cannot be long delayed. We incline to believe that with proper arrangements for transport, good walers could be largely imported, and at even less than the cost of animals from the existing Government studs, the productions from which seem generally somewhat deficient in quality, and, certainly, insufficient in quantity for the need.—Pioneer.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

NEW PASSAGE WARRANT.

A ROYAL WARRANT, dated the 2nd of January, 1865, and in supersession of that of the 1st of July, 1848, concerning the grant of passages and passage allowance to officers of the army, has just been published in India. It is to be observed in regard to all officers proceeding to or from the colonies, and is to be applicable to all officers, whether of the staff, or of regiments, brigades, and batteries, who shall hereafter embark on service in the East Indies. The principal provisions of the new regulations as affecting Indian service are as follows:—

Officers are entitled to passages at the public expense.—1. If proceeding to serve upon the general, medical, or civil staff of a foreign station, or returning therefrom in consequence of reduction or removal; or if proceeding with or upon the first appointment of the general officer to whose personal staff they belong, or returning in consequence of such general officer ceasing to hold his appointment. 2. If attached to and ordered to proceed with their regiments, or in charge of detachments of their regiments. 3. If proceeding to fill up vacancies occasioned by death, by promotion, by augmentation, by resignation, by dismissal, or by the exchange, removal, or retirement of officers who have returned home on account of ill-health, who have been ordered home on duty, or who have served two years at the depots of their regiments. 4. If ordered to proceed upon courts-martial, or upon any other special public duty upon which their presence is considered absolutely necessary, or if returning after the performance of such public duty. 5. If returning home in consequence of regular regimental promotion, or promotion to the rank of general officer, of promotion under the warrant of October 6, 1854, of being placed on retired full pay under the warrant of Oct. 14, 1858, or on half-pay under the warrants of Dec. 17, 1855, and December 2, 1857, or of promotion to the medical staff, or promotion in the civil branches of the army. 6. If ordered home to undergo instruction at the staff college or school of musketry, to join the regimental depots of their regiments in their regular tour of duty, and actually joining such depots without obtaining previous leave of absence. 7. If returning home on leave on account of ill-health upon the report and recommendation of a medical board, or if returning to their stations after the expiration of such leave. 8. The officer commanding at a foreign station, on being satisfied of the inability of an officer removed from or dismissed the service for misconduct to provide his own passage may use his discretion in ordering a passage for him at the public expense, a report of every such case being made to the Secretary of State for War. 9. An officer who, on the expiration of his leave of absence on private affairs, is ordered to do duty with detachments will be allowed cabin accommodation, paying only the usual contribution for messing. 10. An officer who, whilst at home on leave of absence on his private affairs, shall subsequently do duty for two years with the regimental depot shall, when ordered to rejoin his regiment, be allowed a passage at the public expense. Every officer who entered the store service prior to January 1, 1857, and every barrack-master who entered the service prior to Feb. 7, 1860, will, when entitled to a passage at the public expense, be also allowed free conveyance for his wife and children, subject only to the regulated charges for messing. Schoolmasters (not being superintending schoolmasters) ordered to proceed by sea from one station to another will, with their families, be entitled to intermediate or second-class passages at the public expense, and when so accommodated will be subject to deduction for rations at the rate of 1s. a day for himself, 4d. a day for his wife, and 2d. a day for each child. When circumstances necessitate his being provided with accommodation inferior to intermediate or second-class he will only be subject to the usual stoppage of 6d. a day for rations.

Officers are not entitled to passages at the public expense. If returning home on resignation, or in consequence of removal for misconduct, or of dismissal by the sentence of court-martial, except as specified in clause No. 8. If exchanging with other officers for their mutual convenience, if coming home on their private affairs, or if returning to their stations on the expiration of their leave of absence upon private affairs. Officers returning home on their private affairs will be required to sign the declaration prescribed by the regulations, and will, if when in this country they exchange or retire from the service, be liable to pay the expense of their successors' passages to the stations from which they have returned. Officers retiring from the service by the sale of their commissions, will, unless they have served 25 years on full pay, be liable to the expense of their successors' passages. An officer entitled to conveyance at the public expense must, when required to proceed on foreign service, apply to the proper military authority to be provided with a passage. When a passage cannot be provided on board a vessel of war, troop ship, transport, or other Government vessel, or a freight ship or contract steam vessel, the regulated allowance of passage money, according to the following scale, will be issued to an officer on his producing a certificate from the master or owner of the vessel in which he intends to embark that he has engaged his own passage, and that of his servant or servants when entitled to conveyance for them at the public expense, and if proceeding by a steamer, specifying the amount of passage money, &c., agreed to be paid.

The rates of allowance in the latter case are as follows for the respective passages of an officer and his servant:—

Mauritius: by steamer, £94 and £49; by sailing vessel, £54 and £81.

Ceylon: by steamer, £90 and £47; by sailing vessel, £68 and £23.

Bombay: by steamer, £90 and £47; by sailing vessel, £87 and £23.

Madras: by steamer, £94 and £49; by sailing vessel, £87 and £23.

Calcutta: by steamer, £98 and £52; by sailing vessel, £87 and £23.

It is further provided that:—

The allowance granted will be in each case that for the particular route and description of vessel (steam or sailing) by which the officer may be ordered to proceed; and in the case of steam conveyance being authorised, the amount granted will be the actual expense incurred by the officer, less the usual contribution for messing for the period of the voyage, provided such amount does not exceed the rate specified in the foregoing scale.

General officers will be permitted to embark three servants at the public expense. Every staff officer of the rank of field officer, and every regimental field officer of cavalry, artillery, and infantry, who is required to keep a horse or horses for the performance of his public duties, will be allowed conveyance for two servants. Officers below the rank of field officer (with the exception of subalterns) will be allowed a passage for one servant; but when horses are actually embarked, staff officers and district and regimental rifle instructors holding the rank of captain will be allowed passages for two servants, and those holding the rank of lieutenant and ensign will be allowed a passage for one only. Field officers of the Royal Engineers will be permitted to embark two servants, and those below that rank one only. Medical, commissariat, store, and other officers of the civil departments of the army will be allowed to embark servants according to their relative military rank. The permission to embark servants will in all cases be contingent on the claims of the officers themselves to free passages, and allowances, for the passages of servants will only be issued for those actually embarked and accompanying them. Regimental officers having brevet rank will be entitled to allowances for their servants according to their regimental rank only. If female instead of male servants are embarked with married officers when accompanied by their wives, the difference in expense (if any) will be charged to the officers. Passages from port to port in the same military command may be provided for officers' civil servants actually embarked, not exceeding the number for which allowances are permitted to be drawn.

The allowance to be granted to general officers permitted to engage their own passages will be the actual and necessary expenses for the conveyance of themselves and families after abating their own mess contribution, and the expenses of messing their families for the period of the voyage; and the claims for reimbursement must be substantiated by documents showing the expenses actually incurred, and the several items of the charges.

When an officer shall have returned home, or shall have proceeded from one foreign station to another, or from one port to another, within the same command, under circumstances entitling him to a passage at the public expense, the Secretary of State for War, upon being furnished with the prescribed certificates, will communicate to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that such officer was entitled to be accommodated in a Government or contract steam vessel; or if he proceeded in a private trader, the Secretary of State for War will recommend that the actual sum which his passage may have cost may be granted him, provided it do not exceed the amount of the regulated allowance.

There are a variety of provisions in respect to the conveyance of horses, baggage, &c., and to other contingencies which need not be here enumerated. The amount of messing contributions are of more general application. These are:—For a general officer 8s. a day, and for officers under that rank 3s. 6d.; but when wine or beer are not included in the mess, the amount will be 2s. 6d. only. The officers will also be subject to a deduction of 9d. a day for each of his civil male servants. They will also be required to pay for the messing of their wives and families on board hired vessels at these rates:—For the chief cabin, ladies, 6s. 8d. a day; children under sixteen years, 3s. 4d. and 2s. 6d.; female servants, 2s. For the second class cabins the rates are one half, except as regards the servants, for whom the same charge is made in both cases.

THE GOVERNMENT REPORT UPON RAILWAYS IN INDIA.

MR. JULAND DANVERS' report upon railways in India for 1864-65 has just been issued by the department. In the language of critics it may be called a welcome addition to Blue-book literature, being carefully and compactly compiled, and affording very complete information in very accessible space. The map by which it is accompanied, too, gives at a glance an idea of the progress of the railway system which in a few years we may hope to see in a perfect condition.

At the present time the passenger arriving at Bombay may proceed by rail in three different directions—due north to Ahmedabad, north-east about half way to Jubbulpore, a branch of which line, from Bhosawal, will take him part of the way to Nagpore; or south-east as far as Sholapore, towards Madras. Or, landing at Beypore, lower down on the west coast, he may go direct to Madras, while proceeding from that city he will find direct communication to Bangalore, another branch taking him the greater part of the way to Cuddapore, and very shortly to be complete. From Candery, on the east coast, below Madras, a cross line is in progress, to join the main line to Beypore, at Coimbatore, being open now as far as Trichinopoly. At Calcutta commences the main line to the north-west, and besides a branch to Canningtown, the new port of the Mutlah, there are lines in course of completion to Dacca and Bahar, part of the line being open in either case. To the north-west the main line is complete, with the exception of the bridge across the Jumna, to Agra and Delhi. Proceeding still upwards we find the railway from Umritsur down to Lahore and Mooltan, the latter section just opened to the public. Thence the Indus flotilla carries the traveller further to the south-west, to Kotree, whence another railway takes him to Kurrachee, or lower down to the mouth of the Indus.

On the 1st of January, 1864, the length of line open in India for traffic was 2,519 miles. This has since been increased to 3,186½ by the addition of 448½ miles previous to, and of 218½ since, the 31st of December last—exclusive of 26 miles of lighter railway constituted by the Indian Branch Company, to which we shall presently refer. About 1,700 miles remain to be finished to complete the system of guaranteed lines now in course of construction. A few years will, it is anticipated, elapse before the whole will be ready for traffic. Sections of considerable length, and embracing works of great magnitude, such as those between Delhi and Umritsur, and between Sholapore and Cuddapah, on the line from Bombay to Madras, have only been recently commenced. Those also between Allahabad and Jubbulpore on the East Indian Railway, and between Jubbulpore and Bhosawal on the Great Indian Peninsula, which are required to complete the communication between Calcutta and Bombay, will not be finished, probably, for two or three years. The full benefits of the railway system will not be felt until that system has become one entire whole; but, in the meantime, lines of considerable length and immense utility are being worked to very great advantage. The most important sections which have been opened during the past year are the Thull Ghat incline, on the Great Indian Peninsula, and that portion of the Bombay and Baroda which lies between Bulsar and Bombay. Although not great in extent, the one being 10 and the other 120 miles, both were required to fulfil the objects of either undertaking. Until the Baroda Railway reached Bombay the line was cut off from its chief source of traffic, and until the Thull Ghat was traversed by the Great Indian Peninsula a break occurred in the line between Bombay and the great cotton districts of Central India which caused both inconvenience to the public and expense to the company. Within a distance of ten miles the railway now climbs a height of nearly a thousand feet, the steepest gradient being in 37 for 4 miles 30 chains, and the sharpest curve 17 chains radius for a length of 33 chains. There are 13 tunnels, of an aggregate length of 2,652 yards, and viaducts to the extent of 741 yards, one of 250 yards being 200 feet in height. The cost of this incline has been £50,000 a mile. On the eastern side of the Peninsular another useful line has been opened during the past year—that from the Madras Railway to Bangalore.

At present, we are told, only a small proportion of the lines are double. A considerable length of siding is provided at the stations, but, irrespective of this, only about 124 miles are constructed with double lines—there being 67 miles on the East Indian, between Calcutta and the junction of the Raneegunge branch with the main line, and 57 on the Great Indian Peninsula. On the latter line, however, the doubling of 42 miles more has recently been sanctioned, by which addition the whole of the line from Bombay to the head of the Thull Ghat will be thus provided. It is also proposed to double some further portions of the Bengal division of the East Indian Railway. With regard to the proposed extension of the Raneegunge and Barrackur branch of the East Indian Railway, through the Kurhurbalee coal fields, to some point on the main line, the Government of India has just decided that it shall be taken across the Nargoonjoo Pass to Luckeserai, a length of 118 miles, a branch of 26 miles being made to the coal fields. This chord line will shorten the distance between Calcutta and the North-West by 71 miles. The cost, it is estimated, will be upwards of £2,000,000—a heavy sum, but the advantage gained will make it money well spent.

The report complains that the development of traffic on some of the railways is still to a certain extent retarded by the absence or imperfect condition of the roads leading to the stations—a fact of which it is well to find the Government are sensible, as is shown by Sir Charles Trevelyan's Budget statement for the present year, in which it is remarked that "the progress of the railway construction continues to demand a large expenditure for the construction of roads, by which the traffic of the country may be more freely brought on the great lines of communication."

The loss caused to the railway companies in Bengal by the cyclone of October last is estimated at £23,245; and on the western side the monsoon, which was of unusual violence, inflicted considerable damage upon the railway works.

The unguaranteed railways, already alluded to, consist of the Indian Branch Railway and the Indian Tramway Company. Neither has made more than moderate progress during the year. A branch from the East Indian Railway at Nulhattee to Azimgunge has been open, but it does not appear to have yet succeeded in withdrawing the traffic from its old channels. The company has, however, commenced operations on the section between Cawnpore and Lucknow, where it cannot fail to command extensive support. The Indian Tramway Company has hitherto confined its operations to a branch line connecting Arconum, on the Madras Railway, with Conjenam, about seventeen miles distant, which is expected to be open for traffic very shortly, and gives promise of success.

The attention of Government, we are told, has been engaged during the past year with two important subjects in connection with the extension of railways in Central India, viz., the establishment of a direct line of communication from Bombay, through Central India, to the North-West Provinces, and the junction, at one central terminus in Calcutta, of the three railways which take their departure from that city—the old difficulty of bridging the Hoogley being the principal one in the way of the latter project. The question of railways for Central India has also been considered by a committee appointed by Government, and they have reported in favour of a system which embraces lines from Delhi to Agra, on the East Indian line, to Jey-pore, where they are to form a junction; a line from thence to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, through Ajmere, Nusseerabad, Neemuch, Rutlam, and Indore; and another to connect the Bombay and Baroda Railway at Baroda with the above. Negotiations have already been entered into with the native chiefs for the purpose, and no difficulty is apprehended on this score.

We notice that the casualties among the European servants of the companies, by death, retirement through ill health, or rejections by the examining physician, were something less than the average of the four previous years. The proportion of accidents on the lines appears considerable, but the greater number, we are assured, were either purely accidental, or caused by circumstances under the control of the sufferers.

The total expenditure of capital on the lines either open or in course of construction amounted on the 1st of May last to £54,942,029. During the past year the expenditure has been £3,806,044. Of this about £2,418,345 was expended in India, and £1,387,699 in England. On the date in question the companies had a balance of unexpended capital to the amount of £3,044,103 in the Government Treasury. They had raised during the year £3,716,856; so that after deducting the amount expended in this country and India, there was a sum of about £2,900,000 available for this year's expenditure, which, it is estimated, will amount to about £5,100,000. The companies will probably raise, during the next year, a sum of £4,000,000, in order to cover the expenditure and carry on until the year following. During the year the revenues of the chief Indian railways have made a considerable advance, and the general results of the traffic may be regarded as satisfactory. But on the smaller lines, such as the Sind, the Great Southern, and the Calcutta and South Eastern, there has been a falling off in this respect; but we are assured that the effect has been produced by various local causes not likely to occur again, and that an improvement may be consequently expected.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE INDIAN ARMY.—SECOND SERIES. No. IV.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—It is now pretty generally admitted that the mutiny of the Bengal Army, and the rebellion that arose out of it, owed their origin to several causes. First and foremost, perhaps, may be placed the indications of proselytising zeal which, together with the expansion of education in the English language and the interference with the domestic and religious institutions of the people, not confined to missionaries, but warmly taken up by the European public officers, both civil and military, gave rise to that apprehension which certainly prevailed in 1857 of the intention of Government to do away with their most cherished institution of caste. The seeds of the mutiny were sown at Calcutta, and were disseminated, not by letters, but through the agency of the military detachments proceeding into the interior during the months of January, February, March, and April, and part of May, before the outbreak assumed its real character in the Upper Provinces, and which, like a rapidly consuming flame, spread in all directions. The plea of the cartridges has been now distinctly established. I have, however, no doubt that the true cause of the rebellion had another and distinct origin, namely, that of the apprehension of all the native States that they were doomed to be eventually absorbed into the all-devouring tendency and openly-avowed policy of taking every favourable opportunity of adding to the territorial dominion and finances of the British Government. Nor was this apprehension without foundation. I have shown in my last letter that the right of adoption of an heir in the case of a man dying without male issue was not only an established right never before disputed by former Governments, but that it was strictly a religious obligation; if not effected by a man during his lifetime, it was incumbent on his widow or nearest of kin to perform that ceremony. For nearly one hundred years the English Government had not only not disputed this Hindoo right, but it had, in more than one instance, where a native State had been left by the omission of the ruler at his death without an heir of his body, urged the necessity of the family proceeding at once to adopt a successor. The two instances which occur to me at present are those of Sindia, the present ruler of the Gwalior State, and the late ruler of the Nagpoor dominion.

The first instance of a departure from that policy occurred in 1841, on the western side of India. "The Principality of Colaba held for nearly two centuries in a state of independence. It had never been in our possession. Our connection with it rests upon the foundations of a formal treaty freely contracted; and while a vestige of the Angria family remains it belongs to them of right, and cannot be seized and appropriated by us otherwise than by an act of violence perpetrated by our superior power."

"It is assumed that the principality has lapsed to the paramount State by reason of the failure of heirs. But the ground I rest upon is that the widow of Angria possessed under the authority of that Prince, which is not disputed, the right to adopt, and still possesses that right unimpaired." "Again, I never can satisfy myself that true policy can comport with injustice and oppression. The native princes and chiefs of India will see in the fate of Colaba their own future destiny; their fidelity and attachment cannot be relied upon while they have such cause for distrust and alarm; and although they may be overawed and kept down by our irresistible military power, the occasion may arise when their hostility may be dangerous. The feelings of our Indian subjects are not to be trifled with; and it is not wise nor safe to depart from the conciliatory conduct, nor to efface from their minds those impressions of our justice, wisdom, and good faith which have hitherto constituted our bond of union with the people, and the true basis of our power in India."

At a subsequent period the authority above [quoted] wrote:—"I remonstrated against the annexation—I am disposed to call it confiscation—of Colaba, the ancient seat of the Angria family, and far from having any reason to recall, or to modify the opinion recorded by me on that proceeding, I have availed myself of every suitable occasion to enforce my conviction, that a more mischievous policy could not be pursued than that which would engross the whole territory of India." *

* Minute of the late Mr. St. George Tucker, once Chairman of the Court of Directors. J. M. Ludlow—pp. 103-4.

This sentiment in respect to the absorption of the whole Indian territory by direct British rule has been combated by the greatest statesmen both at home and abroad.

Mr. Tucker only repeated the sentiment of the Duke of Wellington, to be found in his Indian despatches, written more than half a century before he died, nor did he ever express any other. The same opinion may be found recorded in the writings of the most distinguished of our political agents till the present period, in which are included the names of governors-general, governors, ambassadors, and political residents of native Courts. Indeed, the few who advocated the annexation policy were the very few who had never left our own provinces, or served at the Courts of the native princes.

The first innovation on our former policy occurred, as has been stated, in the year 1841.

In 1844 the case of the Holcar family was so interfered with that an adoption, formally recognised, was set aside without any just cause, and another was authorised, bound round with conditions which precludes any future adoptions in that family.

In 1847 occurred the abnegation of an adopted son by the Rajah of Sattara.

In 1848 the chieftainship of Jhansie fell vacant, and although the two last chiefs by adoption had been recognised by the British Government, the new policy of appropriation by lapse was put in force, the surviving widow was not allowed to exercise that sacred funeral right of her religion, and the Jhansie estate was annexed.

In 1854, the Rajah of Nagpoor, a chief adopted at the express instigation of the British Government, in 1819, died without male issue, but the adoption by his widow was not recognised, and the territory of Nagpoor fell under British rule.

In 1857, the King of Oudh, who had been encouraged by the Marquis of Hastings to assume that title, and then declare himself independent of the Emperor of Delhi (of whom his ancestor was only the Prime Minister), was deposed from his throne on the pretext that he neglected his duty in protecting his subjects from the maladministration of his public servants, who had during latter reigns rendered themselves virtually independent of his authority. This measure was adopted in the face of a treaty frequently referred to by the Governor-General, a treaty which had been included among others presented to the House of Commons, but which it was found convenient to affirm had never been ratified, and was included among others by mistake.

Mr. Ludlow has shown the strenuous exertions made by a few members of the Court of Directors to oppose these violations of good faith who even predicted the loss of our rule altogether; while many of the local officers made use of the strongest arguments to divert the Government from its intentions, and which, in the case of the Rajpoot States, had in a great measure succeeded from apprehension of the consequences.

There still remains another case, that of the adopted son of the late Bajee Row, the ex-Peshwa and ruler of the Mahratta portion of the Deccan.

He was induced at the end of the war of 1817-18, to surrender himself and his dominions to Sir John Malcolm on condition of a suitable provision for himself and family. Now it has been shown that it was competent for him as a Hindoo to adopt a son during his life, which he did with the knowledge of the British Government. This heir was Nana Dhondo Punt, and according to Hindoo law he succeeded to all the rights of his father—namely the estate of Bittoor on the Ganges, and the stipend or lien on the revenue of the territory which had been surrendered to the British Government. The stipend was large (£80,000 a-year), but less than our Government had compelled Bajee Rao himself sixteen years before to assign to an adoptive brother (his elder), which had been continued to the adopted son of the latter. Such is Nana Dhondo Punt's case. The Government, according to the new policy, refused to recognise him as heir, and he, having failed in obtaining redress, both in India and through an agent in England, exerted every effort in his power to obtain revenge, both by promoting the sepoy mutiny, and by employing agents throughout the Decan, and elsewhere.

With a knowledge of these facts we ought not to be surprised that every native chief trembled for the succession of his family, and only waited the course of events to regulate his future conduct.

The public has been taught to believe that the East India Company has, from its earliest connection with that country, been acting on the principle of adding to its territory, whenever it suited its purpose, and that the policy of annexation and lapse was only consistent with its former practice. It has, however, been proved that whatever has been its policy since Mr. Pitt's Bill of 1784, was the Act of the Government of the Crown. It can be shown, also, that no territory has been acquired by the British Government but as the result of war, in most cases brought on by the native Princes themselves; or else by treaties, when, as in the cases of the Nabobs of Moorsheadabad, the Carnatic, and the Rajah of Tanjore, cessions were made in consideration of a perpetual lien on the territories transferred to our rule. The only two wanton aggressions within the last century have been, first, the Marhatta war of 1776-84, in support of a regicide sovereign; and, secondly, the Affghan war of 1839, undertaken to replace on his throne a king who had been twice driven from it by his own outraged subjects. Both these wars terminated in disaster and disgrace. Whenever we made war the cause was publicly proclaimed, and our allies were invited to take part, according to treaty or otherwise; and after the termination of war our allies benefited, either by accession of territory, or by equivalent remuneration for the extra expense incurred by them in its prosecution; so that our high reputation for good faith was sustained, and our strength, both morally and physically, increased, whereas the new policy of annexation has brought with it evils which have shaken that confidence in our rulers which has alone enabled a few foreigners, at the distance of many thousand miles, to exercise dominion hitherto over one-fifth of the populations of the habitable globe.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE NEW AMALGAMATION GRIEVANCE COMMISSION.—To the officers of the Indian army. —Gentlemen,—I have the honour to inform you that the Royal Commissioners are prepared to receive a written memorandum from any officer now in England setting forth his own individual grievances, with the names of any witnesses he may wish to bring forward in support of his complaints. The points to which each officer must confine himself are the following:—1. The supersession in army rank to which he has been subjected by officers joining the Staff Corps, or by the action of the brevet rank given to remedy such supersession. 2. The reduction in the number of regimental lieut.-colonels by making promotion in succession to one-half only of the officers of that rank who accepted special annuities in 1861. 3. The regulation by which twelve years is made the period of service in the grade of lieut.-colonel. 4. The arrangements for regulating promotion of colonels of artillery and engineers, subsequent to the 17th of Feb., 1861, to the rank of general officer. These memoranda should be addressed to Colonel Crewe, Secretary to Royal Commission, Cannon-row, London, S.W. I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant, CHAS. FRED. NORTH, Major-general, Chairman of Committee acting for Indian Officers, 3A, King-street, St. James's-square, July 13, 1865.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY.—On Monday, the 10th inst., an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders was held at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate, to pass resolutions to confirm the directors' acceptance of a proposal from the Secretary of State for India that the company should, under a guarantee of 5 per cent. interest on the additional capital required, extend their railway from a point near Kooshtea to Goalundo, or to such other point or points near the Rivers Ganges and Bhurhampootre, as the directors with the Government may determine; also for the increase of the present capital of £1,000,000 to £1,500,000, for the purpose of such extension; also that the new shares for the additional capital of £500,000 should be of such class, and have such privileges, and be subject to such conditions, as might be determined upon at such meeting. Mr. Leath was in the chair. It appeared from a long address from the chairman that the propositions of the Bengal Government, who were very anxious to have the extension line made, was to guarantee 5 per cent. on a capital of £500,000, for the construction of the works as "part and parcel" of the Eastern Bengal Railway, which means that should the latter earn more than the 5 per cent. guaranteed to them by the Indian Government, the surplus is not to be participated in by the shareholders until the completion of the proposed extension. The Eastern Bengal line is already earning, it is stated, about £4. 17s. per cent. per annum; and the question was whether the new line was likely to be sufficiently remunerative to induce the shareholders of the existing railway to forego for the three years during the construction of the new works their chance of enjoying the benefits of a surplus on the old capital. Upon this point considerable evidence was adduced, both on the part of the Indian Government officials, and on the part of the officers of the railway company, to the effect that the proposed extension would not only pay well, but bring an enormous additional amount of traffic upon the existing line. In fact, it was asserted that every rupee earned upon the former would bring a rupee into the pockets of the latter. After about two hours' discussion, the Chairman moved that the offer of the Indian Government for the company's construction of the extension be accepted. To this an amendment was moved:—"That the offer be accepted on the condition that the shareholders should during the period of the construction of the extension participate in any surplus which might be earned on the old line." The amendment was, upon a show of hands, lost, and the original motion was carried, with the following rider appended to it:—"That inasmuch as the earnings of this railway are likely soon to afford a dividend in excess of 5 per cent. per annum, it is just to the proprietors that they should be allowed to enjoy that excess without surrendering it as part of the capital required for an extended enterprise (interest upon capital during construction being, according to usage, part of the cost of works, although in guaranteed Indian railways that part of the cost is subject to contingent repayment); and further, that it is expedient, in the common interest of all concerned, that unguaranteed capital should be attracted to the extension of Indian railways by the practical influence of a rate of profit beyond the minimum 5 per cent." The directors were then authorised to increase the capital of the company from £1,000,000 to £1,500,000, by the issue of 25,000 shares of £20 each, one new share to be allotted to the holder of every £40 stock in the existing capital. A call of £1 per share will be made immediately, but another call will not be made for six months.

CALCUTTA AND SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.—An extraordinary general meeting of this company was held on Wednesday, at the office, Gresham House, Old Broad-street. Mr. John Borradaile was in the chair. The Chairman moved a resolution to the effect that the present Clause 27 of the articles of association be cancelled, and that, henceforth, Clause 27 stand as follows: "The directors may, from time to time, increase the capital of the company by the creation and issue of new stock or shares, and they may also issue and raise money on debentures of the company, as the directors shall from time to time see fit, provided that no such increase of capital or issue of debentures shall be made unless with the consent of the Secretary of State for India in Council." The motion was seconded and agreed to unanimously. The chairman then proposed that Clause 33 of the articles of association be altered, so that in order to constitute an ordinary or extraordinary general meeting, there must be present at the place, and within an hour of the time appointed for holding the same, ten shareholders at the least, holding capital of a value not less than £2,500, instead of twenty shareholders, as required by the existing 33rd clause. This was also seconded and agreed to. The chairman stated that it would be necessary, for the purpose of confirming those resolutions, that they should be again submitted to a meeting of the proprietors. A meeting for that purpose would be held next Thursday fortnight, the 27th instant, at the same place.

INDIAN CARRYING COMPANY (LIMITED).—The half-yearly meeting of this company was held on Monday, at the offices, Broad-street-buildings; Sir Macdonald Stephenson in the chair. The report was taken as read. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said that the two subjects in it which appeared to require special notice were the comparative degrees of success in the different presidencies, and the probable early requirement of additional capital to meet the increasing demands of the traffic. As regarded the first question, it had been correctly stated that the working in Bombay had been prejudicially affected by extraneous causes which were exceptional, had been removed, and there was no fear of their recurrence, while the progress in Bengal and the North-West Provinces had been so great as to have more than doubled the returns in one year. The transfer of the Government bullock train to the company would materially increase the business, which would be conducted with greater facility when the Allahabad bridge over the Jumna was opened next month, as the existing break at that point in the East Indian Railway line had occasioned frequent delays in the transmission of goods forwarded by the Carrying Company. The second point referred to was the additional capital which the board requested powers to raise when necessary, and it would be readily understood that the great superiority enjoyed by the Carrying Company over the native carriers consisted mainly in their larger available capital, by which they were enabled to carry on their work on more favourable terms, and with greater certainty and despatch. A larger floating capital would also be indispensable for the payments to the railways and for advances of various kinds, which could not be realised until after delivery of the goods. The directors were satisfied with the progress made, because it was likely to be permanently progressive, and the shareholders might rely upon their continued earnest attention to the company's interests. The report was unanimously adopted, and a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum (free of income-tax) was declared for the half-year ending December 31, 1864, payable on the 20th inst. The meeting was then made special, and on the motion of the chairman, seconded by Dr. Rose, it was unanimously resolved that the capital of the company be increased by the creation of 25,000 new shares of £2 each, and that such shares be issued on such terms as the directors might think fit.

THE LONDON AND BOMBAY BANK AND GENERAL FINANCIAL AND INSURANCE AGENCY CORPORATION (LIMITED).—An extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of this company was held at the Guildhall Coffee-house, Guildhall-yard, for the purpose of confirming the following special resolution, which was set forth in the advertisement as read by the secretary:—"That the present nominal capital of the London and Bombay Bank and General Financial and Insurance Agency Corporation (Limited), of £2,000,000, divided into 200,000 shares of £10 each, be increased to the nominal capital of £4,000,000 by the addition thereto of the sum of £2,000,000, divided into 200,000 shares of £10 each; and that such additional capital shall form part of the original capital in the manner and form pointed out by the articles of association of this company." Mr. Scholes was in the chair, and moved a resolution to the effect that the time having elapsed for holding the meeting, the meeting be adjourned until Thursday, the 20th inst., at eleven o'clock. Mr. Charles Tyler having seconded the motion, it was carried nem. con.

JOHN T. BELL AND CO.'S BANKRUPTCY.—At a meeting of the creditors of John T. Bell and Co., of London, trading under the names of A. H. Huschke and Co., of Bombay, and of G. Ventz and Co., of Manchester, an approximate statement of affairs was submitted by the accountants, Messrs. Coleman, Turquand, Youngs, and Co. From the statement it appeared that nearly all the liabilities were incurred in Bombay, through the monetary difficulties of a native banker and broker, who, however, it is believed, has sufficient property to discharge all his debts. Confidence was expressed in Mr. Bell, and resolutions were passed adjourning the meeting until further information be received from Bombay. It was also agreed to allow Mr. Bell to continue the liquidation with the accountants, conjointly with the advice of two of the creditors.

LIEUT.-COLONEL E. B. JOHNSON, C.B.—The Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief has been pleased to appoint Lieut.-colonel and Brevet-colonel Edwin Beaumont Johnson, C.B., Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, to be H.R.H.'s Assistant Military Secretary, July 10.

THE INDIAN TELEGRAPH.—It appears that the telegraphic communication with India is suspended, and it is feared that the difficulty on this occasion is through some break or fault in the Gulf cable.

BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS of HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

GIBSON AND COMPANY, PATENTEES,

SADDLERS AND HARNESS MAKERS TO THE QUEEN, THE ROYAL FAMILY, AND HER MAJESTY'S CAVALRY,

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.—

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown. (See TIMES, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

In India and the Colonies it is extensively used to prevent taking complaints incidental to Tropical Climates, and as a renovator of the system after Sickness invaluable.

Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter pints. One pint is equal to eight pints of the ordinary preparations.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against cheap preparations of Sarsaparilla, which, instead of being what they profess, are nothing but a decoction of common herbs, sweetened with molasses, and flavoured with American Winter Green. MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.

This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when the night past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as effluvia, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—CONFIDENTIAL

ADVICE.—To all persons who suffer from bilious headaches, disordered stomach, biliousness, or flatulency, these Pills are strongly recommended as the safest, best, and quickest mode of obtaining ease, without weakening or irritating the nervous system. Holloway's Pills are especially useful in clearing away any excess of bile which usually produces fever unless remedial measures be adopted without delay. In asthma, bronchitis, and congestion of the lungs, they may be relied upon for removing all danger, and by purifying and regulating the circulation they effectually prevent relapses. By rousing the liver to a fair secretion of bile and quickly carrying it off from the system, these Pills ward off low spirits, listlessness, and those distressing feelings often called nervous.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE steamer Bombay, with the mail of the 24th June, having broken her shaft, put in at the Mauritius, and then returned to Bombay before making another start for Suez, a longer delay than usual has occurred between our publications. Even now the missing mail has not come to hand, but in its place we have that of the 8th of July, also from Bombay, the other dates being Calcutta, June 30, and Madras, July 1.

The money market continues to be a prominent subject of discussion both in Calcutta and Bombay. In Calcutta the state of things at Bombay continued to exercise an unfavourable effect. This was, however, confined to depression of business, and there was no probability that the crisis would extend to the sister Presidency. In absence of all demand, money continued easy. The Bank of Bengal had agreed to assist that of Bombay to the extent of fifty lacs. The shares of the Bengal bank had however fallen to Rs. 6,800, and appeared to be unfavourably affected by apprehensions that the position of the Bombay Bank was worse than was generally supposed. Should these apprehensions turn out to be well founded, it was thought probable that the authorities at home would veto the extension of aid. The Bank of Bengal, it is added, has made no alteration in its rate of discount; but this must be understood to mean no alteration since the despatch of the missing mail of the 24th of June; for we find in the Bombay papers that on the 15th of June the bank reduced its rates of discount and interest one per cent. all round.

Mr. Massey's "masterly inactivity" proves to be only temporary. He intends to meet the deficit, not by raising a loan in India, but by a revival of the income-tax, with a new name and new machinery, and such modifications as will compel the rich to pay their share of the public burdens. It is not, however, considered likely that this measure will be introduced immediately on the expiry of the old impost, as Mr. Massey will probably consult the outside merchantile community, both European and Native, before maturing his plans. The prospect of this settlement appears to have given general satisfaction.

From Bhootan there was little more than the old story. Tongsoo Penlow was as determined as ever to carry on the war, and the intrigues of the Deb Rajah and Paro Penlow to restrain him had led to a rupture, and nearly a recourse to arms, the Dhurm Rajah having had difficulty in effecting anything like pacification. The general opinion seemed to be that nothing but strong measures would bring Tongsoo Penlow to his senses. In the meantime, Colonel Haughton had been compelled by ill-health to withdraw from the civil agency, and had been succeeded by Colonel Bruce, Inspector-General of Police.

"The great Rent Question" had been decided by the High Court in the case of Ghose v. Mookerjee, the whole Court, with the exception of Sir Barnes Peacock, giving judgment in favour of "enhancement by proportion,"—that is, that when the value of the land has been increased by rise of prices, or causes independent of any action either by the ryot or the zemindar, then the latter can claim only such an advance of rent as shall bear the same proportion to the old rent as the new prices of produce bear to prices existing at the period when the rent was paid without demur. The Times of India remarks that the effect of this judgment will be to unsettle the rigid views generally entertained as to the Permanent Settlement, more especially as the Proclamation of Lord Cornwallis embodied with that statute an intention, not only to secure the ryot's right of occupancy, but also to preserve to him a proportion of the produce.

From Madras the most notable news is that the Rajah of Mysore has adopted an heir, which step being taken without obtaining the consent of the British Government, deprives him, it is considered, of any chance which he might have of restoration to his rule. It is said that he has acted in accordance with advice from his agent in England, but the fact that he has simply done what Hindoos believe to be necessary for their salvation may be considered a sufficient motive. The event, however, is likely to give rise to some political unpleasantness.

The news from Afghanistan is the most important of that brought from Bombay. On the 6th of June a battle was fought outside Candahar between the Ameer and his rebellious brothers, in which Mahommed Ameen Khan, the leader of the Candahar party, and Mahommed Ali, the heir apparent to the Ameer, have both fallen. The result was on the whole favourable to the Ameer, who had taken prisoner Sarwur Khan, the son of his brother and most dangerous rival, Mahommed Azim Khan, lately a refugee in British territories. His prospects, however, have been much damaged by his losses, and it is considered very doubtful if he will be able to hold out against the powerful alliance opposed to him, supported, too, as it is by the sympathy of Persia and the aid of Bokhara, the latter having espoused the cause of Abdulruhman Khan, the son of Afzul Khan, who was for some time a fugitive in British possessions. The Khan, too, may now be regarded as the ruler of all the territory from Khokand to Candahar, not held by Russia, the independent ruler of Khokand, Ali Kool, having been killed in an encounter with the Kiptchaks, and his territory made over to his more powerful neighbour.

Commercial affairs are more hopeful in Bombay. The dreaded 1st of July passed over quietly; but it was too soon to ascertain the results of transactions completed or cancelled on that day. There was an impression that no obligations except those strictly legal would be acknowledged; but there was no disposition to repudiate, most debtors confining themselves to avowals of their inability to pay. The Bombay Bank had regained the confidence of the public, and its cash balances were improving. The ordinary machinery of the Insolvency Court being clogged, a memorial had been presented to the Governor, praying for an Act to give powers to carry on the work of liquidation. There is a large amount of wealth in Bombay, and when the ground is again cleared it is believed that commerce will revive, and a sounder prosperity be established.

There were still outbreaks of cholera in different parts of India, but they did not seem on the increase. At Aden, however, the disease was making such ravages as to cause something like a panic; and famine, too, was expected to add to the general suffering. The Resident had applied for the services of three extra assistant-surgeons from Bombay. In most parts of Arabia the same miserable state of things prevailed.

Of home news some items will be found elsewhere. A telegram in this morning's papers adds that a dinner has been given at Londonderry to Sir Robert Montgomery, at which Lord Dufferin made a short speech.

The over-due Calcutta Mail is expected in London on Monday next, and the missing Bombay Mail on Tuesday—the latter being brought on from Alexandria by the Messageries Imperiales Company's steamer. As our most important despatches come by the Bombay route we shall not publish our next number until both mails are received—in all probability on Tuesday next.

RESULTS OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE JUNIOR COVENANTED ASSISTANTS, AND OTHER OFFICERS, HELD IN APRIL LAST.

We give this morning the following results of the examination of the Junior Covenanted Assistants, and other officers, held in April last:—

Messrs. R. Porch and J. Anderson having passed in Urdu and Bengali respectively, are exempted from any further test, and will shortly be invested with full powers. The following officers have passed by the second standard, and are therefore also exempted from further examination:—

Baboo Rakkhal Doss Holder.

" Sham Chunder Nath.

" Brojokant Roy.

" Chunder Mohun Roy.

" Kalipersaud Ghose.

" Kalinath Ghose.

Of these the first is employed in the Survey Department; the second and fifth will receive full powers; but the others not having served one year, are not as yet eligible for higher powers. On the completion of the year, however, they will probably be invested with increased authority and jurisdiction. Messrs. Merrington and J. Boxwell have passed in all but Urdu, in which language they will have to go through another trial.

The Board recommended that Messrs. Armstrong and Carstairs should be allowed to pass, although they had failed in the Revenue paper, but Mr. Beadon remarked that he was unable to comply with the recommendation, as there were other officers who had done equally well, notably Mr. Norman, but who had not been recommended. The following officers have passed by the first or lower standard, and will therefore be invested with the powers of a Subordinate Magistrate of the First Class under section 22 of Act 25 of 1861; they will also receive the powers of a Deputy Collector: Messrs. Barbour, Hopkins, Grimley, Graham, Shortt, Livesay and Yardley.

The following officers having also passed will be invested with similar magisterial powers:—

Baboo Govind Mohun Ghose, Mr. H. Rat-tray, Moulvie Mofeezooddeen, Baboo Parsh-nath Banerjee, Mr. A. C. Woodward and Baboo Shova Pershad Sandyal. Of these the moulvie already exercises the powers of a magistrate of the first class under section 22, of Act 25, of 1861, whilst Baboo G. M. Ghose is uncovenanted assistant to the Rajshahye Commissioner.

Mr. Sterndale, who was allowed to sit a second time on that subject, has passed in Revenue, and has, therefore, been declared to have passed by the first or lower standard.

In the Police Force, Mr. Lacey, who has been re-examined in consequence of some oversight, has been declared to have passed in November last; his examination in April has been cancelled. Mr. A. King has been exempted on the score of age; he has been informed, however, that he is not to expect promotion until he do pass, which seems to us to do away with the merit of the concession made to an old and deserving public servant.

Mr. W. D. Pratt has passed the Police Examination, so has Lieutenant Sanderson, subject, however, to a further examination in Bengali.

In the Opium Department, Messrs. Charles, Smith, Carnegie and Chapman have passed.

Baboo Barodapershad Mustaffa is reported to have used some private memoranda at the examination, and he has consequently been removed from his acting appointment of deputy magistrate and deputy collector.

The Lieut.-Governor remarks somewhat severely on the delay in forwarding the report of the examination of officers in Assam held at Gowhaty, and further has called upon Lieut. Sconce to state why he was absent from the examination ordered to be held at Debrooghur.

As already announced, Majors Paterson and Revely have been added to the list of examiners as the representatives of the police department. This department, his Honour observes, has done badly at the recent examination, and the attention of its head has been drawn to the subject.—Hurkaru.

OUR POSITION IN BOOTAN.

If the Government of India and the Commander-in-Chief were stationed at Darjeeling instead of buried in Simla, they would not only enjoy the delights of a cold climate, but govern that part of the empire which can less afford to do without Government than the rest of India just now. Up to the present time, we fear, the same fatality of mismanagement has attended all our operations and arrangements on the frontier that marked our first occupation of its outposts. There is but one thing to be said in favour of our operations, or non-operations, in the Dooras—that they have not been costly. Colonel Broome is the only official who can congratulate himself on his connection with this war, but unfortunately cheapness means in such a case eventual costliness in the sacrifice of life and money as well as prestige.

The Blue-book has told us the reasons of the failure of the first campaign. The Mission declared the Bootas to be few and cowardly. The Bengal Government gloried that the civil constabulary had taken the most important stockade and for the future could alone hold the frontier. The Government of India recommended the employment of a small European force as a reserve, but were content with the recommendation. And the late Commander-in-Chief wrote about the folly of undervaluing mountaineers as our enemies and of the importance of a good reserve, but does not seem to have done anything in consequence, beyond sending General Mulcaster to command the sepoy force. General Mulcaster proved a failure, and General Dunsford was unable to realise the expectations formed of him. The first campaign ended in the evacuation of Tayagon and the retreat from Dewangiri. In the second Generals Tombs and Tytler succeeded Generals Mulcaster and Dunsford, and European troops were buried up. The compliment was paid to H.M.'s 55th of selecting them, as good marksmen, for the re-capture of Dewangiri, but unfortunately they are a young corps in India, and have caught the local fever, which, probably, will never entirely leave them. Dewangiri was taken one morning, and by noon General Tombs hurried down to the plains, and sent in his resignation in what some characterise as unseemly haste. In contrast to this, however, he wrote a despatch on the Dewangiri success, in which he is said to have indulged in as much eulogy of the captors as if he had been announcing another Waterloo, and recommended three officers for the Victoria Cross. The Europeans were withdrawn and the enlarged sepoy and police force were told they were to blockade the frontier, till something should turn up. Thus ended the second act.

The third opened with General Tytler, in military, and Colonel Haughton in civil command of the Dooras. Engineer officers were busy in preparing for the hutting of the men before the monsoon should deluge the hills. But they were in most instances too late. Major Pugh certainly provided for the comforts of the police, but for many days a large portion of the sepoy force and their officers were exposed to the rains. This laid the seeds of that malarious fever under which it is estimated one-third of the force are suffering. At the time we protested against the positions chosen for the entrenchments, but were told that we knew nothing about it. Instead of crowning the heights, as the Bootas themselves do, with stockades and huts in a climate equal to that of Darjeeling or Kurseong, the authorities selected the middle parts of the ascent, commanded by the heights and within the range of the malaria from the Terai. The result is seen in the physical prostration of the men and officers. The latter are individually first-rate men and not disinclined to do their duty. But Sir Hugh Rose's system of promotion on account of merit, while admirable in principle, seems in many cases to have been badly carried out. Officers have been promoted, not in their regiments, but from corps to corps, till the result has been that they and their men do not know each other, while their eager hope is to be again promoted from the marshes of Bootan to other regiments in healthier situations. Esprit de corps there seems to be none, but we are glad to observe, from recent general orders, that Sir W. Mansfield is likely to correct for the future this serious error in his predecessor's policy. There lies a force of several thousand sepoy and policemen, led by officers who do not know them in the old sense, debilitated in mind and body by fever, huddled in and within the edge of malarious districts, and commanded by heights above them, when common-sense, if not sanitary and military experience, would have planted all but the reserve on the tops of the ridges. Colonel Bruce, we believe, has sent in a report to Government on our position in Bootan. We doubt not he has entered fully into these subjects.

And what of the future? The public have perfect confidence in General Tytler, and there is reason to believe that he and Colonel Bruce will act in harmony. It might be well if there were less interference from head-quarters buried in a pleasant cleft of the hills hundreds of miles away. Let Government lay down a policy, and leave it to officers who will not fear responsibility to carry it out. At present we are amusing ourselves with expectations and rumours of the Bootas "coming in," instead of making active preparations for a cold-weather campaign three months hence. Tongso Penlow is master de facto, and never will "come in" till he is thrashed, while the legitimate Government of the country is under his power. Even if another revolution were to make the Durbar independent, its offers of surrender would be untrustworthy so long as it could not control Tongso Penlow. The army and the public would feel a confidence and satisfaction they do not now entertain, if they were assured that the time for trifling, for the sacrifice of prestige and life, were at an end. It is time to make preparations for that march on Poonakh, which ought to have taken the place of the useless capture of Dewangiri, as we urged at the time. Let it be known that General Tytler will lead the force from Buxa to burn Poonakh at the end of October next, and both officers and men will revive from their present languid disgust, and the close of the year will see Tongso Penlow on his knees, and a stable Government established in all that region of Bootan which we think it expedient to leave to its present rulers.

Thus far the responsible Government of India has been most unfortunate in the results of its financial arrangements and military operations, however much its subordinates, Sir C. Trevelyan and Mr. Beadon, may have been to blame. We must remind the Viceroy, who has so well deserved in an inferior position a reputation for rocky firmness and irresistible success, that he holds the most magnificent position for manifesting his peculiar qualifications. Now is the time to apply to this miserable Bootan expedition a really statesman-like policy, worthy of the most trusted Lieutenant of Lord Dalhousie. It is of more importance that the punishment of Bootan should be complete and speedy than that it should seem to be cheap.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILITARY ITEMS.—We hear that a Court-martial is to assemble at Jullunder, to try Captain Ingram on charges regarding the state of his accounts in the Department of Public Works. We are informed that the Delhi Brigadiership is to be abolished, and an additional Brigadier to be added to the Divisional Staff of Fort William, to aid in the heavy duties connected with the arrival and departure of troops. The Home authorities have recommended the issue of blue sergo suits to the soldiers, on their embarking for England, instead of the smock-frocks at present given them. A Committee has been ordered to assemble at Fort William, to consider the question, of which Major Walton, military storekeeper, will probably be President. We have just been favoured with the purport of a telegram, received from the Agent to the Governor-General in Rajpootana, from which it appears that a disease, having the appearance of a plague, had broken out in the Pahlunpore territory, and that Dr. Martin was deputed by Government to inquire into the origin of the disease, and to afford relief to the sufferers. Dr. Martin, we are glad to find, now reports that the disease, which has disappeared, was not plague, but fever of a bad type.—Captains and subalterns now doing general duty at stations are to be ordered to join and do duty with particular regiments to which they will be posted.—Major R. C. Whiting, of the cadre of the 70th N.I., is appointed second in command of the 11th N.I. This is carrying out the plan said to be thought of by the Commander-in-Chief, of appointing officers to their old regiments. The present 11th is the old 70th.—The Commander-in-Chief has bestowed the command of the 38th N.I. on Lieutenant-Colonel Bagot, who returned from England about a month ago.—On the recommendation of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the Right Hon. the Governor-General in Council has directed that the garrison of Delhi shall cease to be a brigade command from the 1st August next. From that date the command of the troops at Delhi will be exercised by the senior officer in the garrison. A brigade major will be retained at Delhi to conduct the staff duties of the place.—Under similar recommendation his Excellency has further directed that from the 1st August next a brigadier-general of the first class will command the garrison of Fort William, in subordination to the general-officer commanding the Presidency division.—The fort adjutant of Fort William will be the staff officer of the brigadier-general commanding the garrison.—After August next we presume Barrackpore will become the head quarters of the Presidency division.—Brigadier General Pott, C.B., now at Dinapore, has been offered the Rawul Pindee command.

EDUCATIONAL CHANGES.—We are informed that Mr. W. S. Atkinson, Director of Public Instruction, will leave Calcutta by the second mail steamer of July next. Mr. H. Woodrow, Inspector of Schools, Central Division, will be appointed to officiate for Mr. Atkinson, and Mr. H. L. Harrison, C. S., at present officiating Inspector of Schools, South Division, will officiate for Mr. Woodrow, and Mr. Mellicott, who has just returned from furlough, will officiate for Mr. Harrison.

DESTRUCTION OF WILD BEASTS.—According to a statement published in India, it appears that during the second half of the year 1864, the number of wild beasts killed in the Central Provinces was as follows:—tigers and cubs, 202; panthers, leopards, and cubs, 314; bears and cubs, 171; wolves, hyenas, and cubs, 251: total of animals, 931—for the destruction of which rewards, aggregating Rs. 13,862, were given.

NEW FAIRS ON THE UPPER GODAVERY have been sanctioned by Government.

FINANCIAL PROSPECTS.—Mr. Massey has, we believe, taken two steps in the present collapse of our financial administration and monetary difficulties which promise well for his future success as an Indian financier, and reflect great credit on the Government of which he is a member. The deficit is to be met, not by raising a loan in India, but by so modifying the income-tax as to force the rich to contribute their share to the public burdens; and at once, without a moment's hesitation, the Government of Bombay and the Bank of Bengal were authorised to help the Bank of Bombay. What a contrast does this prompt and intelligent action afford to the ignorant egotism of Sir C. Trevelyan in insisting on the abolition of the tax, and his hopeless incompetence when appealed to in the more trifling commercial crisis at the end of 1863. The result of both steps will be the restoration of that confidence to the public which they ceased to feel after Mr. Wilson's death and Mr. Laing's departure. The Bank of Bengal is willing to supply Bombay with half a million sterling, but the mere fact of this willingness has so arrested panic that it is not probable the Bank of Bombay will now require to avail itself of the assistance. That the income-tax, under a new name and with improved machinery, will be imposed immediately on the expiry of the old impost a month hence, is not probable. A well matured measure must be devised. The weak and impracticable suggestions of Sir C. Trevelyan's Income-tax Committee show the necessity for Mr. Massey consulting the outside community, the bankers, merchants, and traders, English and Native. With expenditure strictly kept down, and the home charges reduced by the amount assigned to the transport service, it may be possible for Mr. Massey to go on till an Act is passed in the cold season, legalising the new tax from the beginning of 1866. By that time, too, trade and the money-market will begin to recover a healthy tone, and Mr. Massey will find almost as willing a public as Mr. Wilson did.

QUICK PASSAGE ROUND THE CAPE.—The Harkaru says:—The Far East twin screw steamer, whose departure from Plymouth on the 17th April we noticed some weeks since, arrived true to her promises yesterday morning in the river, making the run from land to land in 65 days. We have yet to learn from the record of the ship's log the probability of this speed being maintained in subsequent passages. Should the conditions of the passage not have been unusually favourable, we may look on the advent of the Far East as the commencement of a new era in our round-the-Cape navigation. It is not only, if we are rightly informed, in her propelling gear that the vessel differs from the rest of her congeners on the great deep. The spirit of innovation has been busy in the department of the designs and the manufacture of her gear. Her masts, we understand, are formed so as to slide, telescope fashion, one within the other, while invention has been racked to devise a variety of curious contrivances to accommodate the rest of the rigging to this novel arrangement in the masting. Several other vessels constructed upon novel principles are now in port. Among others we learn that the Lloyd Raper furnishes a very beautiful illustration of the perfection to which the steel masting and rigging of ships has now advanced.

RETIRED OFFICERS IN AUSTRALIA.—The Harkaru says:—It is not one of the least strange things in this strangest of all strange countries, India, to hear old officers, who are about to retire, sometimes talk of turning farmers in Australia, and investing the proceeds of the sale of their step in the purchase of sheep and land in that region. Certainly, that saying of the witty Frenchman must be true, that nearly the whole world are unconsciously mad. But of all forms of midsummer madness, that of an old Indian officer taking to ploughing and sowing, after he has done with drills and reviews, appears to be the most fantastical. True, an old retired Indian is, generally speaking, more robust now-a-days than he used to be

"In our hot youth when George the 3rd was King."

Our advice to every such misjudging enthusiast always is, "hang yourself rather than go there!" "Go to Wales, go to Ireland, go to France, go to Scotland, go anywhere rather than to Australia!" For if ever there was a strictly true application of the saying "a fish out of water," it is in the instance of an Indian veteran turned Australian emigrant.

NORTH-WEST ITEMS.—Sir Charles Wood has expressed in high terms his sense of the services rendered by Colonel Eden to the Oodeypore State during his tenure of the Marwar political agency.—Lieutenant A. N. Bruce, assistant to the political agent for Rajpootana, has been appointed officiating agent of Harowtee, vice Captain H. Phillips, deceased.—The proposition of the Punjab Government for opening a railway communication between Abbottabad and Murree has been approved of by the Government of India.—The Mohmunds again threaten the Peshawur border; the Cabul Ameer has, however, taken measures to suppress them.—We are glad to learn from the Punjab, that in Kooloo the breeding of the shawl-goat has increased very considerably. The breed is said to compare most favourably with that of Tartary.

NATIVE CREDULITY.—A rather amusing incident occurred the other day, showing how very credulous the lower order of natives in this country are. A large mob had gathered near to the Ochterlony monument on the maidan, attentively waiting to see something. A European passing by asked some of the natives what had brought them there, and the reply was, that they had come there to witness the execution of the woman who had murdered her husband, and was told that the severest penalty of the law was to be carried into effect, not by hanging—oh, no, that mode of execution was only resorted to in cases where a man murdered a woman—but as in this instance a woman had murdered a man, the authorities had ordered her to be put to death by being worried by mad dogs, and the inquirer's attention was at the same time drawn to Mr. Wells's exhibition of Pepper's Ghost, placarded all over the town. The woman was to be attired in black, and, as shown by the picture, she was supplicating for mercy. The crowd waited anxiously till late in the evening, and, finding that the very agreeable entertainment did not come off, dispersed with the idea, as expressed by many of them, that the affair did not come off owing to the difficulty experienced by Government in procuring mad dogs. It is said that during the time of the Moguls, a woman found guilty of the murder of her husband, was put to death by such means, and this gave rise to the extraordinary belief that the same was to be adopted in the present case.—Harkaru.

MYSTERIOUS.—A paragraph appears in the Lahore Chronicle to the effect that at a certain hill-station some excitement had been caused by the sudden death of an officer and his equally sudden burial, without any official investigation, although it was generally believed that his death was not the result of natural causes. A letter on the same subject has been published in the Delhi Gazette, but as no names are given, either of place or person, we refrain from repeating it.

THE QUESTION OF THE EXTENSION OF THE PORT OF CALCUTTA has, we hear, been finally decided. The Collector of Customs has been charged to carry out this measure in addition to his other duties from the beginning of next year.

THE COURSE OF TRUE LOVE, &c., &c.—The Mofussilite of the 30th May has the following morceau:—"AN INSTANCE EXTRAORDINARY OF A 'SLIP BETWEEN THE CUP AND THE LIP.'—They (the happy couple) were to be married at five o'clock on Thursday morning last. Accordingly the bridegroom, accompanied by the gentleman who was to have given the bride away, repaired to the house of the bride's father at a very early hour. A lady was seen walking in the veranda, who, the bridegroom, in the partial darkness of the hour, but more, we fancy, in the blindness and excitement of love, took to be his betrothed. He waved his handkerchief most anxiously to her, and, on drawing nearer, began a most endearing address, when, to his inexpressible surprise, the lady turned out to be the mother of the bride, who, to his still greater astonishment, ordered him out of the house in language, and with a determination, that left him not a moment for remonstrance. He beat a hasty retreat, and the gentleman who had accompanied him also left the place dumb-stricken. The parson, who was momentarily expecting the 'happy couple' at the church, soon got notice of the 'untoward occurrence,' and likewise walked home in solemn bewilderment. And since then nothing has been talked of in the cantonment of Lucknow but this most extraordinary smash of the 'match' between the amiable Miss M—and the gallant Lieutenant B—. As, however, Lieutenant B— talks of making a 'case' of the affair, it is not prudent for us to say more at present on the subject; but we may repeat the words of our correspondent—namely, that 'the young lady has had a most happy deliverance.'"

EDUCATION IN RANGOON.—It is gratifying to learn that the corners of the empire are not forgotten in the measures for improving the education of the people. We learn from the Rangoon Gazette that the Chief Commissioner has, by order of the Supreme Government, prepared and submitted a scheme for the promotion and extension of education within the Tenasserim Provinces, which has been generally approved by the Governor-general, and forwarded by him to the Secretary of State. That journal says:—"Colonel Phayre's leading idea—and an excellent one it is, and one that this journal has always advocated—is, to work upon the popular means of instruction and education already existing in the country. Every, the smallest, village in British Burmah has its native school, and every town contains several of these institutions, as well as colleges for the instruction of students who desire to embrace a religious life according to the Boodhist system. The course of instruction in the lower schools may be said to be limited to reading and writing, and in the upper, consists chiefly of committing to memory the precepts of Boodhism, and reading the life and trans-migrations of Boodha, &c. Science, in its modern acceptation, there is none; but the Burmans, like the Chinese, are very promising pupils in art, although we are not aware that any special teaching or training has to be gone through by the painter and architect before each is pronounced qualified to practice. These schools, and all that is taught in them, have probably remained much as they are now for the past thousand years."

CIVIL SERVICE CHANGES.—For some time past there have been rumours of certain changes to be made in consequence of Mr. E. T. Trevor going home on leave. These, have, however, within the past few days, taken a definite shape, and if what we hear at Alipore about preparations for a change of officers is true, they cannot be very distant. Mr. Trevor, of the Board of Revenue, it is said, will be succeeded by Mr. H. L. Dampier, Commissioner of Nuddea; Mr. Dampier will be succeeded by Mr. F. R. Cockerill, Legal Remembrancer, who will in turn be succeeded by Mr. Thompson, Judge of Nuddea.—Harkaru.

MORE FINANCIERING.—The Mofussilite understands that the remuneration—small as it is—hitherto drawn by civil surgeons for their medical attendance upon the police of the North-West and the Punjab, has been ruthlessly cut down by the Government, and those already overworked officials are to continue in the performance of the work without the pay. This penny-wise and pound-foolish proceeding will induce many assistant-surgeons in charge of civil stations to resign their appointments, as the police allowance amounts to nearly one-sixth of their income.

MORE TROUBLESOME TRIBES.—From Nowgong we learn that the tribe of Anganni Nagas are again becoming troublesome. They have lately committed several depredations in the neighbourhood of Muniore. Last year, when some of the people of the tribe murdered Mr. Martiers, the Rajah of Muniore burnt their villages, and put to death some forty of them. This prompt retaliation and punishment kept them in awe for some time, and consequently at peace. The Rajah, we further learn, is again about to try the experiment he found to answer so well last year, and has despatched a body of chosen troops to carry fire and sword into the haunts of the robbers.—Hurkaru.

THE ASSAM AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION is to take place at Debrooghur, and the time of holding it has been fixed from the 1st to 5th February next. The cause of holding the Exhibition in Debrooghur is, that the greatest number of planters can be got together most readily; and an association has been lately formed there among the planters, to encourage the importation of draught cattle.

CANTONMENT JOINT MAGISTRATE.—According to the Mofussilite, cantonment joint magistrates are to be classed into two grades, upon consolidated salaries. The pay of the first grade for the large stations throughout India has been fixed at Rs. 1,000 per mensem, and that of the second grade at Rs. 700.

POISONING BY SERVANTS.—It is stated that two gentlemen who went up sick to Mussoorie, have been poisoned by their khidmutgars; one of them, it is feared, is past recovery. It does not appear that the rascals have been apprehended as yet.

"THE HILLS," published for some time at Mussoorie, has ceased to exist. The Indian sanatoria will not, it seems, support papers of their own, as has been shown in several previous instances.

A REVISED CODE OF ABSENTEE RULES for chaplains, and other officers in the Ecclesiastical Department, is now being prepared by the Government of India.

A CENSUS OF THE POPULATION OF THE DISTRICTS RULED FROM LAHORE has at length been sanctioned by the Home Government, and will be carried out without loss of time.

MADRAS.

ADOPTION OF AN HEIR BY THE RAJAH OF MYSORE.

MYSORE, June 27.—You have doubtless heard before now the important and interesting intelligence that the Rajah of Mysore has at last adopted a son and heir. Permit me to give, as briefly as possible, an account of the ceremony on the occasion of the adoption for the information of your readers and the world at large.

On Sunday morning the 18th of June, 1865, and about 10 o'clock, his Highness the Maharajah held a levee in the principal hall of his palace called Amba-Villas, which is magnificently furnished with curiosities from England and other parts of the world, and which was at the time specified thickly thronged with a vast concourse of courtiers, consisting of Ministers, respectable functionaries, distinguished pundits, and people of all races and descriptions. Silence was observed for about a quarter of an hour, and then the Maharajah rose from his seat, turned to the assembly, and in a loud and clear voice addressed them thus:—

"Friends and relations, ministers and courtiers, countrymen, and all present:—

"My object in having you all here this day, is expressly to make you distinctly understand my deliberate resolution. You all well know that my expectations and your prayers, that I should be blessed with a son, have unfortunately not been realised. It deeply concerns me to reflect, that the ancient families of Mysore, which uninterruptedly continued for three-and-twenty generations, may cease to exist with me; that the time-honoured throne of my House may become vacant; and that all my subjects may be deprived of the protection they have from time immemorial enjoyed at the hands of this dynasty. My fear is that if no remedy be speedily contrived to prevent this calamity, an everlasting infamy may attach to my person in this world, and eternal torments in that to come." The expedient that strikes me to pre-

* The Hindoo Shasters declare, that unless a man begets or adopts a son, he cannot go to heaven, but suffers eternal punishment in a hell called "put."

but these calamities is that I should immediately adopt a son. I wish, therefore, you all would freely express your respective thoughts and sentiments on the subject. Should you all approve of my resolution I also particularly desire you to furnish me with your suggestions as to the family from which my heir should be chosen."

The assembly with one voice left the selection entirely to his Highness's choice, and expressed unanimously their agreement with him. They said that his Highness enjoyed their unbounded gratitude, they had been longing for him to adopt for some time past, and that their fervent prayers were to see rites of adoption performed at once, provided his Highness had no objection.

Then the Maharajah taking the child by the arm, declared as follows:—

"As the family to which this child belongs and my family have been closely allied to each other from time immemorial, and as the immaculate virtue of this child's noble house has all along been distinctly known to myself and you all, it is my wish to adopt this child, with its mother's assent and yours."

The selection being the fittest, was greatly applauded by every one present.

His Highness, having gained the admiration and approval of all present, concluded the ceremonies. A Royal salute of twenty-one guns was fired in honour of the occasion, while his Highness obtained the sanction, and permission of the priest called Perkal Gooroo. Major Elliot, Superintendent of the Astragram Division, who was in charge of the Palace duties, was expressly called for, and in a few minutes presented himself before his Highness, and received notice of the proceeding, in official form, for communication to Government. The child is two and a-half years old, and is the third son of the late Chika Kristna Urse, son of Doda Kristna Urse, and grandson of Gopaul Rajah Urse, who was the brother of Ramee Lutchnance who signed the treaties of 1799.

His Highness then introduced the courtiers to the little Prince and caused them to present muzzers, and pay their humble respects. His Highness honoured every one present with garlands of flowers and betel-nut. Pagodas and golden sovereigns were given away for charity in thousands. A few hours afterwards the adopted Prince, who was denominated Chamrajyendra Wudayer Bahadur, was placed in a splendid gold palanquin and led through the main streets of the fort in pompous procession. All the courtiers marched along with the palanquin; cavaliers and foot-men, spikemen and musketeers, musicians and trumpeters all escorted the Prince in large numbers. The streets were densely crowded by people of both sexes, and of all ages, and everyone felt exceedingly delighted.

The population of Mysore displayed its rejoicings by a thousand tokens. Regular feasting were kept up in every house for three days. Congratulations were circulated in all directions. Carts in large number, laden with sugar for distribution, were driven through all the streets of the city. From every quarter the people were heard to say, that at last Divine Providence has been graciously pleased to send down upon them the most precious boon; that the existence of their native sovereignty was prolonged; that the clouds which the threats of annexation had gathered around their heads have, by this remarkable deed, been scattered and dissipated; and that British justice will bless them with the pride and honour of being governed continually by sovereigns of their own race.—Madras Atheneum, July 1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DEATH OF SURGEON-MAJOR MOSTYN.—We regret to announce the death, at the Presidency, of Surgeon-Major J. W. Mostyn, of her Majesty's 76th Regiment, at the General Hospital.

DEATH OF MR. STEVENSON.—We regret to record the death, at the European General Hospital, of Mr. E. P. Stevenson, B.A., Principal of the Ahmedabad College. The deceased gentleman was some years ago the editor of the Deccan Herald newspaper, and was subsequently connected with the Bombay press, which he left to take up the appointment of head master of the Elphinstone Institution, Central School. A few weeks ago he was directed to proceed to Ahmedabad as Principal of the College there, but his health did not permit of his entering upon the duties of that office.

THE COURT MARTIAL ON CAPTAIN MARTIN at Kamptee has closed its proceedings, that officer read his defence last week; the finding having to go to Madras, will not be known for some time to come. To the officer and soldier these long periods of arrest are productive of evil results. To the former it causes suspense which leads him to drinking, and perhaps to break his arrest. To the soldier it leads to the commission of crimes, such as striking his superiors, damaging his kit, &c. It is much to be hoped Sir William Mansfield will, as urged by us in a former article, issue orders for a more speedy and permanent system of dispensing military justice upon both innocent and guilty.

A NATIVE WEDDING ON A GRAND SCALE.—We hear that there were grand doings at Indore the latter part of the past month, in honour of the marriage of one of Holkar's sons. Colonel Meade and other officers were present. The bridegroom is only six years old, and the bride three years old. The head ornaments of one of the elephants was made of pure gold, 2,400 tolas, each tola costing Rs. 17. Holkar exhibited all his treasures. A salute of 210 guns announced to the people the union of the happy pair, at night there were three nautches.—Central India Times.

BOMBAY.

AFFGHANISTAN.

The Delhi Gazette's Cabool Correspondent writes as follows:—June 11.—The following news-letter from the Ameer's camp at Mookur was received to-day by the governor:—

A battle has been fought here between the troops of Sirdar Jellalooddeen Khan and Mohamed Ruffee Khan. The exact number of killed and wounded has not yet been ascertained, but the loss on both sides in this battle has been very heavy. On the Ameer's side Sirdar Meer Uzful Khan has been killed, and Sirdars Ghoolam Mahoyooddeen Khan and Shah Ghasee Sheredil Khan wounded. On Mohamed Ameen Khan's side Sirdar Jelalooddeen Khan is said to have been wounded. Mohamed Ruffee Khan has been defeated and has retreated towards Kelat to his camp at Chultuck. A rumour prevails to the effect that Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan has been killed.

June 12.—Sirdar Wully Mohamed Khan was in Durbar when two sowars arrived from Chardahce, and whispered to him. The Sirdar, accompanied by a few khans, lost no time in riding to Chardahce. About 10 o'clock news was received from thence that the body of Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan had arrived at Dah Muzung. The battle in which Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan was killed was fought on Tuesday, the 11th Mohurum (6th June). Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan and Sirdar Mohamed Ameen Khan happened to meet during the engagement. Ameen Khan fired at Mohamed Allee Khan. The ball passed through Mohamed Allee's head and killed him on the spot; his body was brought into the camp, where there was much grief and lamentation. The Ameer fainted when he saw the body of his son, and immediately assumed mourning. Sirdar Noor Mohamed Khan, son of Mohamed Sudeck Khan, was also killed in the same action. The body of Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan will arrive in Cabool to-morrow. No one can say positively how many men were killed in that battle, but the slaughter was very great. The inmates of upwards of seven hundred Affghan houses in Cabool were heard weeping.

June 13.—The body of Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan arrived in Cabool this morning. The men accompanying the body say that Sirdar Mohamed Ameen Khan was also killed, and that his body has been sent by the Ameer to Candahar. The body of Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan was buried this evening. The following letter was received by the governor from Sirdar Futteh Mohamed Khan in Toorkistan:—

"The Turcoomans have been making an attack on Ukheha. Sirdar Fyz Mohamed Khan, the Hakim of that place, fought against them very bravely, and drove them off. A number of men have been killed and wounded on Fyz Mohamed's side. Please hasten and tell the Ameer to make every effort to assist us, otherwise we shall be compelled to evacuate Toorkistan."

The news has been confirmed by subsequent accounts.

The Delhi Gazette makes the following remarks on the subject:—

"Battles have been fought, but without any apparent advantage to either party in the struggle. The death of the Ameer's son and their apparent, and of Sirdar Mahomed Ameen Khan may affect the views of all concerned in the question at issue; but we fear the present Ameer is unsuited, both by temperament and 'brought-up,' to gain the respect and confidence of the turbulent people over whom he has been called to rule. It is not so much the better claim of another to the Ameeriship, as the feeble character of the present Ameer, that has caused the turmoil and violent partisanship now agitating that beautiful country. Even those who support on principle the choice of the late able Ameer Dost Mahomed seem to yield but a half-hearted allegiance to his successor. To them the success or failure of their chief is a matter of indifference, while the strong party opposed to him are determined that a better-liked and more able Ameer shall rule the Afghans.

Affairs are assuming a threatening aspect in Khelat. The same journal says:—"We understand that intelligence has been received of the march of a strong body of men, said to be 36,000 strong, from the Khelat territories, under Moola Taj Mahomed and another powerful chief, to wage war against the Jam of Lus Beyla. It appears that some time ago a chief on the Khelat side, named Noorooddeen, whose sister is one of the Jam's wives, slew two leading men among the Brahoes, in consequence of a quarrel about some women, and then took refuge in his brother-in-law's territory. The Jam is gathering his men from all directions; but it is thought that he is not sufficiently powerful to resist the invaders, and that the affair will turn out a very serious one for him. The ruler of Khokund has been killed by Kupchat Tartars, and the country made over to the Khan of Bokhara.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GOVERNORSHIP OF BOMBAY.—The Hurkaru, discussing the expected change in Bombay, speculates—rather prematurely, we fancy—upon Sir Bartle Frere's successor:—"The Governorship, we believe, was refused by eight celebrities, including Lords Dufferin, Wodehouse, and the Viceroy, before it was tendered to the retiring Governor, and it may be supposed that it will be tossed about in the lobbies of the Houses of Parliament before it reaches such aspirants as George Campbell, Richard Temple, and Seton-Karr, all of whom are on the qui vive for a Presidency. George Campbell must, we fear, wait until Nassick is the seat of empire before he has a chance."

LOCAL ITEMS.—His Excellency the Governor in Council has appointed Sir Alexander Grant, Bart., to be Director of Public Instruction, in succession to Mr. E. I. Howard, resigned, who returns to practice at the bar of Bombay.—It is officially announced that the Honourable Claudius James Erskine has been appointed, by Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for India in Council, a Member of Council at the Bombay Presidency.—We regret to state that, in consequence of indisposition, Sir Joseph Arnould has been unable to attend in Court since Tuesday last, and that the state of his health obliges him to leave Bombay by the present mail.—The following are the Municipal appointments under the new Act:—Mr. Arthur Crawford, C.S., Acting Collector of Bombay, to be Commissioner; Dr. Pelly to be Controller of Accounts; and Dr. Hewlett, Sanitary Officer.

THE ACCIDENT TO THE STEAMER "BOMBAY."—The P. & O. Co.'s steamer Bombay, about whose safety fears were entertained until Mauritius papers informed us of her arrival at Port Louis, arrived in Bombay harbour at one o'clock P.M. of the 23rd ult. As is already known, the cause of her detention was the breaking of her screw shaft, which happened six days after leaving King George's Sound. She was then about 2,500 miles from the Mauritius, and her commander, Captain G. C. Burne, determined to proceed there under canvas instead of attempting to put back to the port he had recently left; and after a good passage of about thirteen days, the Bombay arrived at Port Louis on 21st May. She left Sydney on the 22nd April, Melbourne on the 26th, and King George's Sound on the 2nd of May. On the following Sunday a sort of grating sound was heard in the engine-room, which seemed to come from the tube of the shaft, but the cause could not be discovered. At the worst, it was supposed that only some of the bearings had got loose; but about half-past 12 o'clock on the night of Sunday, the 7th May, the shaft suddenly snapped, the lower portion with the fan falling into the sea. The vessel was then in lat. 22-17 S., lon. 99-56 E., but fortunately the weather was very pleasant, and when the nature of the accident became known all sail was at once clapped on, and she bore away for Port Louis. The distance—about 2,500 miles—was run in thirteen days, and the Bombay arrived in that port on Sunday, the 21st May, about half-past 10 o'clock in the forenoon. The following morning she was put into dock; the spare shaft which the steamer carried was fitted with as much expedition as possible; on the morning of the 29th she was undocked, and in the afternoon of the same day was on her way to Aden. The steamer Norma, which had arrived at the Mauritius on the 17th, had in the meantime taken the passengers, mails, &c., of the Bombay to Suez. The Bombay arrived at Aden on the 7th of June, at 3-30 P.M., and remained there until the 17th, when she left for Bombay, reaching the latter port in a trifle less than six days. Not the least alarm prevailed among the passengers regarding the accident, and as an ample store of provisions was on board, the passengers, considering all things, seem to have had rather a pleasant time of it.—Times of India.

COMMERCIAL FAILURES.—The suspension of the house of C. E. Mirus and Co., of Cochin, is announced. At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Leekie and Co., of Bombay, it was stated that their liabilities amount to thirty-one lakhs and a quarter, and their assets to twenty-seven lakhs. The estate is to be wound up under inspection. At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. A. H. Huschke and Co., the statement of accounts showed that the liabilities amount to twenty-eight lakhs and three-quarters, and the assets, valued at the present depreciated rates, at very nearly that sum. The firm has been allowed to liquidate under inspection. The balance sheet of Mr. Cursetjee Furdoonjee shows the liabilities to be two crores and forty lakhs, and the assets to be one crore and sixty lakhs. Mr. Cursetjee has been allowed six months to settle his estate, and it is fully expected he will pay a dividend of eleven annas in the rupee—probably more.

EMPLOYMENT OF OFFICERS ON STAFF DUTY.

June 20.—No. 614.—The following letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India is published for general information:—

Military.—No. 152.—

India-office, London, May 16, 1865.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor general of India in Council.

Sir,—Para. 1. I have recently had under my consideration certain questions connected with the employment of officers of H.M.'s British service on staff duty in India, and of the pay and allowances which they should receive while so employed.

2. In the 76th para. of your G.O. No. 332 of April 10, 1861, certain departments of the staff were mentioned as being open alike to officers of the Staff Corps, and to those of either army.

3. These were—

The adjutant general's department.

The quartermaster general's department.

Brigade majors.

Fort adjutants.

4. To these should be added divisional and brigade commands.

5. All appointments on the general staff of the army are made by the Governments in India, and the selection for them is made by the Governments from among the officers serving with regiments in India, with the following exceptions:—

I. Certain of the divisional commands, for which officers are nominated in this country.

II.—The adjutant general and quartermaster general who, according to a recent arrangement, may be selected from the service at large, whether in or out of India, and must be approved by the authorities in this country.

6. The selection of officers for appointment on the personal staff is, from a consideration of their peculiar position and duties, left to the officers to whom they are to be attached.

7. With reference to the officers selected by the Governments in India from regiments on their respective establishments, it has been hitherto a rule of the service, as affirmed by the Court of Directors in their despatch to the Government of India, dated Dec. 24, 1856, No. 217, that the establishment of the Queen's regiments in India should not be augmented in consequence of the appointment of any of its officers to the staff, and also that such officers would cease to hold staff appointments if placed upon half-pay or unattached pay, or if their regiments were removed from the establishment in India.

8. The number of field officers on the establishment of regiments serving in India has recently been reduced, and as it is considered indispensable that there should not be less than three effective field officers for any regiment, it was determined in 1861 that officers of that rank appointed to brigade commands or other staff appointments should be seconded in all cases where there are not more than that number of field officers borne on the establishment of their regiment.

9. An officer so appointed would continue to receive his usual pay and allowances, together with the staff pay of his appointment; but, according to the rule, would cease to hold his appointment on his regiment quitting India. I am of opinion that there is no reason for continuing this rule. The object of it was to prevent, what would have occurred under former circumstances, an additional burden being thrown upon the revenues of India. The present arrangement removes this objection as far as those officers are concerned, and I consider that it would be to the advantage of the service of India to retain in staff situations officers of Indian experience, and therefore that these officers should enjoy the privilege of retaining these situations up to the completion of the usual period of staff service, viz., five years, whether the regiments remain in India or not.

10. With regard, however, to officers under the rank of field officer serving with regiments in India, the establishment remains unaltered, and there is no need, therefore, for seconding such an officer if selected for a staff situation, and the rule of the appointment being vacated on the occurrence of any of the contingencies mentioned in the despatch of Dec. 24, 1856, No. 217, should hold good.

11. It can hardly be considered an exception to this rule; but in order to prevent any misunderstanding, I must refer you to my having already given my sanction to a proposal of your Government that an officer of a British regiment, serving as a probationer for the staff corps, should be allowed to remain to complete such probation, although his regiment might be ordered home.

12. There is a further question to be considered, viz., the principle upon which the salary to be drawn by an officer on half or unattached pay, holding a staff appointment in India, is to be regulated.

13. The present regulation on this point is based on the principle laid down in a despatch from the Court of Directors, dated Sept. 9, 1829, according to which it was declared that "the charge to the company on account of King's officers holding staff appointments, but not attached to regiments on the Indian establishment, must be limited to the staff pay," and "we cannot consent to the issue to officers so circumstanced, of what are termed 'company's allowances,' which are enjoyed to officers regimentally, and not in virtue of staff situations."

14. My despatch dated Aug. 31, 1863, No. 311, regulating staff salaries, did not, as you were subsequently informed, propose any interference with this long established rule.

15. The number of half-pay or unattached officers who can be employed on the staff in India is very small, being limited to the three following classes:—
Divisional commanders appointed from this country.

The adjutant-general and quartermaster general of the three Presidencies when officers of the British army; and—

Personal staff.

16. Most of these are of such rank in the service that, if appointed from a regiment in India, they would, under present arrangements, be seconded, and would receive the same pay as effective officers in their staff appointments.

17. The rule, therefore, is not of much financial importance, and it operates unequally on the officers affected by it.

18. If a half-pay or unattached officer of her Majesty's service is holding a staff appointment, the salary of which is consolidated, he receives, according to present rules, the same amount of salary while actually present for duty that an effective officer would receive in the same appointment. It is only during temporary absence on leave that he suffers under the operation of the present rule, as, in that case, he is permitted to draw only his half-pay in addition to the regulated moiety of staff salary.

19. On the other hand, a half-pay or unattached officer holding a staff appointment, such as that of aide-de-camp to a governor, the staff salary of which has been granted as an addition to staff corps pay, will receive less at all times than an effective officer holding the same office by the difference between his half-pay and the pay and Indian allowances of a staff corps officer.

20. It does not seem desirable or necessary that officers of H.M.'s service, employed in India, should be placed any longer in this exceptional position; and taking all the above circumstances into consideration, and observing that no officers on the half-pay of the British army can hold any staff appointment in India, other than those above-mentioned, it has appeared to me just and desirable to modify the present regulations regarding the pay of such officers, and I have determined that such officers shall henceforth be entitled to receive, while holding a staff appointment in India, the same aggregate pay and allowances and staff salary whether present for duty or absent on temporary leave in India, that an officer of the staff corps of the same substantive rank would be entitled to under similar circumstances.—I have, &c.,

SUICIDE AT SIMLA.—We are sorry to have to record the death of Mr. Blair, at Simla. We take the following from the Mofussilite:—A shocking event occurred here a few days ago. Mr. Blair, the brewer of the Simla Brewery, in a fit of temporary insanity, destroyed himself by jumping down a khud of about one hundred and fifty feet in depth. The unfortunate man, just before he committed the insane deed, rushed out of his bungalow, gave an appalling shriek, climbed up a high hill, and then with another frightful shriek threw himself headlong into the abyss below. Mr. Blair was a quiet and unassuming young man, and well-known to all in the station through the excellent beer he has brewed this year. His loss will be very severely felt by all concerned and interested in the success of the Simla Brewery.—Hurkaru.

TRAFFIC ROUTE BETWEEN BRITISH BURMAH AND WESTERN CHINA.—In 1863 a memorial was presented to her Majesty's Government by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce to solicit the Government to take steps for opening up a route for commerce from Rangoon into Western China. A Parliamentary paper has been issued setting forth what has been done. It seems that after consideration it was thought the best way to open up the country would be to improve the navigation of the River Salween, and an expedition was sent out to examine and report upon the facility of removing certain rocks from the channel of the river in the interior. Unluckily, by the blundering of the resident commissioner, the mode of starting the expedition gave offence to the King of Rangoon, and he would not allow the expedition to proceed. The commissioner got a wiggling from the Government; but the project of a communication with Western China has meantime been thus destroyed.

EXPORT OF SPECIE.—Owing to the advance in the China exchanges, the remittances of specie by the steamer Nyanza, which left Southampton on Friday (yesterday), show a considerable increase, the total being £120,338. The particulars are as follows:—Madras, gold, £1,018, and silver, £10,000; Penang, silver, £5,000; Singapore, silver, £21,500; Hong Kong, silver, £23,350; and Shanghai, silver, £59,470.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

SATURDAY, August 5, 1865.

SIR CHARLES WOOD AND THE INDIAN OFFICERS.

SIR CHARLES WOOD's speech on the 2nd of May, in reference to the case of the Indian Officers, has elicited a reply from the Committee acting in London on their behalf. The latter prolixion is of far greater length than the statements which it refutes. You could master all Sir Charles's mistakes by the reconnaissance of a couple of columns or so of a newspaper; but their rectification involves a "deadly march" through 201 pages of blue-book jungle, utterly destructive to the understanding unless thoroughly acclimatised to such encounters. However, it is easier to be epigrammatic in error than in accuracy; and facts, which are proverbially stubborn things, have a great tendency to stop the way. The Committee, therefore, may be pardoned if in exhausting their subject they exhaust the reader at the same time. And it must be said for them that they have done their work thoroughly, and brought their forces effectively into the field. Not only have they marshalled the facts engaged in excellent form, but they have provided very strong supports in the shape of evidence which cannot fail to assure them the victory if the battle be fairly fought. We are not among those who believe that the Indian Secretary gets up every morning with the determination to do some harm, if possible, to the Indian Officers before going to bed at night; and that, as a matter of private preference, he desires their utter ruin and extinction. But we do believe that he fails to comprehend the real state of the question, and, looking at official convenience, which he confounds with State necessities, rather than to the abstract justice to which the claimants have a right by Act of Parliament, indulges in fallacies and resorts to shifts which are unjustifiable by any plea which he is able to put forward.

In the brief review to which we must restrict ourselves, we cannot do more than glance at the principal points to which the Committee have called attention in what is called the "exposure" of the Indian Secretary's mistakes, or mis-statements. The first is in reference to the petitions. Sir Charles Wood declared, generally, that the grievances had been "got up" for the Indian Officers, and that the petitions presented to the House did not really represent their opinions. The Committee meet this charge by publishing a list of all those documents which have been presented to the House of Commons upon the subject in question, with the names of the officers, and a statement of the nature of the complaint in each case. Including the 700 petitions presented last session, there appear from the official reports to have been 1,251 presented since 1863; and these the Committee believe to be all genuine and bona fide expressions of opinion. It is true, as they elsewhere mention, that forms were in some cases supplied to officers, but these were forms only, to be filled up, and supplied simply because many petitioners were ignorant of the rules of the House in reference to such subjects, and had the documents which they drew up themselves returned in consequence. As a case of repudiation, Sir Charles Wood quoted that of Lieut.-colonel Cherry, from whom he had received a letter denying that he had anything to do with a pamphlet in which he was represented as a complainant, and declaring himself well satisfied with his present position. To this the Committee reply that they know nothing of the pamphlet, but that Colonel Cherry has nothing to do with the question, as he is not a petitioner, and was not alleged to be; and that the grievance in connection with his case is not that he is ill treated, but that he is too well treated, at the expense of others. Owing, it seems, to two vacancies in regimental cavalry colonelcies not being filled up, he is retained as senior of the lieutenant-colonels, in command of a regiment, instead of being placed on full pay retirement, as he should be in proper course. Under these circumstances it is natural that this officer should be rather obliged to Sir Charles Wood than otherwise. His letter, therefore, about which so much has been said, cannot be considered in any way injurious to the petitioners. With regard to Lieut.-Colonel Kelso, who was mentioned by Sir Charles Wood as an instance of the benefit which he considered many officers of his rank to have derived from the changes affecting them, the Committee publish a letter from that officer, in which he declares that, although he got his promotion by the amalgamation a little sooner than he might have done under the former system, the advantage is more than counterbalanced by his loss of "off-reckonings;" and further, that with regard to the bonus upon which Sir Charles remarked, he would have been able to obtain Rs. 40,000 under the old system instead of Rs. 28,000, which was all actually received from his juniors. The cases of Captain Winsin, Major Spottiswood, and Lieut.-Colonel Cooper, it is added, were quoted only to illustrate the general nature of the supercession that had been caused. Lieutenants Brown and McNeil have recently left the service, and the Committee add that Lieutenants McNeil and Brevet Lieut.-Colonel Cooper were in the same regiment; that the former officer was promoted, as before stated, to the rank and pay of substantive Major; and that, although an order had been issued, as Sir Charles Wood stated, that no officer should serve under a junior except by his own consent, it was not given until three years after the evil had been in actual force. Thus a permanent injury has been inflicted which cannot now be redressed; for the rectifying order is issued at a time when the commands in the Bengal Army, consisting of 105, regiments are thus distributed among local and Staff Corps officers:—28 are commanded by 23 local officers, viz., 15 colonels, 7 majors, and 6 captains; and 77 by 77 staff corps officers, whose regimental rank in the local service, that is, in the cadres of their respective regiments, is as follows, viz., 3 majors, 68 captains, and 6 lieutenants. The local service officers senior to the above captains and lieutenants commanding regiments are thus permanently deprived of those commands and allowances for which they entered a seniority service; and unless they swallow their disgust and consent to serve under juniors, they must remain unemployed altogether.

With regard to Sir Charles Wood's statement that supercession of the kind was frequent under the Company, the Committee observe that the few instances which the Right Hon. Baronet has been able to find on record prove the almost invariable nature of the rule. Even in the case of the five regiments which were so cut up at Cabul, to which Sir Charles alluded in support of his assertion, the officers appointed to fill up the gaps were selected with the most marked respect for seniority, being chosen from the whole service, not by name or favour, but according to standing alone.

A principal topic referred to by the Committee is the different manner in which Indian army grievances are inquired into from those of the English army. In the former case, the Minister makes what changes he pleases, in opposition even to his own council; in the latter nothing is done without every opportunity for consideration by both Houses of Parliament. They particularly instance the grievances of the officers of the Royal Marines and of the Quartermasters of the army, upon which commissions sat, and invited the oral testimony of those concerned in their own behalf. As regards the Indian officers, the proceedings have been secret, and all evidence of the kind unheard.

The "Bonus" question, the Committee urge, has been both misunderstood and misrepresented. The Indian practice of contributing money to old officers on retirement, appears to be placed on as solid a basis as that of the purchase system of the English army, except as to the exact money value to be paid—the rate, however, being notoriously not adhered to in the sale of commissions. The claims of British officers to have their payments for commissions, and their right to receive compensation for the moneys paid for obtaining military advancement in rank, have been as fully recognised as any other right of the British subject. Indeed, so far has this been admitted, that documents have been laid before Parliament containing official calculations showing that, if the practice of purchasing commissions be discontinued, £7,126,030 must be paid by the nation to compensate individual officers, though the moneys so paid amounts only to £4,742,280. Yet the Indian officers who have sunk large sums for a similar purpose, with the sanction of Government, are deprived of any advantage in return, and are not awarded the slightest compensation. Upon this subject, as well as upon that of "Off- reckonings," the Committee urge a variety of facts, which place these, as well as the other claims, in a clearer light than they have ever been placed before. That they can fail to obtain recognition from authority seems scarcely conceivable.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE INDIAN ARMY.—SECOND SERIES. No. V.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Before the rebellion had been effectually quelled, Parliament resolved to transfer the authority of the East India Company as rulers of India to the Crown. The Conservatives were in office, though the Governor-general, Lord Canning, was of the opposite party; but he, regardless of all but his country's good, carried on the even tenour of a magnanimous conduct, in spite of the sharp reproofs which he received from the Board of Control, whose party had now succeeded his own in office.

The real causes of the mutiny were patent to the new ministry. They saw that the policy which had been recently introduced, as it affected the rights, the religious institutions, and prejudices of the people, and the absorption of Native States without sufficient reason, were the root and branch of the rebellion. They thought it expedient to recommend her Majesty to issue a proclamation, which the natives deem to be their Magna Charta, and upon its rigid fulfilment rests the integrity of our rule.

The Duke of Argyle doubts whether it was expedient to issue any proclamation to the people of India, such as that "which the Cabinet of Lord Derby issued in the name of the Crown, as if any new authority were for the first time assuming their Government." In respect to religious toleration, there was nothing to promise except an adherence to former practice. In support of this opinion he quotes the opinion of Lord Canning, who observed, "The experience of the last year has furnished examples of the ingenuity with which the meaning of such documents (proclamations) can be perverted, or their language misrepresented by the enemies of the State." With great deference to these high authorities, I entirely differ. Although the acts of the Indian Government were in truth the acts of the Crown, the belief which prevailed in India was to the contrary, owing to those acts being communicated through the East India Company, and the fact of the public officials, civil and military, being notoriously de facto servants of that company. Moreover, the several treaties with Native Princes being made in the name of the Company Bahadur, rendered it impossible that the people of India should imagine that this Company, in all its garb of royalty and power, was nothing more than the shadow of a higher power in England.

The new Ministers of the Crown, on assuming direct control of the government, felt it necessary to pacify the disturbed minds of the people in India by engaging that the measures which it was now well known were the real causes of the mutiny should not be repeated.

The policy of Lord Derby's Government, with Lord Stanley as its representative as Secretary of State for India, was apparently to leave well alone—to change nothing till its inconvenience was established, and, above all, the army. His party agreed that it was expedient to secure permanently a certain quota of European troops in India, not liable to be called away as hitherto on every occasion of European warfare. In 1784 the number fixed on, at a time when our territory was comparatively limited, was 12,000; but whenever the army of England was unemployed, regiments were sent to India at the cost of its revenue, and the local Europeans ceased to be recruited to keep up their wonted strength. In 1856 an Act passed to increase the Anglo-Indian force from 9,000 to 20,000, and in 1858, under Lord Derby's Government, this number was increased to 40,000 men. On the following year the Conservatives went out of office, and the Liberals came in, and with them came the destructive principle. The Act of the previous year was reversed, and the Act passed to abolish the local European force altogether.

Nor was this transfer of the European branch of the local army the only change that was to be effected, but a total subversion took place of the principle on which the native army had flourished for more than half a century, during which it existed on the model of the British army, with which it had served. From the hour that the new administration began to alter what it certainly did not understand, nothing but discontent has prevailed in this and other branches of the service, so that at the end of six years we find no fewer than 717 petitions presented to Parliament by the officers of the Indian Army alone against the injustice they allege they have suffered, to say nothing of the discontent pervading the ranks of the local army on the spot.

Under the so-called Liberal Ministry of 1859 everything hitherto done in India has been deemed wrong. The name of everything has been changed, and new names coined for the army, unknown to the English language or to the army of the Crown. Accounts rendered by skilful Finance Ministers sent out to India by themselves, have been repudiated, but afterwards proved to be correct. The spirit of condemnation of every measure and institution of the East India Company is everywhere evinced. To this feeling may be added the jealousy towards the institutions for the benefit of widows and orphans, as well as retired public servants, both civil and military, maintained out of their private funds, which institutions, although approved of and supported by the Court of Directors, have been condemned, and are actually in course of abolition.

With respect to its army, whatever may be its future fate, the valiant deeds performed by it in a thousand battles and sieges, fought and won during more than a century of its existence, are so engraved in the pages of history that they can neither be tarnished by envy or malice, pedantry or red-tape. RUSSIA IN ASIA.

The Journal de St. Petersburg passes a high eulogium upon Sir Roderick Murchison for his remarks upon the above subject at the annual meeting of the Geographical Society in May last. The writer adds:—"A century ago nations made desperate wars for what was called the colonial system. Not one of them thought itself able to dispense with that necessary appendage in order to obtain at a cheap rate colonial commodities and the raw materials which feed commerce and manufactures. They exhausted themselves by formidable struggles in pursuit of these imaginary riches. England fought for several years to preserve her American colonies, the emancipation of which seemed likely to cause her ruin, and ten years had not passed after their emancipation before her commerce with the United States had increased tenfold. England now regards the colonies which she sows in all parts of the globe only as fruits which she cultivates, which she develops, and which she allows to fall from the tree as soon as they are ripe. For fifty years the empire of the Indies was fought for, and the enemies of England believed that they could not attack her in a more sensible manner than by striking at this presumed source of her power. India has now come to the aid of Europe in the midst of an important crisis by producing cotton, and there is not a man of sense who does not understand that in civilising these countries and making available the riches of their climate England renders the greatest service to the whole world. To-day the system of conquests is condemned by economic science, not only as unjust and immoral, but also as the worst policy. The progress of civilisation, of production, and of exchanges, is acknowledged as the only true source of the riches, power, and prosperity of nations. In presence of these revolutions in ideas it is not strange to see the prepossessions and the prejudices of a former time obstinately persisted in? Sir Roderick Murchison spoke only of the material obstacles, in order to demonstrate the absurdity of the projects of aggression attributed to Russia against the empire of British India. He might have added the moral distance which separates them still more than the geographical distance, and the evident interest which Russia has, not in extending her frontiers by war, but in fixing and consolidating them by peace, commerce, and industry. We will even go farther, and say that those stationary minds which now, in England, would adopt the language of half a century past, and take as a political basis that every State must seek its welfare by doing injury to others, are entirely illogical in pointing out in advance the ambitious projects of Russia. They ought, on the contrary, to encourage her to interfere in the quarrels of the States of Central Asia, to extend over them her influence and her domination, to enter, in fact, on that undefined course of encroachments, of struggles, and of conquests, which she has avowedly and irrevocably renounced, in the conviction that she has nothing to gain by wasting—in these distant and barren adventures—powers and resources for which she has more useful employment on her own proper soil."

THE BANDA AND KIRWEE BOOTY. COURT OF ADMIRALTY.—JULY 25.

GENERAL SIR GEORGE WHITLOCK V. GENERAL SIR HENRY EYRE, EXECUTOR OF LORD CLYDE, AND OTHERS.

This case came before the Court on a question as to interrogatories. The application was by Major Osborn, one of the parties claiming to share in the fund which arose from the Indian mutiny, and the question was as to the parties who were entitled to share in the prize captured from the rebels, which was supposed to be approaching one million sterling, but the amount was not correctly known.

Mr. Butt (with whom was Mr. Pritchard) applied to put interrogatories to the prize agents as to the amount captured.

Mr. Prendergast (of the Chancery bar) appeared for General Sir George Whitlock (who was in Court), and said he had no objection as to the prize agent who was in England. The others were in India and New Zealand, and if the interrogatories were sent out to those places there would be great delay and expense.

His Lordship was of opinion that if the motion was opposed he could not entertain it. He apprehended that the only reference to the Court was to ascertain who were to share in the booty, and he had nothing to do with the amount, nor had he authority to order interrogatories to be answered.

Mr. Butt said the object of Major Osborn was to ascertain the amount which had been taken from the rebels. There had been two captures in 1858, and a question might arise as to who were actual captors and who were constructive captors of the booty. There had been a meeting of counsel of the various parties, and statements desired of the plaintiffs, and one statement required was as to the fund captured. There had been seven millions of rupees seized, and what was wished to be known was, whether that was the result of both captures.

Mr. Prendergast said the Treasury could give the desired information as to the booty seized.

Mr. Butt thought the best course would be to get it from the prize agents. As the plaintiffs did not object, he would take the order on the agent in England.

Mr. Prendergast said his clients were anxious to give all the information in their power.

Mr. Butt said the pleadings were concluded, and the case only remained for hearing.

His Lordship made the order on one agent in this country by consent. He was clearly of opinion that he had no authority to inquire into the amount, but who were entitled to share—what troops—in the booty seized.

Order accordingly.

The proportions allotted were, to Calcutta, £163,500; to Madras, £2,000; and to Bombay, £100,000. The minimum price was, as before, 1s. 10½d. on Calcutta and Madras, and 1s. 10¾d. on Bombay. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras, at 1s. 11½d., will receive about 75 per cent., and on Bombay, at 1s. 11½d., about 70 per cent.

EASTERN ASSAM COMPANY (LIMITED).—The first ordinary general meeting of shareholders in the Eastern Assam Company (Limited) was held on Monday, at the offices of the undertaking, 2, East India-avenue, under the presidency of William Morram, Esq. The secretary read the following report:—"The company was registered on the 11th of October, and a first issue of 18,000 shares, on which £1 was paid up on allotment, was fully taken up. On the 10th November, 1864, orders were sent to the Calcutta agents of the company to appoint a gentleman to take over charge of the estates from the vendors, and Mr. James Warren, of Chubwa, Dibrooghur, a planter of great experience, consented to act on their behalf. In their letters of the 6th of February, 1865, Messrs. Thomson, Shaw, and Co., of Calcutta, the company's agents, announced this, but it was only by a letter from them of the 10th June that the information was received that the report had reached Calcutta. It has not yet arrived in this country, and the directors regret that they were compelled by the articles of association to call the first half-yearly meeting in the present month of July, as had it been otherwise, they might have been able to give the shareholders a fuller and more accurate account of their property than it is in their power now to do. In order that they may not again be thus inconveniently limited to certain times, a resolution will be submitted to the effect that the general meetings be held in the months of January and July in every year, or within two months before or after those days respectively, instead of one month as prescribed by the memorandum of association. Although the report has not yet been received, Mr. James John Haly has been in charge of the property for the company since the 21st of December last, and the funds for carrying on the plantations have been supplied by the company since that date." The report was adopted, and the retiring auditors re-elected.

THE NOWGONG TEA COMPANY OF ASSAM (LIMITED).—The first ordinary general meeting of the shareholders in the Nowgong Tea Company of Assam, was held on Monday, at the offices of the company, 4, East India-avenue; the chair was occupied by Mr. Barry, M.P. The secretary read the report, detailing the operations of the company since its commencement, and embracing the opinion of a gentleman who in his private capacity had visited the company's estates, which opinion was of the most favourable character, as respects the future of the company. The chairman, in answer to a question, said that he knew of no reason why the shares of the company should have suffered depreciation in value, which he felt bound to say was in the opinion of the directors purely fictitious. They thought that shares could not be bought at the prices given in the official list. The report was unanimously adopted.

THE ORIENTAL FINANCIAL CORPORATION (LIMITED).—The ordinary half-yearly general meeting of the members of this corporation was held on the 28th ult., at the London Tavern; Mr. J. Brown in the chair. The report presented and balance-sheet showed that the affairs of the corporation were in anything but a satisfactory position. Amongst other things it stated that it had been deemed advisable to write off a further amount of £1,000 from the preliminary expenses. This reduced the amount at the credit of profit and loss on the 30th ult. to £11,372. The directors did not intend declaring an ad interim dividend for the past half-year. The directors have been enabled to place the securities of the corporation on a most satisfactory footing, but from want of capital the business done elsewhere than in India had been necessarily restricted. The transactions in Calcutta had been of a satisfactory nature, but the latest letters from our agents in Bombay bring advice of their having been obliged to carry over some of the loans they had entered into. Since the report was printed the directors had been placed in a position to lay before and recommend to the members an amalgamation with another corporation. It was proposed that in the event of the amalgamation being carried out, three of the directors of the Oriental Financial Corporation would join the board of the London and Mediterranean Bank, so that the realisation of their assets would be under the supervision of their own directors, who were thoroughly conversant with the affairs of the corporation.

The following are the rolls which have been received, viz.:—8th, 10th, 20th, 23rd, 34th, 38th, 42nd, 53rd, 64th, 75th, 78th, and 84th Foot.

VISIT OF JAPANESE TO BEDFORD.—On Saturday, the 29th ult., a large party of Japanese, sent over by Prince Satsuma to gain a knowledge of the agriculture and manufactures of Great Britain, paid a visit to the Britannia Iron Works at Bedford. They were accompanied by Professor Williamson, of the London University; by the Professor of Natural Philosophy at the Glasgow University, and other eminent scientific men, who have the direction of their investigations. The foreign visitors took great interest in the machinery and the processes in operation, and seemed astonishingly quick in comprehending the various details. They appeared very unwilling to leave the works, but steam having been got up in one of the new steam ploughing engines, about fifteen of the Japanese crowded on to it wherever they could get a footing; and it was highly amusing to see with what delight they travelled in all directions over the extensive quadrangle of the works. After spending about three hours in them they took luncheon with the Mayor of Bedford (Mr. James Howard), and proceeded to witness the steam-ploughing on Messrs. Howard's farms at Clapham. A reaping machine which was at work was quickly handled and cleverly managed by them. Subsequently they visited Biddenham for the purpose of viewing Mr. Charles Howard's celebrated short horns and sheep; and, after dining with the Mayor, they left for London by the last train, expressing their unbounded delight with the day's visit to Bedford.

THE ABYSSINIAN PRISONERS.—We read in a letter from Djeddah that Captain Cameron, her Britannic Majesty's Consul in Abyssinia, has been relieved of the fetters in which he was long arbitrarily confined, and that his complete release is shortly expected. King Theodore still keeps fettered hand and foot MM. Stern and Rosenthal, the German Protestant missionaries. His Majesty is very ill-disposed towards these two gentlemen for having ridiculed his claim of descent from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

Lieut.-Colonel Reilly's battery of the B brigade Royal Horse Artillery is ordered to undergo a course of practice at the Government School of Gunnery, Shoeburyness.

THE NEW THEORY in RIFLES.
Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown.—(See Times, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

GINGER has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine, and, combined with camomile, it is the most efficient stomachic tonic known, for while the ginger relieves the stomach from distension and flatulency, arising from impaired digestion, the camomile strengthens the coats of the stomach, and by that means gives it a healthy and invigorating tone. So highly concentrated is this preparation, it is unimpaired by age or climate, and well adapted for exportation. In Gout, Spasms, Dysentery, Cholera, or those complaints incidental to tropical climates, it is invaluable, as in numerous cases a dose or two has checked and frequently cured most alarming attacks. No family should be without it. Sold in half-pints, quarter-pints, and one-eighth pints.

Agreeable Seidlitz Powder, in one bottle, protected by a case, with measure and spoon included. The advantage of this preparation is the perfect combination of the solid ingredients of the Seidlitz Spring in one compound powder.

It is very cooling and refreshing, well adapted for exportation, or travellers by land or sea.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinidine.—For the prevention of Fever, Intermittent or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria.

No person exposed to the influence or predisposing cause of Fevers should be without it, for if taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria.—Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.

The above articles prepared only by THOS. WILKINSON late Wilkinson, Bridge, & Co., 270, Regent-street London, W.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.

This invaluable remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as effluvia, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

Earl RUSSELL sent to the College of Physicians a communication received by him from Manila (where Cholera had been raging fearfully), to the effect, that, of all remedies tried, Chlorodyne was the most effective.—See Brit. med. J., Dec. 31, 1864.

CHLORODYNE (TOWLE'S). Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c., immediately relieved by a dose of TOWLE'S CHLORODYNE, which is admitted to be a most wonderful and valuable medicine, and preferred by the profession for its known composition and moderate price.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.

Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1864. Ship Gertrude.
Mr. TOWLE.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marselle, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne, from which myself and crew found immediate relief; and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

(Signed) GEORGE ALLEN, Chief Officer.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animals.

Life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitos, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

SPORTSMEN will find this an invaluable remedy for destroying fleas in their dogs, as also ladies for their pet dogs.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article, which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—WEAKENING

WEATHER.—The sultry summer days strain the nerves of the feeble and decrepit, and this state eventuates in disease, unless some restorative, such as these purifying Pills, be found to correct the disordering tendency. Holloway's medicines give tone to the nervous system, which is the source of all vital movements and presides over every action which maintains the growth and well-being of the body. No one, therefore, can over estimate the necessity of keeping the nerves well strung, and the ease with which these Pills accomplish that end. They are the most unalarming antidote to indigestion, irregular circulation, palpitation, sick headache, and costiveness that were ever invented, and, in consequence, have attained the largest sale and highest reputation.

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-
Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-
IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE over-due Calcutta mail, with dates to the 17th of June, arrived in London yesterday, and the missing Bombay mail of the 24th June came to hand this morning. The latter, which did not finally leave Bombay until the 12th of July, brings an extra summary of Bombay news to that date, and also overland papers from Calcutta to the 24th of June.

The Orissa left Bombay on the 27th June, carrying between fifty and sixty passengers. Two days after starting she encountered very rough weather, which continued with more or less severity until her return to Bombay on the 10th. Her Commander, Captain Curling, has furnished an account of her adventures to the Peninsular and Oriental Company's Superintendent at Bombay. From this document it appears that from the 30th of June to the 3rd of July the ship had made only 450 miles. On the 3rd of July she made a great quantity of water, and through her heavy labouring burst up the bunkur bilge boards, the coal falling through into the bilges and choking the pumps. These were repaired, but it was with the utmost difficulty that the water could be kept sufficiently under to admit of progress. On the morning of the 5th the wind had much increased, blowing in furious gusts, and there was every indication of an approaching cyclone. The captain therefore deemed it advisable to put the ship's head to the eastward before she became unmanageable; and having taken this precaution, he held a conference with the officers and the naval agent, and the result was that, taking into consideration that there was only four days' coal on board, that water was short, owing to an injury done to the condenser, that the ship was still making a great deal of water, that the leak could not be found, that the pumps were continually getting choked and useless, and that the chances of reaching Aden were very doubtful, it was unanimously agreed to return to Bombay. That the course was a prudent one is confirmed by the fact that very bad weather was reported near Aden; and indeed it is considered that Captain Curling, with a disabled and leaky ship, would have had no chance of reaching that port. The voyage was a trying one for all concerned; but everybody behaved well, the male passengers taking their regular turns at the pumps, and exerting themselves in trimming the ship by the removal of the cargo, and the ladies rendering effective assistance by not making any complaints and by their general cheerfulness encouraging the workers in their exertions. There were, fortunately, no accidents of a serious character, but a great deal of damage, including the loss of a lifeboat and nearly all the glass and crockery. The passengers were, of course, very glad to get on shore, and when they were a little at leisure, voted an address to the captain in cordial appreciation of his conduct.

The news brought by this arrival has been for the most part anticipated, except as far as the official gazettes are concerned. In Calcutta the judgment upon the "Great Rent Question" was the principal subject of discussion. There was nothing of importance from the North-East Frontier; but a moveable column had been formed at Darjeeling, fully equipped with mountain train and all necessary camp equipage, ready to move on any point at a moment's notice. The money market presented no new feature. Money was abundant, and only wanted capitalists and banks to impart vitality and vigour; but nothing of the kind could be expected until the receipt of better accounts from Bombay.

At Bombay—where commercial affairs seemed to have undergone no particular change—there was little stirring, the return of the Orissa being apparently the most important topic since the departure of the regular mail. It was noticed that Brigadier-general Raines, C.B., had taken two months' privilege leave from Aden to the Mauritius. No one, observes a writer at Bombay, will say that he went away to escape the cholera, but it is not well judged for a general officer commanding a station to leave it when pestilence is abroad.

It is said that in the battle between the Ameer of Cabool and the Candahar chiefs, no less than sixteen Sirdars, all relatives of the Ameer, fell fighting on his side. There was a report that Shereef Khan had sent in his submission to the Ameer, and sued for peace.

The Punjab, it is stated, will soon become the scene of an enterprise of considerable magnitude—nothing less than the reclamation of almost the entire province of Googaira, where there are about three hundred thousand barren acres, awaiting the canal only to turn them into the finest reproductive soil. Connected with this scheme is also one for farm and stock breeding of horses and horned cattle, such as shall supply all India.

The Commander in Chief publishes a notification, to the effect that the forms and instructions to guide the Annual Board of Survey for Arms, as laid down in Horse Guards Circular Memorandum No. 235 of December 3, 1862, shall in super-succession of G.O.B.F. of the 16th of October, 1861, be made applicable to British troops serving in India. In consequence of this change the pay of trained armourer sergeants, with regiments and in the ordnance department, is fixed at 5s. per diem for the seven days in the week, and that of reduced armoury sergeants to 2s. 6l. per diem for seven days in the week, the latter to be eligible for promotion to their former rank, and re-employment with regiments, should their conduct prove deserving of recommendation.

The Invalide Russe publishes an elaborate explanation of the circumstances which have led to the occupation of Taschkend by the Russians. The measure, it is declared, was a necessary consequence of the capture of Tchemkend, which the Khokanese only fortified in 1864 as a point of support in their incursions into the province of Turkistan. After the loss of that town they concentrated themselves in Taschkend, whence they essayed an attack against Turkistan during the winter, but which they were unable to approach owing to the heroic sotiia of Cosacks, which was almost entirely exterminated in the affair of Ikane. Taschkend had thus replaced Tchemkend as the rallying point for the hostile attacks of the Khokanese. With the intention of preventing these Major general Tcherniaiew began by establishing in January last, shortly after the affair at Ikane, a detachment half-way between Tchemkend and Taschkend. Intelligence of a movement of the Emir of Bokhara towards the Syrdaria, at the same time threatening Taschkend, determined Major-General Tcherniaiew to advance to Tchernchik, so as to be able to observe simultaneously from that point the Bokharian and Khokanese troops. In the night of the 15th to the 16th June the Khokanese garrison were surprised by an assault of Russian troops, and expelled from Taschkend. The Russians, it is added, only occupy the city for a short time, until its existence independently of Khokan is no longer threatened. After having given independence to Taschkend, whose population is distinguished for its industry and commerce, Russia, which has no need to annex it to her possessions, will only have to watch over the tranquillity and the security of her own commercial relations with Central Asia.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which may be expected at Marseilles about Sunday or Monday next.

GOVERNMENT AND MR. E. TAYLOR.

The case of Government v. Mr. E. Taylor was, as we stated in a previous issue, taken up in the Court of the Deputy Commissioner, Jullundur, on the 13th of June. Mr. William Tayler came from Simla, and appeared on behalf of Mr. E. Taylor. The case for Government was conducted by Mr. I. P. C. Anderson, assisted by Mr. Penn, the learned judge of the Small Cause Court.

The issues of the case were laid down by the court in consultation with the parties, and on the day mentioned the evidence on the part of the plaintiff was commenced. The substantial question at issue is a simple one. The Lumburdars and principal men of the village of Kald had sold the right of digging kunkur in their village to Mr. E. Taylor; and Mr. Anderson having discovered that all the co-sharers had not signed the deed of sale, had induced these non-subscribers to execute a second deed in his favour. The question, therefore, was whether Mr. Taylor's title under the first sale was valid, or whether the title subsequently acquired by Mr. Anderson was such as to override it. The evidence adduced by the plaintiff, as far as it went, was such as to clearly establish the fact that the first sale made to Mr. Taylor was made in good faith, and though the deed was only signed by the Lumburdars and other principal proprietors, it was acquiesced in by the whole proprietary body, who were present, and consenting to the transfer. Some amusement was caused by the evidence given, or rather attempted to be given, by the village accountant, who came with a story evidently cut and dry, but was interrupted and seriously embarrassed by the court questioning him in an order different from that in which he had prepared his statement.

But the most startling fact, which was elicited by accident just before the Court rose, was that the individuals who, after consenting to the sale to Mr. Taylor, had been induced to sign a second deed in favour of Government, had actually been induced or compelled to give their depositions on oath, in support of the latter document, before some functionary not yet clearly indicated. This extraordinary revelation seemed to excite considerable sensation in the Court, which was enhanced by the Deputy-Commissioner distinctly repudiating any sanction to so unwarrantable a procedure. At the next sitting we shall probably learn at whose instance, by whose authority, and before whom this eccentric action was taken. We cannot suppose that so illegal and unseemly a course can have been sanctioned by the learned gentleman selected by Government to assist the plaintiff in the case. We were not surprised to find that, when the plaintiff's principal witnesses so regularly broke down, Mr. Penn and Mr. Anderson anxiously applied for an adjournment of ten days, for the purpose, as they alleged, of sending up the issues for the inspection of the Financial Commissioner. But, as the only reason they could give for this wild proposal was the illogical fact that Mr. Anderson had not questioned his witnesses exactly in the order he wished, we were not surprised to learn that the Deputy-Commissioner did not see the necessity for granting the request.

The case was resumed on the 15th June.

The principal points of interest elicited on this day were those connected with certain proceedings on the part of the plaintiff, which we apprehend we may safely call extraordinary. The Government, it appears, appointed Mr. Penn, the Judge of the Small Cause Court of Jullundur, to assist Mr. Anderson in the conduct of the suit. This selection was doubtless grounded upon the belief of Mr. Penn's legal qualifications and long experience, which, it was presumed, would serve to keep the somewhat impulsive temperament of Mr. Anderson under decent restrictions. But, strange to say, Mr. Penn and Mr. Anderson both seemed to have fallen into the strange delusion that the former gentleman was justified, not only in affording Mr. Anderson the benefit of his judicial experience and legal acumen, but also in lending the aid of his judicial functions to subserve the cause of his employers. Under this somewhat antediluvian phantasy, it transpired, as we mentioned in our last notice, that Mr. Anderson had actually induced Mr. Penn to take the evidence of the parties who made the second sale in favour of Government in his court, either with closed doors or at least in the absence of all other parties. The severe cross-examination by Mr. W. Tayler on these points created feelings of mingled surprise, indignation, and amusement. The proceedings of this day occupied the court from ten A.M. to six P.M., and there was yet further evidence to be taken. The comic element was again present on this occasion. Mr. Anderson suddenly arose, and applied to the court for the removal of two of the Jullundur officials from within the sacred precincts of the court. On what grounds this extraordinary application was made is at present a mystery, but the request was not complied with; and after a long and patient hearing the court rose, and all parties retired in a state of exhaustion.

The case was resumed on the 16th June.

During the day's proceedings, which lasted from ten A.M. to six P.M., a proposal was made to postpone the case for the purpose of its being laid more fully than it appears it has as yet been before the Local Government. In consequence, on the sitting of the court on the following day, the 17th June, an application for an adjournment to the 17th October, 1865, was made by the plaintiff, Mr. J. P. C. Anderson; at the same time Mr. Penn, his legal adviser, begged that his formal protest against such a step might be recorded.

The postponement asked for was granted by the court; and at the express request of the plaintiff all further comments on this extraordinary case will for the present be deferred.

THE OUDH INVESTIGATION.

Those who have maintained the strict analogy between Oudh and the North-Western Provinces in all points connected with the tenure of land, are reduced, by the result of the inquiry referred to in our telegram of yesterday, to the dilemma of admitting that our settlement of the latter has been based upon a gratuitous assumption, or that the only justification that could be offered for the Viceroy's late dangerous policy was visionary. The same rights that existed in the N.W.P. must exist in Oudh; there were occupancy rights in the North-Western Provinces; therefore, there must be occupancy rights in Oudh; such was the argument put forward by the advocates of the inquiry. But if this argument be true, its converse also must be true, i.e., if the case of Oudh and that of the N.W.P. are the same, and it has been found that occupancy rights have never existed in the former, then they could never have existed in the latter. If, on the other hand, the theory of analogy be abandoned, then there remain no grounds which could justify the Viceroy in putting to each tenant questions which must have tempted him to set up claims against his landlord that he had never thought of preferring of his own accord, though the Court were open, and time and opportunity had already been specially allowed him to do so. It is fortunate for the talookdars of Oudh that their tenantry are either remarkably honest or remarkably stupid. Had a similar enquiry been instituted, under similar circumstances, in a province peopled by Bengalees, the result would certainly have been very different. Still more fortunate are the talookdars of Oudh in having possessed the pledge of an honest Statesman, and in having had good men and true to stand by them and him. Had that pledge not existed, it cannot for a moment be doubted that the present Government would have made short work of them; for to the respectable precedent of an established policy, which troubled itself little about facts when opposed to a favourite theory, it added the bitterest hostility. We may say that the Oudh tenantry are also fortunate in having been thus saved from their friends. We have been so often over the ground already, that we shall not now go over it again, and discuss the ruinous consequences from which the province of Oudh has had the good fortune to escape. We leave the future condition of Oudh itself to convince those who still believe that the landlord is the natural enemy of the cultivator, and to prove that we have done irreparable mischief, as well as gross wrong, in destroying the talookdaree system of the North-Western Provinces.—Englishman.

THE CLIMATE OF INDIA.

It is of very great importance for the efficiency of our administration of India, and the stability of our power in the East, that the exact truth should be known as to the healthiness of English life in the tropics. The most exaggerated ideas prevail in England on this subject, even among professional men who have no excuse for their ignorance. Lord Macaulay hoped to attract to India the flower of the educated youth of England by the competitive system. If this has not yet been realised the failure is to be ascribed as much to the belief that India is a pesthouse, as to the mismanagement of the competitive system, or the comparative decline in the value of Indian salaries under the influence of the rise of prices. The certainty of a fair salary, early marriage, respectable pension, and a provision for widows and orphans, is so attractive to middle-class families at home, and the educated labour market there is so filled with able men, who spend their early manhood in jostling their fellows, that Indian appointments would be undoubtedly most popular, but for the dread of the climate. That appeals to the imagination, and works on the most powerful emotions of the youth who thinks of India, through a mother's love and the family doctor's weakness or ignorance. Sanitary reports referring to private soldiers, and the one-sided pictures drawn by temporary visitors of the unhealthiness of the great cities, work upon the fears of the female members of English families, in a way which effectually deprives India of the most promising young men. This feeling is even worse in quarters where, it might be supposed, a knowledge of the facts ought to have dispelled it. The upper ranks of the governing class to which India looks for a supply of Viceroys, Governors, and Members of Council, both legal and financial, and the bar to which she looks for judges on whom the mantle of Sir B. Peacock may worthily fall, have an unreasoning dislike to Indian appointments. The leading journals fan this into a flame of positive antipathy, by articles directed against the continuance of the capital in Calcutta. Yet the truth is that, so far as Viceroys, Governors, and Members of Council are concerned, the climate enjoyed is equal to that delighted in by the millionaire who migrates from Florence in the summer, to Rome in the winter, varying villaggiatura life in the Appennines with the ecclesiastical dissipation of the carnival in the Holy City. Calcutta and Simla, Allahabad and Nynce Tal, Lahore and Murree, Bombay, Malabeshwur and Poona, Madras and Bangalore or the Neilgherries,—surely our official swallows enjoy a perpetual Italian summer!

Now what are the facts as to the comparative unhealthiness of the life of civil and military officers in India? Let us bring the exaggerated and ignorant fears of the fond mammas, the owing sisters, the pale students, the frightened barristers and the timorous Statesmen of England to the test of statistics, drawn up by English actuaries who have no interest in India which is not purely scientific. The tables published by the Indian Sanitary Commission, which has been accused, and justly, of exaggerating Indian mortality, and a paper in a recent number of the Statistical Society's Journal on the rates of mortality and marriage amongst Europeans in India, by Mr. Samuel Brown, F.S.S., enable us to state authoritatively that European life is almost as safe in India as it is in England—that the difference in mortality is so slight as not for a moment to weigh against the great advantages of an Indian career. Mr. Brown's materials are the accurate data supplied by the funds of the Bengal, Madras, and Bombay Civil Services. After a series of tables and figures, which we need not inflict on our readers, he comes to these conclusions:—“1. That a considerable diminution has taken place of late years in the mortality at the middle ages, 20 to 35, and at all ages if we compare it with the earlier observations of the present century. 2. That a very marked distinction may be observed in favour of married life. 3. That as compared with Farr's English healthy life table, the difference varies from $\frac{1}{4}$ to 1 per cent. higher between the ages 20 and 55, after which it fluctuates, but is generally scarcely higher than the English rates.” So much for civilians. Mr. Nelson, the most experienced of English actuaries, who has had much to do with Indian vital statistics, after a careful study of the records in the India House, shows that among the retired officers of the Bengal military service the rate of mortality does not differ widely from that of the general population of England and Wales at corresponding ages; and further, that the rates of mortality amongst retired members both of the civil and military services are almost identical. The gloomy tables of the Indian Sanitary Commission state the mortality of officers in active employment at 3.85 per cent., but this includes all the casualties from action in all the great wars up to the mutiny. Since 1859 the mortality of officers has been hardly higher than that of civilians. Mr. Brown states that, by “judicious arrangements,” the mortality among not only officers but privates may be reduced to the ordinary rate amongst European civilians in India, whilst the mortality amongst the latter has for many years undergone so great an improvement as to present at some ages no very striking contrast with that of similar classes in England. Among Bengal civilians the rate of mortality was 2.04 per cent. from 1800 to 1830, and only 1.70 per cent. from 1831 to 1858, including the serious casualties in the mutiny, when 31 out of 134 deaths were due to violence. The great improvement in the style of living, and the facilities for visiting England within the last ten years, have, no doubt, reduced this mortality, omitting the mutiny, almost to that of civil life in rural England and much below that of great cities like London and Glasgow.

It will add to the completeness and value of the vital statistics which we have recently discussed, if we compile from the latest returns a table showing the mortality of all classes in India at the latest dates. There died out of every thousand in one year in India:—

	Average from 1861 to 1863 inclusive.
Soldiers' Children	90.37
Native Prisoners	82.88
Soldiers' Wives	49.57
English Soldiers	30.33
English Officers (about)	25.00
Retired do. above fifty	28.00
Indian Civilians	18.0 from 1851 to 1858
East Indians	17.6 „ 1837 to 1847
Sepoys	15.18 „ 1861 to 1863

The actual mortality of the sepoy is reduced by invaliding, and the rate for East Indians applies only to the prudent class which subscribes to the Uncovenanted Service Fund. We must, then, come to the conclusion that the life of a civilian in India, especially if he be married and temperate in his habits, runs so very little risk compared with that of an ordinary professional man in England, as to dispel those fears regarding climate which statistics as well as daily experience proves to be baseless. The climate certainly has its drawbacks for the mass of Englishmen in India who cannot go to the Hills like Members of Council every year. But the greatest of them is nothing more than negative—an absence for half the year of robustness, of that consciousness of animal power which makes even the mists and winds, the snow and rain of Scotland far from disagreeable to the sons of the North. An experience of twelve years has taught us that there is nothing intolerable or annoying to the Englishman in India who lives as he ought to live, except the curse of separation, and that is compensated for by the absence of pinching poverty and depressing care which weigh down the energies of half our countrymen at home far more than a tropical climate does here.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

“SIR JOHN LAWRENCE,” says a correspondent in Lucknow, “has contrived to set everybody by the ears here. Sir George Couper's dream of a lifetime, the Chief Commissionership of Oudh, has vanished. Mr. Davies, who was meant for it by the Viceroy, can't accept the officiating appointment in the teeth of that sharp reprimand from Sir C. Wood. He is the scape-goat of the occasion, and probably feels sufficiently uncomfortable in consequence. As a settlement officer he was one of the batch who made the hideous mistake (which may yet bear a rich crop of insurrectionary spirit in the Punjab) of creating whole tribes of interlopers, called hereditary cultivators, who are irresponsible to Government and laugh at the landlords who pay the revenue. It seems as if every young hand that turned up used to be tried at a settlement; a settlement indeed; an operation of so vital, conclusive, intricate and judicial a character, chucked over to a parcel of youths taught to consider Thomason a real Gamaliel.”

THE BHOOTANESE.—A correspondent from Bhootan Frontier, under date the 3rd June, sends us the following:—“Reports are current here that the Bhootas have assembled on the hills, to plunder those Dooar villages which are situated at the entrance of the passes, not the hills, which the Bhootas can descend upon and take whatever they like, and easily make their escape before the arrival of the troops from a far distance. The communications between distant places in the Doors at present have become so difficult that no man can move from his hut on account of the incessant rains, and the native boats are, in a manner, useless, in the impetuosity of the Dooar streams.—Englishman.”

CAPTURE OF AN OUTLAW.—A letter from Umballa mentions the capture in the Jheend territories and the Umballah Police circle, of a notorious outlaw and murderer, on whose head a reward of two thousand rupees had been placed. A young police officer, Mr. Aldridge, of the Ferozepore district, has the honours of the day; he rode eighty miles in the sun, and captured the miscreant in fancied security, passing himself off as an injured individual who had been previously maltreated. The capture of such an offender shows that some members of the new police have the knack of securing those peculiar sources of information which enable them to dispense with the aid of their own, sometimes, as in this case, corrupt, and bring great offenders to justice. We trust that a portion of the reward will be reaped by the zealous and clever young official. Captain Parsons will have to look to his laurels.

THE RENT CASE.—The Friend of India says:—The full bench of the High Court of Bengal delivered their judgments on the administration of Act X. in the Town-hall of Calcutta on Monday. The Chief Justice was alone in adhering to the principle of the decision which he gave in the case of Mr. Hills, that competition shall regulate the enhancement of rent, and that rent may be enhanced to a point absolutely fair and equitable. The other judges substantially agreed with Mr. Trevor, whose judgment will regulate all the Courts till legislation interferes, that, according to custom, Act X. has made a twelve years' occupancy tenant in some sense a co-proprietor with the landlord, who will not be allowed to raise the rent except proportionally to the increase of profit, so that the tenant shall share that increase. It must be remembered that the Court was deciding what were the objects and provisions of the Act and its framers, not what is absolutely best for the country and most just to the landlord, in the light of political economy.

THE NEW LAW OF CONTRACTS.—The Bill to provide for the regulation and enforcement of contracts for labour at places to which, by virtue of such contracts, the labourer is to be conveyed at the expense of the employer, has been submitted to the Viceroy for assent. His Excellency observed that the Bill has been considerably improved in committee, but the Governor-General does not think that the change in Section 32, whereby six months has been substituted for two months as the period within which, if his wages are not paid, any labourer may demand that his contract may be cancelled, is an improvement. The Viceroy said, it is true that he can sue for the recovery of his wages after two months; but this is not, in the opinion of the Governor-General, a satisfactory remedy for a labourer who must continue to serve. His Excellency thinks, also, that Rs. 120 is too large a sum to require of a labourer before he can purchase his discharge. The sum ought not to exceed in any case the fair estimate of expenses to which the planter had been originally put in bringing the labourer to the plantation, and should have been liable to reduction in proportion to the period the contract had still to run. Although, however, the Governor-General felt unable to approve of the Bill in the respects noticed above, his Excellency did not think it necessary, on this ground, to withhold his assent from a measure which he regards, on the whole, as an improvement on the existing law. The Viceroy accordingly returned the Bill, with his assent signified thereon; but, in doing so, he observed that much will depend, as regards the labourer, on the careful selection of the protector, and on the manner in which his duties are discharged. His Excellency, therefore, took this opportunity of urging on the Bengal Government's attention the necessity of providing that a watchful supervision shall be exercised over the working of the different provisions of the Bill.

MORTALITY IN THE 11TH REGIMENT.—We regret to learn that much of the mortality in the 11th Regiment, caused chiefly by sun-stroke, is attributable to the unnecessary work and exposure to which this corps has been exposed. As many as three men have died of heat apoplexy in a single day, and this in the most healthy station of Bengal. There has been no fighting, no disturbance, and next to no sickness, but, thanks to excessive zeal and ignorance, drills, parades, and inspections, her Majesty's 11th Regiment has lost upwards of thirty-five men since it landed in October last. At length an order from head quarters has put a stop to the old attempt to introduce into India, and at its hottest season, the military practices pursued at Dover and the Curragh. The soldiers of the 11th Foot are no longer to drop down and die of apoplexy, in order to vindicate the excellence of its marching and wheeling. It is not many years ago that a commanding officer marched his regiment, daily, at 11 P.M., in heavy marching order. That the gallant gentleman sat his charger with infinite grace, and some degree of comfort, we made small doubt; not so, however, his men, half of whom might have been found in dhoolies and gharries before the corps had advanced a dozen stages towards Umballa. A peremptory order from Simla saved the regiment, and disgusted its Colonel. A similar order, or one for rigid inquiry into the present management of the regiment, appears not altogether uncalled for.—Hurkaru.

A SLIP BETWEEN THE CUP AND THE LIP.—We are informed that a case is to be heard in the Sealdah Court on the 29th instant, in which the plaintiff is a disappointed wooer, and the defendant the parent of the young lady who dashed the cup of happiness from the lips of the expectant lover. The plaintiff, we are told, had for some time paid his addresses to the young lady, and in the course of time love "ran so smooth" that the wedding day was eventually fixed; but subsequently, however, was unfortunately postponed. One postponement followed another, until ultimately he was decidedly rejected. The action now brought by him is to recover the value of the various presents made to the young lady by him during the period of his courtship, as well as the value of the lady's dress and ring for the anticipated wedding. This step, it is stated, would not have been taken by the young man had he not been made aware that he was the fourth who had been thus served.—Indian Daily News, June 2.

THE DIFFICULTY WITH NEPAUL.—Mr. J. D. Gordon, of the Bengal Civil Service, who was deputed by Government to investigate the case of certain alleged outrages on the Nepaul and British Frontiers, lately submitted his report on the subject. In the main, the inquiry shows that the charge brought against the four British subjects by the Nepalese Durbar is untrue, and that Nepalese subjects were the aggressors. Still, the affair rose out of bad blood between the men of the two villages, and, in particular, was owing to the improper conduct of the four British subjects—Bhairao, Alaick, Roushun, and Jyeram—while passing through the Nepalese village of Sumpheolwa. There was not, apparently, any premeditation on either side. With regard, therefore, to the above considerations, and to the points urged by Mr. Gordon, the Viceroy considered that it would be sufficient to demand from the Nepaul Government the release of Alaick, and to require them to abandon their claim for the punishment of Jyeram and Roushun, the British Government, for its part, waiving its demand for the punishment of the Nepalese subjects concerned in the murder of Bhairao. The resident at Nepaul has, accordingly, been directed to communicate to the Durbar the decision at which the Governor-General in Council has arrived, and to demand from thence the release of Alaick.

THE BRIDGE OVER THE JUMNA AT ALLAHABAD.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette says:—The bridge over the Jumna is now nearly ready, and the line is to be opened, I hear, on the 10th. This is a great blessing, for there is no more trying part of the journey from Calcutta to Delhi than this troublesome crossing.

TRADE WITH LHASSA.—The civil war at Lhasa has ceased, and a proclamation has been issued by the Thibit Dhurm Rajah, that all sorts of people, without distinction, are now permitted to trade in Lhasa; but, as long as the Bhootan war shall continue, the Bhootas have been prohibited to enter Thibet.

CHOLERA.—We are sorry to hear from Nusseerabad that cholera has broken out in that station. The European troops, consisting of H.M.'s 106th Regiment and Artillery, have been ordered into camp.

GENERAL LLOYD.—General G. W. A. Lloyd, of the Bengal Army, whose death at Darjeeling we announced in last number, entered the service in 1804, and was posted to the 28th Native Infantry, which corps he long commanded. The General served in Java and China, and commanded the force in the Santhal insurrection; he was for some years Brigadier at Agra, and as Major-General commanded the Dinapore Division when the corps there mutinied. Up to that time the deceased officer was looked upon as a first-rate officer, both as regards parade duties and handling troops in the field, but his long connection with the native army made him blind to the treachery of the regiments, when they plotted to rise at Dinapore, and when he saw his mistake it was too late.

CHANGE OF NAME.—The press is facetious on the subject of a curious application made by Dr. Plank, of the Bengal Establishment, to be allowed to put a c into his name. The Hurkaru says:—Bug, of Epsom, disgusted with so vulgar a patronymic, changed it to the more elegant one of Howard, whereupon considerable discussion and correspondence ensued. In like manner, or, may be, for more urgent reasons, Assistant-Surgeon Plank, of the Bengal Army, is desirous of altering the plebeian Plank to the more aristocratic Planck, and so induced the Adjutant-General to record his wish to the Deputy Secretary to the Government of India. That gentleman has expressed his willingness to the alteration of the spelling of the name.

SETTLEMENT OF EUROPEANS IN INDIA.—Shortly after the disturbances of 1857 the attention of the Home Government was directed towards the question of the settlement of Europeans in India. The matter was taken up warmly on all sides, and the Home Government, not wishing to be behindhand, called for a report as to the quantity of available waste lands in Bengal, the N. W. P., and the Punjab, suitable for European settlers. These reports were sent home at the end of 1862, but were not conclusive, and whilst the India House authorities were still considering over the matter, further reports were despatched to England, which viewed the matter in a most unfavourable light. The great fact urged against the idea was the essential unfitness of the climate of India in the case of Europeans who might have to labour unsheltered from the heat of the sun. These last reports would seem to have had the effect intended, as the matter has since their receipt been allowed to drop quietly out of sight.—Hurkaru.

STAFF EMPLOYMENT FOR THE NATIVE ARMY.

Some months back a suggestion was made to the Local Government by that of Bengal relative to the formation of an unattached list for men of the native army, with a view of their employment in the lower subordinate establishment of the Department of Public Works, a step which would prove highly advantageous as well to the department itself as to the native army. The Madras Government seem to favour the suggestion, and, we are told, have referred the subject for the opinion of the several superintending engineers, with the following remarks:—

"As the lowest grade of subordinates on the permanent establishment of the department of public work of this Presidency is now a Taluk Overseer, on a salary of Rs. 60 per mensem, in addition to his military pay when he happens to be a soldier, and as from this grade, as a rule, are selected men to fill vacancies as they occur in the higher ranks of supervisor and sub-engineer, only persons of more education and of a higher class than are likely to be found in the native army are admissible to it.

"The native army, and more especially the sappers and miners, may, however, it is believed, supply numbers of intelligent men, who, with their military training and habits of discipline, would be most useful to the department, and would make excellent petty overseers and superintendents of sections of roads and other works; and if these men can be formed into an unattached list, on the same terms as to service entitling to pension as those similarly employed, but on the permanent establishment of the other Presidencies, the object contemplated by the Government of India may be attained with advantage both to the Department of Public Works and the native army."

The above is from the Athenæum and Daily News. In a later number the same journal says:—

"With reference to the order of Government on this subject, published in our issue of the 17th June, we are informed that the Bengal Government has intimated to that of Madras, that the measure being merely experimental, is not meant at present to apply to any but the Bengal army. If, however, the Subordinate Governments wish to introduce a similar measure into their respective presidencies they are at liberty to do so, but the permission of the Government of India must be previously applied for."

ASSAULT UPON AN OFFICER.—A most unprovoked assault has been made on Captain Walton, district superintendent of Police, by a Mr. Jordan, of the Customs Department, who is staying at the hotel. The case has been brought before the Deputy Commissioner's Court, and Mr. Jordan was fined Rupees 100. It appears that Mr. Jordan had been drinking too freely of Exshaw No. 2 in Mr. Slater's shop, and using abusive language to that gentleman, he was turned out of the shop, and received a severe mauling. Mr. Jordan then found his way to Captain Walton's bungalow, and asked to be shown Doctor Townsend's house, but Captain Walton, seeing the state he was in, advised his returning to the hotel, and he would send the doctor to him. This did not seem to please Mr. Jordan, who got abusive, and finally struck Captain Walton, who, being unprepared, received the blow in his face; an alarm was raised, and Mr. Jordan bolted, visiting one or two houses to find the doctor's; he was, however, made a prisoner of, and lodged in the station-house for the night, and was punished as mentioned above.

THE DELHI BANK HAS BEEN ATTACKED.—A lucid explanation has been offered:—"Delhi Bank.—To the editor of the Bombay Gazette. Sir,—My attention has been drawn to a paragraph in your Lucknow correspondent's letter, somewhat reflecting upon the status of the Delhi Bank Corporation. I am in a position to state that the quotations of shares alluded to by your 'own correspondent,' are quite imaginary. Our shares are in demand at 710 to 725 in Calcutta, and none are for sale at Lucknow. It may not be out of place to add that the losses indirectly alluded to by your correspondent, are not so large, that the stability of the bank is in the smallest degree effected; and, although in common with all Bombay banks, we are likely to suffer, our losses will in every respect be slight, as we have always made it a rule of business to confine our transactions to the legitimate duties of a bank of exchange and discount. As the junior of our branches, it was thought desirable during the present crisis to strengthen our position here; and I desired our agents to refrain from valuing on me to a large extent, so that my resources might not be crippled in any way, hence probably the rumour, respecting which your 'own' alludes. The 'canard' to which your correspondent draws attention has no foundation in fact.—I am, Sir, yours obediently, W. B. THOMPSON, Agent."

THE INTRODUCTION OF GAS INTO THE TERRITORIES OF THE NIZAM will strike many persons as being a phenomenon of no ordinary kind. In a state where the telegraph wires are regarded with the gravest distrust, and where the prospect of a railway engineer's appearance is discussed on deep political and religious grounds, one might well have supposed that the preparation of so mysterious an agent as gas, almost at the very gates of Hyderabad, would have excited the liveliest apprehensions within. However, this may be, one house in Chudderghaut is now brightly illuminated with real unmistakable gas, and the experiment, tried at the risk and expense of one individual, has proved so successful, as leads us to hope that in a short time oil and candles will be entirely superseded in the principal houses of Chudderghaut. The gas, which is prepared either from common oil, or from seeds containing a fair percentage of oily matter (especially the castor-oil seed, of which one pound yields over ten cubic feet of gas), appears singularly free from any noxious properties, and furnishes a pure and brilliant light, at a very trifling expense. Though, as is usual in such cases, private enterprise has taken the start of public action, it is to be hoped that the machinery, brought out from England by Mr. Marrett (the civil engineer in the Nizam's service), may not be confined entirely to private purposes. His Excellency Salar Jung would confer a considerable boon on many by lighting up in a similar manner the long streets leading from the residency to his palace.

STOCK AND SHARE MARKET, June 27.—On the 20th instant the Bank of Madras reduced their rates of interest and discount one per cent. all round. Money is very abundant, and in little demand. The announcement that Sir Charles Wood has declined to sanction the raising of a new Indian loan in England, has weakened the demand for Government Securities, and rates are from $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. weaker than at the date of our last circular. We quote $5\frac{1}{2}$ per Cents. at 108 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 109 $\frac{1}{2}$, 5 per Cents. at 102 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 103, and 4 per Cents. at 89 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 90 $\frac{1}{2}$. Bank of Madras shares declined early in the fortnight to 65 per cent. premium, but they have since rallied, and are now fully worth 70 per cent. premium.

CHOLERA AT JEDDA.—The following papers have been placed at the disposal of the press. From a letter addressed by Mr. H. H. Calvert, Acting British Consul, Jedda, to Lieutenant Colonel H. L. Merewether, Political Resident, Aden, it appears that cholera had been for some time past more or less prevalent both at Jedda and at Mecca, but as far at least as Jedda was concerned, the cases were not so numerous as to cause much alarm, until the disease broke out suddenly with fearful violence during the festival of Koorban Bairam, almost decimating the pilgrims. However, this was no matter of surprise, for the impending calamity had been anticipated, because of the many predisposing causes favouring its extension. The garb of a pilgrim consisted of but two cotton cloths—one wrapped round the waist which reached to the knees, the other thrown over the shoulders, so as to leave the right arm bare. The head must be uncovered and only sandals must be worn. In this attire, then, many of the devotees were subjected alternately to the broiling sun and to the night dews, sleeping on the bare ground without covering or shelter, and the whole of the immense concourse of human beings, numbering perhaps 90,000, were moreover exposed to the baneful effluvia of putrid offal, and the unconsumed flesh of the thousands of animals sacrificed in the valley of Mina. Severe as had undoubtedly been the ravages, the character of the disease had not been, comparatively, so very malignant, and Mr. Calvert thought that with timely remedies many thousands of lives might have been saved, but through some fatal mistake or neglect, a large supply of cholera medicines that was specially sent from Egypt for the relief of the pilgrims was left by the camel-men on the road half way to Mecca, and was not available in the hour of extreme need. The pilgrims having all returned to Jedda as fast as they could procure conveyances, the town, houses, streets, and suburbs were swarming with them, and many were seen to be prostrated in all stages of the disease, sick, dying, and dead, entirely deprived of medical treatment; a truly appalling and disgusting sight, which could scarcely be witnessed elsewhere. Cholera has been very destructive at Mokalla, and it had also been disastrous at Hodeida, where famine had also prevailed.

CHOLERA AND ANTICIPATED FAMINE AT ADEN.—The Political Resident at Aden, in a communication dated 17th ult., addressed to the Bombay Government, reports that the cholera still prevails in Aden; it is not confined to any particular part, nor are the cases numerous, and when taken in time cure is almost certain. The fatal cases amongst the natives have been almost entirely found to be in the very poor classes, those who to avoid starvation in the interior have come into Aden to get work and food. Everything that is possible has been done to alleviate suffering and check the disease. Some cases appearing at the Torvaire, a temporary hospital has been put up in rear of the European General Hospital, to which any of the coolie class suffering from the disease were ordered to be taken at once and treated, instead of being sent up to the Civil Hospital as had necessarily been done before—there being no accommodation for natives in the building hired as a General Hospital. The disease passed from the Peninsula into the interior and has been raging badly at Lahej. Upwards of 500 people are said to have died, and the place to be deserted. The whole district of Lahej and the country immediately adjacent to Aden is in a melancholy state, from excessive poverty, and now that this terrible scourge has come on the poor inhabitants they do not know what to do or where to look for relief. If it had been possible a doctor would have been sent to Lahej; but no one can be spared. A requisition has been made to Bombay for the services of three assistant surgeons, which it is trusted will be complied with. The latest accounts from Lahej are that the disease is getting less: it was in extreme force for only a few days. Sooltan Fadhil was at Aden, having come in for a change of air at the invitation of the Political Agent to try and regain his strength, being much debilitated. He wished to return at once to Lahej, but was advised not to so as there would be less sickness in a few days. Having received better accounts from there; he therefore decided on remaining at Aden. The really miserable state of his country is a source of deep anxiety to him, and is of the utmost importance to us. What with disturbances among themselves, or with their neighbours, combined with the murrain, which has carried off about every head of horned cattle in this country, the whole plain from end to end, from sea to hill, is a perfect desert. Many of the people have renewed their stock of cattle several times over, and now their resources are exhausted. The consequence is, that instead of our getting grain from Lahej, the poor people from there are flocking into Aden and drawing on our very limited stock. Whatever grain we do get comes from the hilly country far distant, and is ruinously dear. Reports from Yemen speak of famine there also, and that the inhabitants of Mocha, Hodeida, &c., look to Aden for help. To meet this immediate and most pressing want, the Resident earnestly begs the assistance of Government, which, it is suggested, could be best afforded by having a ship chartered at Kurra-chee and sent to this loaded with wheat and jowarree with the least possible delay. Without such help it is feared in two months' time we shall be reduced to the direst extremity, and with no prospect of relief from anywhere near Aden.

DEATH OF DR. GOSS.—We are sorry to announce the death of Dr. William Forbes Goss, Civil Surgeon of Sumbulpore, which melancholy event took place at Cuttack. In March last Dr. Goss took three months' privilege leave, being at the time in a very delicate state of health, he proceeded to Pooree on the sea coast, and while there rapidly gained health and strength, but on returning to his duty via Cuttack he was seized with an attack of dysentery at the latter place about the 29th or 30th of May; the symptoms were from the first most aggravated, so much so that he never rallied, and died on the 6th June. Dr. Goss was a member of the uncovenanted service, and had been some six or seven years in Government employ; he was a great favourite with all who knew him, and his death has cast a considerable gloom over the little community of Sumbulpore. At Cuttack and Pooree also he had made many friends during his short stay there; his remains were followed to their last resting place by the whole of the residents, civil and military, of Cuttack, the Commissioner, Mr. Shore, reading the burial service.

MR. TREVELYAN'S "CAWNPORE."—The Bombay Gazette makes some damaging comments upon Mr. Trevelyan's book, in particular as concerns some matters of fact. "There is more than personal pique," says the writer, "in the representation he has dared to give, at this juncture, of the state of native feeling and English government in 1857 in Patna, which he makes to bear upon his estimation of Calcutta. On page 109 he tells us:—'The city of Patna, where the Mahomedan element was large and influential, was the favourite bugbear of the Calcutta alarmists. Happily for them, the officer in charge of that city shared their suspicions and prejudices, and afforded them inexpressible delight by discovering secret meetings, by intercepting treasonable correspondence, and by arresting leading bankers on the charge of harbouring mutineers. And yet, while tumult and massacre were rife in the great towns of Oude and the North-West, the disturbances in Patna were confined to one partial emence, and one unpremeditated murder. At length the Governor of Bengal, tired of requesting to be informed why people had been executed in an irregular manner; sick of listening to the complaints of shopkeepers who were not allowed to leave their houses after nine at night, and disciples of Mahomedan professors whose studies were interrupted by the incarceration of their teachers, superseded the commissioner, and appointed a successor, who at once gave his confidence to an able official of the Mahomedan persuasion. From that day forward Patna was as quiet as Madras. This book is dated March, 1865, and its author could not but know that at the time all British India was looking on with satisfaction at the final exposition and punishment of the traitors who played upon and abused the assumed confidence of the then Governor of Bengal, Mr. James Halliday. At the very time that this edition of 'Cawnpore' reached India, the 'able officials of the Mahomedan persuasion,' under whom, and 'from that day forward,' Patna became the hotbed of sedition, were on their trial for treason; and this same Moulvie Ahmedoolah of Patna, the chief of the Wahabees, having been condemned to death, and that well deserves sentence commuted to transportation for life, is by this time in retirement at the Andamans; where, if his warm friend and eulogist will send him a copy of his faithful work, he may refresh his drooping spirits with vivid pictures of what he and his fellows did in the short hey day of their treacherous power. The Commissioner who was superseded knew well why he was so displaced; the Government which displaced him knew well the dangerous character of the Wahabees through whose influence Patna has been until now the centre of ceaseless plottings and constant danger. And the "hatred and distrust of a large section of Anglo-Indian society" have been more than warranted by the disclosures in the recent trials of the detected "confidential" traitors. Mr. Trevelyan's virtuous indignation has exploded at an unlucky moment; and it is most unfortunate also that just at the time when he reflects with harsh condemnation on the "senility" of an "invalid" officer of fifty years, who died at his post unequal to the great emergency which overtook him, Sir Charles Trevelyan, after some forty years' of service, has returned—unfortunately broken down by hard work in a responsible post which he sought for himself—to find his last great work, his Budget for the year, disallowed by the Government, and repudiated as the outcome of incapacity by every class of the community.

MAJOR-GENERAL GREEN.—We hear with mixed feelings, of which, however, surprise is not one, that orders were actually issued to Major-General Green, C.B., that he should abstain from publishing any of the letters and documents on which he relies to exculpate himself from the odium attempted to be thrown on him by the Head-quarters Staff. This move, it would seem, has been dictated by the fear with which the accusers of General Green heard that he had had several letters printed for private distribution to his personal friends. We trust that the Governor will, in fairness, publish General Green's reply to the charges that have been made against him. At any rate, the enforced suppression of General Green's long continued correspondence against the official practice of marching troops in disregard of the excessive heat will not avail to shield Head-quarters in the case of the Artillery Battery.

THE SHARE MARKET, July 11.—The inquiry for Bank of Bombay shares continues unabated. They close firm at 32. There has been a pretty good demand for Elphinstones, though there has been no change in the rate. The shares of the older banks, Oriental, Agra, Mercantile, and Chartered, which were unsaleable during the fever of speculation, are once more in moderate request. Government paper is in good demand.—Times of India.

LOCKING THE STABLE DOOR, &c.—The Bombay Gazette says:—"The recent fatal march from Mhow has worked a change in the military authorities, which ought to have been effected long ago. Thus we read in army general orders that 'Lieut. W. S. Nugent, 103rd Regiment of Foot, is attached to the general depot, until such time as the road to Mhow is reported healthy, when he will proceed to join his corps'—the old, old story of locking the stable door after the steed is stolen."

CEYLON.

The heads of intelligence in the Colombo Observer relates to the continued tours of the governor; the progress of the Ceylon League, in behalf of which a public meeting had been held; the opening of the Military Commission; the departure for home of General O'Brien; and the increasing export of coffee. We extract the following remarks in reference to coffee and the league:—

"We see no reason to doubt that our estimate of 850,000 cwts. will be nearly, if not altogether, made by 30th September. In any case the crop will certainly be the largest ever despatched from Ceylon. Fully seven-eighths of the quantity will go direct to England,—giving England's merchants the distribution of an article worth more than two millions sterling, while we take of England's cotton and iron manufactures to the value of a million, besides employing no inconsiderable amount of English tonnage. A colony which makes such returns for the fostering care and protection now bestowed on her ought not surely to be dealt with in the churlish and insulting tone which England's present Secretary of State for the colonies has chosen to adopt. At any rate the colonists are not inclined tamely to submit to the simultaneous curtailment of their privileges and the enhancement of their burdens. Our columns on this occasion will show that the Ceylon league is a great fact, and that from all quarters it is receiving the adhesion of the people—the settlers and the natives alike. A spirit has been stirred in this quiet colony which will not be allayed until the taxpayers have not only the voice which they once possessed in the disposal of the taxes, but privileges more useful and more extended. . . . Our demands here are very moderate. As yet we ask neither for the electoral franchise nor for a Government dependent on the will of the people's representatives. What we ask for and are determined to have is a council in which the various classes and interests shall be substantially represented, and in which those representatives shall possess real power and not the mere show of it.

THE WILL OF THE LATE SIR DAVID DAVIES.
—The will of Sir David Davies, M.D., K.C.H., of 2, Berkeley-street, Piccadilly, was proved in the London Court, on the 22nd ult., by the executors and trustees, Messrs. R. and S. H. Twining, bankers. The personality was sworn under £20,000. The testator was physician to William IV. and the late Queen Dowager. His will is dated 1857, and he died on the 2nd of May last, at Lucca, Italy, at the age of seventy-two. Sir David has devised his real estates to his son Robert, of the Bengal Civil Service, and leaves to his younger son, the Rev. W. H. Davies, M.A., a legacy of £8,000.

BENGAL.

BY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.
TRAVELLING IN BURMAH.

May 29.—No. 454.—H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to publish, for general information, the following rules prepared with reference to the case of British subjects travelling (under Art. 3 of the commercial treaty with Burmah, dated Sept. 1, 1827), within Burmese territories, and provided generally for the course to be pursued by British subjects, when meeting Burmese officials upon the public streets and roads of the Burmese capital, Mandalay.

These rules have been framed by the chief commissioner of British Burmah, with the concurrence of the Government of Burmah; and H.E. in Council desires to impress upon persons travelling within Burmese territory the necessity of strictly observing them.

Recent experience has shown the need of a common code of rules, to which British and Burmese could alike refer; and persons neglecting to attend to the rules now published will, in the event of complications, have no claim upon their Government for redress:—

Rules.—I. British subjects desiring to travel through any of the towns and districts of the Burmese Empire away from the River Irrawaddy, and not carrying a large number of arms, but travelling in the manner of merchants, with four or five muskets only, will meet with no obstruction or impediment, and will be allowed to pass. But if any British subject desires to travel with a larger number of muskets, say about ten or twelve, or more, he must make an application to the Agent to the Chief Commissioner at Mandalay, who will submit it through the Ayeabaing Woongyee for the sanction of the Minister of the Hlo Han. A pass-port will be then forwarded to the applicant, who will, in virtue thereof, be allowed to travel unrestrictedly.

II. British subjects, when meeting Burmese officials of rank, preceded by lieutors, on any of the roads within the four and eight divisions of the boundaries of the Royal Golden City, must in all cases show due respect to such officials, either by taking off the hat, or saluting with the hand. In the event of persons not attending to this rule, the lieutors will not be allowed to lay hand upon them, but a note will be taken of the occurrence, the person or persons will be identified, and suitable orders will be issued, which shall be communicated to the Agent to the Chief Commissioner at the Royal Golden City.

III. British subjects going to the capital of Burmah who may not know what Burmese officials are entitled to the above-mentioned marks of respect can receive full information from the agent to the chief commissioner at Mandalay.—By order of H.E. the Gov. Gen. in Council,

W. MUNN, Sec. to the Govt. of India.

REGIMENTAL INSTITUTIONS.

In publishing for general information the reports of workshops in British regiments serving in the Bengal Presidency for the year ending 31st December, 1864, H.E. the C. in C. congratulates the army on the rapid and successful development of a system instituted by Sir Hugh Rose in September, 1861.

The system was in full working order in this Presidency in no less than three regiments of cavalry and thirty-three battalions of infantry.

Conspicuous among these H.E. observes the 7th dragoon guards, the 7th, 19th, 42nd, 79th, and 91st regiments of foot, and the 2nd battalion of the rifle brigade.

From recent returns received from the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, H.E. is glad to find that workshops have been established in six battalions of infantry in the former, and fourteen batteries of Royal Artillery, two regiments of cavalry and ten battalions of infantry in the latter, whilst the most distinguished regiments in these Presidencies are the 1st Royals and 3rd battalion 60th rifles, the 1st battalion 4th, 33rd, 44th, and 72nd regiments of foot.

So satisfactory a result could not have been attained without the zealous endeavours of commanding officers, and the able and hearty co-operation of the individual officers more particularly connected with the workshops, and Sir William Mansfield desires to thank all those whose efforts have resulted in so marked a success.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, August 8, 1865.

MR. J. B. NORTON UPON NATIVE EDUCATION.

A VERY remarkable address has been delivered by Mr. John Bruce Norton, Advocate-general of Madras, upon the results of Native Education and the duty of the British Government towards the people of India. The subject, always a delicate one to discuss, is more than ever so at the present moment, and Mr. Norton is quite aware that many persons are of opinion that the less said about it the better. But he is not one of these, and wisely thinks that the real evil consists in ignoring the existence of ideas which are never absent from the native mind. Looking at the facts then fairly in the face, he puts the difficulty into a plain form, and the conclusions at which he arrives are worth following.

India is at this moment not only in a transition state, but in the course of one of the most extraordinary and gigantic revolutions that the world has ever seen. Looking at the enormous changes which have been made of late years—the transfer of the government from the East India Company to the Crown, the amalgamation of the army, the amalgamation of the leading courts, the new codes of civil and criminal law, the reform in the administration of justice, the admission of natives to the Councils of Government and their increased share in the administration, the activity of legislation, the introduction of new taxes, the reductions in revenue assessment, the mighty physical forces which are bringing all classes into juxtaposition, the vast development of trade and commerce, the immense wealth that has been poured into the country during the last few years, the new spirit of enterprise and inquiry which is stirring native society to its depths—looking at all these signs of the times, it is impossible not to see the importance of the crisis through which we are passing. It is a crisis which cannot be viewed without some apprehension; but of all the mighty agencies at work, for good or evil, the greatest danger of all is Education.

Through the enlightenment spreading among them the natives are ceasing to believe in their rulers as superior beings. They see that we are poor frail creatures, like themselves; and the discovery suggests comparisons, desires, and discontents, which render them by no means so easy to manage as they once were. When, too, we have come to the "one man's as good as another" stage of assertion, we are apt to go on with the Irishman, who added, "and a great deal better." So the educated natives have a tendency to over-estimate their acquirements, to take old ideas for new ones, and to fancy that their culture confers powers which they do not possess. Hence the danger is of a double kind.

The question remains—How is that danger to be met? The time has passed, and never ought to have been, when the idea could prevail that the natives must be kept in ignorance as the only condition of the permanence of our rule. Far better than the adoption of this wretched policy would it be for us to withdraw from the country altogether. It is plain, therefore, that we must continue in our present course, and allow the natives every possible advantage in the way of enlightenment that it is in our power to bestow. But Mr. Norton does not believe that the permanence of our power is incompatible with the intellectual progress of the people. From the nettle danger we may pluck the flower safety, if we only go to work in the right way. "Of course," said the speaker, "if we educate the people and then deny them the fair results which reward, and which they have a right to suppose wait upon education, the danger becomes imminent—possibly insurmountable, overwhelming; for the permanence of English supremacy can only ultimately rest in India on moral and not on physical forces." One of these days the natives may be wise enough and strong enough to govern themselves, and the period will then have come for British rule to bow and consider its mission at an end. But time must be given for the tree to grow, and such a consummation need not yet be anticipated, nor would it be wise to hasten its progress.

"And, I think," pursued Mr. Norton, "that we should be guilty of a very grave error if we mistake the way in which any national reform, either in regard to religious or temporal institutions, should be brought about; if we fancy that we can hurry on a change or operate on the native mind from without. Any reformation which may hereafter take place must proceed from within, not from without; from the convictions of the native mind itself. . . . It cannot be produced by the persuasion of foreigners in country and creed; still less by our twitting the natives with the evils of their institutions, whether social or religious." Such a course would impede rather than expedite the object in view. There are reformers among the natives themselves who are quite sufficient for the work, and who obtain a fair hearing without giving offence; and the speaker referred with satisfaction to two societies, the "Bramo Somaj," at Calcutta, and the "Neda Somaj," at Madras, as an encouraging proof of the value of the education which we impart. For that education we have much to thank the clergy, and without their assistance it is not probable that the present results would have been attained; but it is by their secular teaching that the progress has been made, and it is by this means that the end is to be accomplished. In bold and convincing terms Mr. Norton defended secular teaching from the charge of "ungodliness." "The very books," said the speaker, "through which we convey to the native youth the knowledge of Western civilisation are fraught and saturated, not, it is true, with the historical and dogmatical parts of Christianity, but with the influence of the most practical, the purest, the most divine morality which has ever been imparted by a teacher to the world." A teacher, indeed, "cannot explain his subject matter to his pupils without constant reference to Christianity and the Bible."

Mr. Norton met the common argument against secular education—that we destroy the one faith without giving another in its place—by a direct denial founded upon daily experience. "We make," said he, "by our system of instruction, wiser and better men." He would not attack their religion any more than he would attack their caste—and upon the latter subject he made some admirable remarks—believing that the object of native education should be to train the judgment into an instrument capable of deciding for itself.

The address has been very well received in India, and its arguments are worthy of attentive consideration in this country. It is long since the subject has met with such bold and practical treatment.

CONCESSIONS TO INDIAN OFFICERS.—The Hurkaru says:—The recent adverse vote of the House of Commons has evidently a little frightened Sir Charles Wood. Under the head of "Official Papers" will be found a despatch from Sir Charles Wood to the Governor General of India in Council, the pith of which may be gathered from the following paragraphs:—"In the 76th para. of our General Order No. 332 of 10th April, 1861, certain departments of the staff were mentioned as being open alike to officers of the Staff Corps and to those of either army. These were—The Adjutant General's Department, the Quartermaster General's Department, Brigade Majors, Fort Adjutants. To these should be added divisional and brigade commands. All appointments of the general staff of the army are made by the Governments in India, and the selection for them is made by the Governments from among the officers serving with regiments in India with the following exceptions:—"I. Certain of the divisional commands for which officers are nominated in this country." "II. The Adjutant General and Quartermaster General, who, according to a recent arrangement, may be selected from the service at large, whether in or out of India, and must be approved by the authorities in this country." Important concessions are also made with reference to field and half-pay officers of her Majesty's service holding staff appointments in India. The first are not to vacate their appointments on their regiments leaving India, and the latter, despite their half-pay standing, are to receive the same aggregate pay and allowances and staff salary as officers of the Staff Corps of similar substantive rank.

THE MISSING OFFICER FROM HOSHUNGABAD.—We learn that Lieutenant Hudleston, late 18th Madras N.I., whose non-appearance to join his regiment, the 1st Madras N.I. at Hoshungabad, we noticed some weeks ago, has turned up in General hospital at Bombay, and he is to be sent to Kamptee to be tried by court martial for being absent without leave.—Central India Times.

QUININE FOR THE ARMY.—According to a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette, the troops at Peshawar are to be put under a systematic course of quinine as a preservative against the baneful influence of climate.

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.—

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCK-FAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown.—(See TIMES, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is univalued in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitoes, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

Sportsmen will find this an invaluable remedy for destroying fleas in their dogs, as also ladies for their pet dogs.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article, which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

mon herbs sweetened with molasses, and flavoured with American Water Green. The genuine has "Thos. Wilkinson

on each bottle.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH-

ING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to procure the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately given, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c.
The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bids, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

We are in receipt of our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 8th of July, Madras to the 14th, and Ceylon to the 18th of that month.

The great—and almost the one—topic in Calcutta was the Rent Case, a question which, as the Hurkaru remarks, involves far more than the mere rate at which the tenant shall pay for the land he cultivates. It is now generally felt that it opens up the great land question, and it is observable that it has brought to light a tendency on the part of several eminent thinkers to go back to the state of things before the Permanent Settlement. "We have in Bengal," says the writer, "a determined set towards giving the ryot an occupancy right, and towards circumscribing the powers and privileges of landlords. In Oude the ryots are declared to be without rights, and to be nothing more than tenants at will. In Bengal the set of the current is, if anything, against a perpetual settlement; in Madras and the North-West we are doing our best to introduce such a land system, basing our chief argument for doing so on the supposed success of the settlement in Bengal. Much has been written and said on the land systems of India, but all that has hitherto found its way into print would seem to be only the efforts—desultory, imperfect, and partial—of the skirmishers: the great battle has yet to be fought, and men are slowly ranging themselves on this side and that as the armies are being got into position."

The heat first, and then the rain, have made Calcutta more than usually unhealthy; and cholera and fever were said to be rife in the native parts of the town. The prevalent dulness, it was said, had been broken only by the manifesto of Mr. Dowleams on the Salt Lake Scheme, which proposition had attracted attention, not on its merits, but on account of the cool declaration of the writer that he was the originator of the design. The effect of his daring calculations has not led to a renewal of confidence in the undertaking.

The Money Market generally is described as still very dull, but, notwithstanding the numerous heavy failures in Bombay, showed a tendency to improve. News had been received of the failure of the firm of Cursetjee Ferdonjee, for Rs. 2,40,00,000, and of the Eastern Financial Association, with liabilities estimated at Rs. 1,20,00,000. The Bank of Bengal had declared a dividend for the half-year ending 30th of June at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum on the Bank's paid-up capital of two crores and twenty lakhs. No alteration had been made by the Bank in its rates of interest or discount. Some business had been done in Government securities at improved rates, the Fives having touched 102½, and Port Canning shares had moved up so far as 300 premium. Bank of Bengal shares, after receding to 1,675, were last quoted at 1,725. Salt Lake shares remained much as they were.

There was no prospect that the new tax on incomes would be imposed until the production of the next Budget, at the end of April. With the exception of opium, it was probable that all the main sources of our revenue would be equal to the estimate. On the other hand, Sir Charles Wood has not only consented to postpone till next year half of the cost of the new transport service, but, if necessary, he will diminish the home drafts on India to the amount of the disallowed loan. Mr. Massey will thus be enabled to abstain from disturbing the financial and commercial arrangements of the year, which is always undesirable.

The despatch relative to the transfer to the Bank of Bengal of the loan and interest branch of the Treasury had at last reached Calcutta. The old records of the department are to be made over to the bank, the latter to receive a commission of four thousand rupees per annum on each crore of the Government loan, which amounts to one lac and thirty thousand rupees per annum. The commission now allowed to the Bank for issuing the currency notes is two lacs per annum, which will be discontinued, the notes being issued from the Mint. This arrangement, involving a loss of seventy thousand rupees to the Bank, and a saving of that amount by Government, will, it is expected, come into operation at the beginning of the ensuing year.

The Legislative Council has been summoned to Simla, on business doubtless connected with the new financial arrangements.

The Government had given their sanction to the scheme for supplying Calcutta with water at high pressure from Phultah, and the raising of a loan of forty-five lakhs of rupees for the purpose. A water rate of 3 per cent. was to be levied on houses and buildings.

A crim. con. case of very scandalous character had been tried in Calcutta; a report will be found elsewhere.

At Bhootan there continued to be more action in domestic intrigue than foreign aggression. A new element of confusion had been introduced by disputes between the civil and military authorities on our own side, which had called down serious rebuke from the Viceroy and Commander-in-Chief.

At Madras an important despatch upon education, just received from Sir Charles Wood, was occupying some attention.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which is expected at Marseilles on Saturday next.

BENGAL.

COMPETITION v. CUSTOM.

The decision in favour of custom as the rule for the enhancement of rent is the most important which has ever been passed by an Indian Court. Out of Bengal it might have been unexceptionable. But we may be permitted to express keen regret that in one at least, and that the most civilised and peaceful of the divisions of our great empire, the principles of an enlightened political economy and the policy which would govern through a great landed aristocracy are no longer to be allowed fair play, after sixty-six years preparation for their full exercise. Tenant right is declared to have no existence in Oude, and thus far doubt is thrown on its former existence in the North-West, at the very time that it is created in Bengal by this interpretation of Act X. The one is a strange commentary on the other.

We admit to the full Mr. J. S. Mill's description of custom as the exclusive regulator of the relations of landlord and tenant in the purely Hindu period of history. But the Mussulman conquest, in fact and in law, introduced the higher and more civilised stage of land tenures by contract. In fact custom gave the ryot little more than a subsistence. In law he was the proprietor who paid the khiraj, regularly commenced by Shere Shah in 1540. The rights of the village communities merged into that of the sole revenue-payer; but while the law regulated the relation between the zemindar and the State, custom still, it must be admitted, affected the relations between the zemindar and the village communities. Aurungzebe almost completed what Akbar began, but in 1793 we admit that indigenous custom was still powerful among the ignorant peasantry, however foreign to the Mussulman law of the khiraj, and especially to the Mussulman practice. The legislation of Lord Cornwallis in 1793 carried on what Mussulman law had introduced in 1540. Custom then received a still more severe blow by being limited to the relations between zemindars and that class of their tenants which held leases for ever, or for one life, or for twenty years previous to 1793. But even these were made contract and not customary tenures, for the strictest rules were passed as to the interchange of written leases and agreements between landlord and tenant. Had these rules been carried out, which was impossible from the ignorant reluctance of both zemindars and ryots, there would have been a record of rights, a Domesday book, for all Bengal, and the landlord would have been able in time to clear his rent-roll of all customary under-tenures as in England. Rent disputes would have been comparatively unknown, Act X. would never have been passed, and there would have been now as free and healthy a transfer of land, as of rice or any other marketable commodity. Besides this inoperative provision for written leases, Government undoubtedly reserved the right of future legislation. But during a period of sixty-six years it never exercised that right except in favour of competition as opposed to the still lingering relics of custom. In 1812, for instance, Regulation V., according to its interpretation in Regulation XVIII., declared "proprietors of land competent to grant leases for any period even to perpetuity and at any rent which they might deem conducive to their interests." All the Sale Laws went so far in the same direction that Mr. Justice Morgan declares them oppressive to the ryot. That this, and not Mr. Justice Trevor's reading of the legislation of 1812 is correct, is proved by the remonstrances of the Court of Directors, who considered that it empowered landlords to evict even the hereditary ryots when they would not pay a rack-rent. From 1540 to 1793 and 1812 and the latest Sale Law in 1845 the unbiassed reader of law and history must admit that competition, to the destruction of custom, was permitted as the rule for enhancing rents in all cases but those of tenants who held leases going back before 1793. This is now a very small class.

Did Act X. of 1859 arrest or merely modify this process, which all admit to be one from a lower to a higher civilisation? The fourteen judges hold that it altogether arrested and even reversed it, that it revived the customary rights of the ryots which had slumbered for a century. Sir B. Peacock was law member of Council when the Act was passed, and we may be pardoned if we prefer his exposition of the objects and legal effect of the Act. It modified, but did not arrest this healthy progress. No court of justice can hold that an Act would be passed deliberately in the teeth of such legislation as that of 1812 and 1793, and of the rights which had grown up in sixty-six years, when the legislature has not "declared its intention by the clearest and most unmistakable language." For the Act, according to the fourteen judges, has retrospectively conferred on tenants who sat from year to year "not only a right not to be removed from their holdings, but also a right to hold at fixed rates or lower rents than other ryots would pay for the same land," in defiance of the vested rights of the landlords and in violation of the solemn pledge of 1793. All the fourteen judges admit this implicitly, and several make it a subject of complaint, but they say—"we are judges, not legislators." Sir Barnes Peacock, in the absence of a clear declaration, interprets the vague words "fair and equitable" in the spirit of the legislation of the previous sixty-six years. He reconciles the Act and the objects of its pseudo-benevolent framers in a way not opposed to the teachings of an intelligent political economy. He gives the ryot the benefit of all the profit he received at the old rent, but the landlord all the natural advantages of the new profit above that rent.

Let us look at the matter practically. Ishur Ghose's land yielded produce of the gross annual value of Rs. 300. Deducting the costs of production, including his own labour, he had a net profit of Rs. 200, of which he paid Rs. 100 as rent, leaving him Rs. 100 for himself. Meanwhile, owing to the rise of prices, or the vicinity of a railway, the value of produce and the costs of production are both doubled, the former to Rs. 600 and the latter to Rs. 200, leaving the net value at Rs. 400. Ishur Ghose still keeps his old profit of Rs. 100, and his landlord gets Rs. 300 of rent, or three-fourths instead of a half, which would be given him on the proportion theory. Suppose that, on that theory, the gross value of produce was trebled and the costs of production doubled, which was the case in the suit that has given rise to these decisions, the gross value would be Rs. 900, the costs of production Rs. 200, and the net value Rs. 700. The landlord would get only trebled rent, or Rs. 300, and the ryot would get Rs. 400, the owner of the land getting three-sevenths, and his tenant four-sevenths from causes quite independent of the latter. This is co-proprietorship with a vengeance, yet it is the practical result of the High Court's decision. But this is a slight injustice compared with that which the Act allows and encourages when it declares that, though the landlord shall not have a competition rent, his tenant may have it if he chooses to sublet the land. In the case last cited the net value was Rs. 700. If Ishur Ghose sublets the land for Rs. 600 his tenant will have the same profit of Rs. 100 as he himself had at first, while Ishur Ghose will enjoy Rs. 300 after paying the unfortunate landlord Rs. 300 as his proportion. That is, the tenant may enjoy a competition rent by sub-letting, but the landlord—the "actual owner," as even Mr. Justice Trevor calls him—shall not. But the landlord is not the only sufferer by this interpretation of the present settlement, under which he is worse than if the land were to be periodically re-assessed. If the Agra Sudder Court applies this rule of proportion to the North-Western Provinces, the landlord will be prevented from raising his rent to the market rate, and in that case the State cannot raise its assessment, for it is not likely to bind itself by the same rule of proportion, and the public revenue will suffer.

Far be it from us to argue that zemindars should have power to oppress their ryots. Sir B. Peacock's decision does not allow them even to rack-rent them, for it secures to them the profit of the old rent. We argue for justice to both, and believe that even greater kindness and forbearance will mark the relations of the landlord to his tenant, than in England, if legislation does not irritate him, for, to some extent at least, Mr. Seton-Karr's statement is true that zemindars compete for ryots. Our objections to the decision of the fourteen judges are that it is opposed to the spirit of all legislation and practice, both Mussulman and English, from 1540 to 1845; that it does not read Act X. in the light of that legislation; that it looks only to the present time, for the necessities of which it certainly presents a fair compromise; that it sacrifices to that compromise the progress of society during the past seventy years, by intensifying the conflicting claims of two co-proprietors in the same soil, and by ultimately giving the tenant more profit out of the land than the real landlord; and that it arrests that progress for the future by subordinating the interests of a landed aristocracy to those of millions of ignorant and uneducated ryots whom it has created the virtual proprietors of the soil of Bengal. The legislative measures necessary to prevent that future we reserve for further discussion.—Friend of India.

TULLOCH v. WAYLEN.

HIGH COURT.

ORDINARY ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.—JUNE 18, 19, and 26.

[Before Mr. JUSTICE PHEAR.]

This was an action for criminal conversation, in which the plaintiff, Captain Tulloch, sued to recover damages from the plaintiff, Dr. Waylen, lately civil surgeon at Rungpore, for the seduction of the plaintiff's wife.

Mr. Eglinton appeared for the plaintiff.

The defendant did not appear, and the case substantially came on for assessment of damages. It appeared from the opening statement of counsel, that the plaintiff and Mrs. Tulloch were married at Mussoorie, according to the rites of the Church of England, in November, 1857. Captain Tulloch was then in the army, and he and his wife lived uniformly on terms of mutual affection and regard until December last, when the matters which gave rise to the present action were first discovered. In June, 1863, Mrs. Tulloch became acquainted with the defendant, who was then civil surgeon at Rungpore, where the plaintiff resided, and who had, for some time previously, been on terms of intimate friendship with the plaintiff. Mrs. Tulloch was at the time in delicate health, and the defendant, as civil surgeon of the station, attended her professionally, and there could be little doubt, from what had transpired since, that very shortly after their first acquaintance the defendant had conceived the idea of effecting the ruin of the plaintiff's wife. In December, 1863, Mrs. Tulloch had been for some time unwell, and suggested to the plaintiff that she required a change of air and scene, and proposed that she should visit her mother, then in Calcutta. To this the plaintiff did not object, when Mrs. Tulloch went on to propose that she should be accompanied down country by the defendant, who was about to proceed to Calcutta, with the ostensible object of meeting a sister, expected from England. The plaintiff at first demurred to this suggestion, but upon Mrs. Tulloch representing to him her delicate state of health, and that the defendant, as her medical attendant, might advantageously accompany her, Captain Tulloch gave his consent, the result of which was that defendant and Mrs. Tulloch left Rungpore for Calcutta together, arriving at the Great Eastern Hotel here about the end of December, 1863. Since the institution of the present suit the plaintiff had, for the first time, received information which hardly admitted of doubt, that, whilst at the Great Eastern Hotel, from the end of December, 1863, to nearly the middle of January, 1864, the defendant and Mrs. Tulloch had resided together in adultery. The Court would hear that they were looked upon as husband and wife at the hotel, and from the position of their apartments, the entries in the hotel books and the other matters which would be proved, it was quite clear that the parties did, in fact, during that time live together in adultery. On the 9th January, 1864, the defendant's sister arrived from England, and the three continued to reside in the hotel until the 15th, when the defendant left for Rungpore, and subsequently, about the 1st February, 1864, the defendant's sister and Mrs. Tulloch also left, and were afterwards met on their road homeward by the plaintiff and the defendant, who accompanied them to Rungpore. Subsequently the defendant and his sister, with the plaintiff and his wife, took a house together at Darjeeling, where the ladies resided for several months, during which time the plaintiff was constantly occupied by his police duties. The defendant, however, paid frequent visits to Darjeeling, and on one occasion gave himself two or three months' leave of absence, during all which time there could be no doubt that an adulterous intimacy existed between the defendant and Mrs. Tulloch. Finally, both the plaintiff and the defendant having been attached to the Bhootan field force, Mrs. Tulloch again intimated a wish to visit her mother in Calcutta, to which, after some demur, the plaintiff consented, the more readily as, being on active service, he could not remain with his wife, and, ultimately, the latter, with her child, arrived here and she took up her residence at a boarding-house in Kyd-street, about the end of November last. At this time, and during the month of December, the plaintiff was at Julpigoree, having been left there to forward stores and provisions for the use of the Bhootan expedition, to which the defendant was attached in a medical capacity. It was part of Captain Tulloch's duty at Julpigoree to receive and forward on to the officers with the force all letters and parcels which arrived for them at Julpigoree, and almost immediately after the arrival of Mrs. Tulloch in Calcutta there commenced to arrive letters addressed to the defendant, which addresses, it struck the plaintiff, were written by Waylen himself, and this leading him to observe more closely, he observed that across the stamps, which were posted on each of them, was the word "stamped" in writing, which he recognised as that of his wife. From internal evidence it was clear that the envelopes had been given, ready addressed by the defendant, to Mrs. Tulloch, and probably had the latter not written across the stamp, this would have been passed on without remark. This discovery led the plaintiff, under the advice of friends on the spot, some six or seven in number, to open and retain these letters, all written in December last. The terms in which these letters were couched afforded conclusive evidence of the relations which existed between the parties. A day or two before this discovery, which for the first time opened the plaintiff's eyes as to what had been going on, Captain Tulloch had written to his wife a letter which would be put in evidence, having been enclosed in one of the intercepted letters to the defendant, and this letter showed the feelings of kindness and affection which the plaintiff entertained towards her. On discovering his wife's conduct the plaintiff at once wrote to his brother, Colonel Tulloch, at Fyzabad, whence Mrs. Tulloch had intimated her intention of proceeding, not to receive her, and a telegram to that effect was accordingly sent to her in Calcutta. Up to this time Mrs. Tulloch had not suspected that her letters to the defendant had miscarried, but the telegram led her to suspect the discovery which had really taken place, and she wrote to her husband in terms which would appear from the letter itself. Meanwhile, Dr. Waylen not having received his expected letters from Mrs. Tulloch, wrote to her a letter, which was intercepted at Grindlay's, and, no doubt, after hearing from Mrs. Tulloch again, he finally came down to Calcutta with the intention of taking Mrs. Tulloch under his own protection. Dr. Waylen arrived in Calcutta on the 31st December, and found that Mrs. Tulloch had, no doubt, in previous concert with him, left Kyd-street, and gone to reside in lodgings at Coolie Bazaar, where the defendant visited her daily, and where it would be proved that the adulterous intercourse was recommenced, and continued until the night of the 8th of January, when they left Calcutta together, accompanied only by the child, and proceeded to a place near Allahabad, where they have since continued to reside. As regarded damages this was a case in which exemplary damages might well be given. The defendant had, for years, received much kindness from the plaintiff. He had taken advantage of his intimate friendship with Capt. Tulloch, and, which was infinitely worse, of his position as the medical attendant of Mrs. Tulloch and her family, deliberately to mature and carry on this intrigue, which there was every reason to believe had been proceeding for nearly a year and half before discovery. Under these circumstances the Court would mark its sense of the defendant's conduct by awarding exemplary damages.

Mr. Eglinton, in support of the case, called and examined the plaintiff, Mr. Calder, of the Great Eastern Hotel, a bearer, formerly in the employ of Mrs. Tulloch, and other witnesses, to prove the facts as alleged, and put in various letters from the plaintiff to Mrs. Tulloch, from Mrs. Tulloch to the plaintiff, and from the defendant to Mrs. Tulloch.

Mr. Justice Phear, after taking time to consider, on the 26th June delivered judgment, and, after going through the facts of the case, said, I need not, and do not, intend to dwell upon the moral aspect of the foregoing facts. I will merely remark that I consider the wrong done, and loss caused, to Captain Tulloch by the defendant to be greatly aggravated by the breach of social confidence which has been committed by the deliberately-planned and long-continued deception which has been effectually carried out, and by the deep humiliation which the result of that deception is calculated to produce. I do not forget that this seduction of the plaintiff's wife by the defendant has left the plaintiff's daughter (the only living child of himself and Mrs. Tulloch) motherless and dependent for training and education upon the special provision of her father. On the whole, I am of opinion that this is a case in which I am bound to award exemplary damages, and, accordingly, I give a verdict for the plaintiff, damages Rs. 8,000, and costs of this suit on the scale No. 1 and of the written statement.

Verdict for Rs. 8,000 and costs.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EXTENSION OF THE PORT OF CALCUTTA.—We find the Port of Calcutta is to be extended towards the South, the only direction in which extension is possible. A notification on this subject will shortly be published in the Gazette.—Hurkaru.

THE YOUNG LADY AND THE OSTRICH.—We gather from a humorous but unfortunately long article in the Hurkaru the following pretty little story:—"Early this year the sole lady ostrich of the park, deposited her first egg, which she left exposed to the inclement night air, as well as to the tender mercies of marauders. Luckily the opaque oval fell to the lot of a little European girl of some nine or ten years of age, the daughter of the then just deceased superintendent of the park. She was quite well-informed enough to know something about the process of incubation her treasure would undergo, had its original place of deposition been the burning sands of the Zabara instead of the moist, alluvial soil of the Barrackpore Park. She accordingly procured some of the finest sand, and putting it into a small lidless box, placed the latter in the most sunny place in the vicinity of the bungalow. Half buried in the sand thus exposed, the egg, during times of sunshine, enjoyed the benefit of nigh as strong solar action as if in the sands of Africa. But there were times when the sky became overcast with clouds, and missey used regularly, on such occasions, to remove her charge, box and all, within doors, where a clucking hen that had had no eggs put under her was made to enact the part of incubatress—an office the offspring-desiring bird discharged with not only cheerfulness, but evident pleasure. These expedients succeeded, and in due time the young biped within came forward in the very liveliest manner, attaching himself, from the very moment of his birth, to the delighted young lady who had taken such trouble to ensure his being brought into existence—following her about wherever she went, and refusing either food or a caress from anybody else; as for the hen step-mother, she ran away in fright at the first glimpse of her monstre chicken. But a new superintendent was appointed to the park, and about the first thing he did after his arrival was to seize young master ostrich, and bear him off to immurement in the aviary, as the property of Government and a chattel of the park. An immediate consequence was that the poor little girl saddened and became seriously ill. Fortunately for her a military surgeon at the station called at the house to inquire if he could render any aid to the widow. He was told the story of the little girl's sorrow and sickness, and resolved on immediately bringing the whole case to the knowledge of Sir John Lawrence at Simla, through the private secretary, the immediate result being that he was requested to write by return of post to Barrackpore, directing the immediate release of master ostrich from the aviary, as also his restoration to the guardianship of the young lady. The scene of the re-meeting of mistress and bird was, we have been informed, a most affecting one. Missey became so well that she immediately got up, and had a good run about with her favourite; and this good understanding continued until both, under charge of the widow, stepped on board ship, on their way to Merry England, where doubtless Mr. Barrackpore Ostrich, jun., will become a lion of no little celebrity.

APPEALS IN PROSPECT.—We hear that a no smaller number than 495 cases, decided by the High Appellate Court, are to be sent home before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. If this appeal mania be actually carried out, we imagine their lordships in the Council will be in an awkward position; for it must be remembered that two of the judges who sit in appeal in that Court are the Lords Justices Knight Bruce and Turner, whose time is pretty well taken up in their own legitimate duties, viz., of hearing appeals from the three Vice-Chancellors. Something must be done. The suitors are not satisfied with the decisions here, for all lawyers know that most of the important cases have been reversed in the Privy Council.—Hurkaru.

MR. MASSEY AT WORK.—We have good reason for concluding that on the next assembling of the Council of India in legislative function there will be introduced a modification of the License Bill to tax incomes, which Mr. Harrington, as mouthpiece of the Government of Lord Canning unsuccessfully endeavoured to get passed by the old unreformed Legislative Council in 1859. It is well known that the subject of the advisability of resuscitating Mr. Harrington's Bill received the grave attention of the Executive Council in February last, when there appeared every disposition to sanction the introduction of a modification of the Bill into the Council Legislative, a step which would probably have been resolved on, had not Sir C. Trevelyan been either a dissident, or a zealous advocate of export duties instead. Mr. Massey will probably so recast the measure that it will cease to be a license tax, or ought else than a tax on incomes, that is on such as are not inconsiderable, or at any rate not low, in amount—so classified as to present several different grades, the members of each grade to pay alike, and to be summarily assessed in the several districts by, probably, the collector and his assistants. Such a tax would be objected to by no one not unwilling to contribute his due quota to the cost of Government, and to the maintenance and enhancement of the commonwealth. Had there been any disposition on the part of the Indian Government to cover the existing small deficit by a loan, we believe Mr. Massey, as representing the views of the Secretary of State and Home Council, would have been found a protestor against such a course; but we have no reason to think that any such views are entertained.—Hurkaru.

THE COURT LANGUAGE FOR INDIA.—Lord Canning was the first to introduce an innovation which Sir John Lawrence perfected by requiring all native chiefs to conduct their correspondence with the Government in English. No one can doubt the wisdom and propriety of this course, as it was found, after a long experience, that, what with marks and disputed renderings, letters in Persian were a fruitful source of complaint, trouble, and disagreement. It was, therefore, ruled that, in all cases where letters were sent in English and Persian, the English was to be taken as the authoritative version in cases of doubtful readings, and as this failed to check the original evil, Sir John Lawrence abolished Persian altogether. The King of Oudh, for whose benefit Lord Canning passed the original order, has also protested against the change, and we now learn that several of the Mahomedan chiefs have represented the matter as a grievance, and state that the Persian being their native tongue—Urdu we should fancy would be more correct—the use of English is a great hardship. Further they have manifested an intention of carrying the matter to the Secretary of State. We trust Sir John will not yield on this point, as we are perfectly sure that for his own ease and comfort alone the Secretary of State will insist on the use of English as the Court language.—Hurkaru.

BHOOTAN AFFAIRS.—The Bhootas, we learn, have not as yet given up all hopes of regaining the lost Bengal Doors. They recently asked one of the Seeth Rajahs to lend them a certain quantity of pan and betel, which they intended to repay after the rains were over, when the Doors should again fall into their hands, for which arrangements have been completed. We learn that Brigadier-general Tytler, commanding the field force on the Bhootan Frontier, has proposed, and the Government sanctioned, that steam transport for four hundred men and three guns should always be maintained at Gowhaty. The head-quarters of the brigade are never to be withdrawn on any account short of absolute necessity—such as for the purpose of conveying troops to meet and repel an invasion; and this transport is to be under the orders of the Brigadier-general commanding. This, and the steamer at the disposal of the civil authorities, would go far to meet the necessities of the frontier military service, more especially if the latter steamer when not required by the civil was to be by them placed at the disposal of the military authorities, so as to enable the latter to carry out their tours of inspection—a duty which the nature of the country, and the distances to be traversed forbid being performed by marching.—Englishman.

MILITARY ITEMS.—The heat has been so great in Fyzabad, in Oudh, that we hear in two days no less than one officer and fifteen men have died from "heat apoplexy."—Commanding officers of regiments are only to be permitted to retain their allowances, as commanding, whilst at hill stations during their sixty days of privilege leave.—The authorities in England have sent out a number of men called sergeant cooks, who have been trained at Aldershot in the culinary art, to introduce the improved system of cookery in the regiments serving in India. The late Commander-in-Chief has, no doubt, compelled the attention of the Horse Guards to this reform, for there was nothing he had so much at heart as the comfort and well-being of the soldier. Sir Hugh Rose's consideration of all the minutiae which make up that comfort was inexhaustible.

EXCHANGES BETWEEN PURCHASE AND NON-PURCHASE REGIMENTS.—We learn that the authorities in England have ruled that the Commander-in-Chief in India shall only approve of those exchanges between officers in purchase and officers in non-purchase regiments where the officer proposing to enter a non-purchase regiment shall be older, or not more than one year younger, than the officer he replaces. This principle might be carried further, and a medical opinion be taken of the value of life of each officer before the exchange should be permitted. It is not enough to protect the officers below the exchanging officer from an unfair difference of age, but strength and value of life ought also to be considered. Thus, as in an insurance office, the medical officer should be called on to say whether A's life was better than B's, and if it were, the exchange should not be permitted. If A's life were worth twenty years' purchase, and B's life only worth twelve years, the prospects of those over whom A would be placed in lieu of B would be damaged considerably. The Home authorities have only half considered this question.—Englishman.

YOUNG OFFICERS AND THE VERNACULAR.—We hear that the Commander-in-Chief has observed that there are a very great number of young officers who have not yet passed in the vernaculars, although many of them have been three and four years in the service, and that his Excellency has recommended commanding officers to represent to these young men the consequences of their neglect. They can hold no appointment, under existing rules, until they qualify themselves in the language of the country.—Englishman.

CONSEQUENCES OF OVER-DRILL.—We regret to learn that much of the mortality in the 11th Regiment, caused chiefly by sun-stroke, is attributable to the unnecessary work and exposure to which this corps has been exposed. As many as three men have died of heat apoplexy in a single day, and this in the most healthy station of Bengal. There has been no fighting, no disturbance, and next to no sickness, but, thanks to excessive zeal and ignorance, drills, parades, and inspections, her Majesty's 11th Regiment has lost upwards of thirty-five men, since it landed in October last. At length an order from head-quarters has put a stop to the old attempt to introduce into India, and at its hottest season, the military practices pursued at Dover and the Curragh.—Hurkaru.

LITTLE WARS AT LUCKNOW.—Lucknow has become famous for its dissensions. I have now to record the commencement of two suits for libel and defamation, both criminal and civil, instituted by Baboo Dukhinarjun Mookherjee against Mr. H. D. Chick; the alleged libel appeared in a pamphlet written by this individual a month ago. This pamphlet contains a series of articles which appeared in the Bombay Gazette and other papers anent the Talookdaree system in Oude. The suits were filed yesterday, when Mr. Chick asked for four days' grace, which was granted him, in order to prepare his defence. Messrs. Hollingbery and John Sandys have been engaged for the prosecution. Mr. Chick, in his turn, laid a charge against Dr. Moore for the article that was published in the last Oude Gazette; but as the Deputy-Commissioner, Mr. Wilmot Lane, did not consider the charges preferred specific, he rejected the case. The extent of the Baboo's damages for defamation is not yet known. This particular case has seemingly excited great interest.—Pioneer.

A MOUNTED VOLUNTEER CORPS has been organised in Cachar, called the Cachar Mounted Volunteers. Captain Stewart, the Deputy-Commissioner of the district, brought this circumstance to the notice of Government, and they expressed their gratification, through the Deputy-Commissioner, to the gentlemen who have enrolled themselves as members of the corps. Applications had been made to the Military Department for the appointment of two drill instructors, and for the issue of breech-loading carbines, and sabres, with ammunition and accoutrements complete, for a corps of one hundred men. Captain Stewart is to be commandant of the corps.—Englishman.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—In the event of Dr. Norman Chevers succeeding Dr. F. J. Mouat, who proceeds shortly to England, it is rumoured that Dr. Francis, the examiner of medical accounts, is to officiate as principal of the Medical College. Rumours have also been heard that the office of the examiner of medical accounts is shortly to be amalgamated with that of the examiner of commissariat accounts as proposed in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry into the Indian accounts.—Hurkaru.

A JUDGE IN TROUBLE.—Mr. W. M. Beaufort, the additional judge of Dacca, has, we regret to hear, been condemned by the Lieut.-governor of Bengal as unfit for the judicial charge and control of a district, and the superintendence of its subordinate courts, for serious discourtesy towards Mr. E. Drummond, the magistrate and collector of the district, for a trifling cause.

A NEW CLASSIFICATION FOR CRICKET.—A correspondent of the Hurkaru, writing from Nynce Tal, says:—"A famous laughable cricket match will soon come off, between the 'Handsome and Uglies.' Tickets with these synonyms were drawn, and as luck would have it, the good-looking fellows drew the uglies, and vice versa, affording a good deal of chaffing."

THE MILITARY CHANGES AT FORT WILLIAM.—The Englishman says:—Brigadier Errington, who is now commanding at Delhi, will come here, it is said, and assume the command at Fort William. Major-general Showers, we take it for granted, will establish divisional head-quarters at Barrackpore, an arrangement desirable for several reasons.

AN OLD ORDER REVIVED.—The following appears among the notifications of the Government of Fort St. George:—"Fort St. George, June 20.—The Governor in Council deems it proper to call the attention of all heads of offices and departments in this presidency to the orders of the late court of directors contained in the following extract from a despatch addressed to the Government of India, under date July 10, 1850, prohibiting the practice of re-employing in one department public servants who have been dismissed from another department. The Governor in Council desires that these orders may be strictly attended to in all departments of the public service. Extract from a despatch from the Honourable the Court of Directors addressed to the Government of India in the Financial Department, No. 27 of 1850, dated July 10:—"Para. 19.—We consider it so injurious to the service that men who have been dismissed for misconduct from one department should be considered eligible for re-employment in any other department that we must entirely discountenance the practice. It is a wholesome check upon negligence and dishonesty for the servants of Government clearly to understand that probity and diligence are the only means of retaining employment under Government."—By order of H.E. the Governor in Council, A. J. ARBUTHNOT, Chief Secretary." It seems rather late in the day to revive in 1865 an order of a special character, made by a defunct authority in the year 1850. We would advise to the Madras Government a reference home on the subject.

MADRAS ITEMS.—The Athenæum and Statesman contains the following items of news:—We are sorry to record the total destruction by fire of the Brunton Cotton Screw Company's Press House, which event took place on the night of the 5th instant. A great part of the machinery is supposed to be irretrievably destroyed, but the engine and godowns escaped injury, and much cotton was saved. The company are fully insured, but will suffer a heavy loss by the entire stoppages of their operations during many months. It is not known how the misfortune occurred, but it is supposed to have been accidental. The conflagration was visible for miles round Madras.—At the recommendation of the late Commander-in-Chief a new distribution of the Madras Artillery has been ordered. Four batteries are always to be kept at the Mount, and two batteries will be in future allotted to Rangoon, instead of one as at present.—We have had a good deal of cloudy weather here lately, and some heavy thunder showers. The heat is less than usual at this season.—We understand that instructions have come from the Horse Guards to the effect that no regiment is to be sent out this year to the Madras Presidency. The 18th Royal Irish is under orders for England; and the 60th, having served their five years in Burnah must be relieved. It is proposed, under these circumstances, to make Wellington an invalid depot only, sending the 105th, now stationed there to Madras, to take the place of the 76th, who proceed to Burmah. The 60th will supply the place of the 18th R.I., at Secunderabad.

EDUCATIONAL POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT.—Sir Charles Wood has addressed to the Madras Government an important despatch, in which he thus lays down the limits of religious instruction to be imparted in the schools:—"Subject to the conditions and restrictions to which your attention was recalled by my despatch of 23rd July last, I have no wish to interfere with the exercise of the liberty accorded to Government schoolmasters under the despatches of 19th July, 1854, No. 49, and 7th April, 1859, No. 4, 'to afford instruction and explanations' in the Holy Scriptures, and upon the subject of the Christian religion, to those pupils who, of their own free will, and without the exercise of any influence from persons connected with the school, may seek such information from the masters, it being understood, as laid down by the first of the above-mentioned despatches, that the 'instruction is to be entirely voluntary on both sides.' I must direct that it may not be stated that Bible classes form part of the instruction to be given in the Government schools. This in no wise interferes with the right and power of the master to instruct one or several boys at the same time who may have voluntarily requested such instruction."

ANOTHER HEAVY FAILURE.—We regret to have to record another heavy failure at Bombay—that of the firm of Cursetjee Furdonjee. The liabilities, we understand, are two crores.

PLAGUE IN PAHALUNPOOR.—Some time during the last month an extraordinary plague broke out at Tharrum Talooka, a report of which was submitted to the Bombay Government by Major H. R. Hathway, Acting Political Superintendent, Pahalunpoor. This officer has submitted a second report to Government concerning the plague, from which we glean that the disease has abated to a very considerable extent, and that the deaths were but few.—Bombay Gazette.

THE MAGNESIUM WIRE AT PESHAWUR.—A correspondent of the Englishman, who keeps up a series of lively letters from this remote station, tells us how he mystified a native:—"I rather took a 'rise' out of an old Pathan Zemindar the other evening, when he was visiting me, by having a bottle of soda water brought to me, the cork of which I had previously bound with the magnesium wire; and on my taking this off and lighting it in the candle, his astonishment was immense, nor was it lessened when he attempted in vain to fire a piece of common wire off another soda water bottle. Of course the old gentleman was extremely anxious to know the secret of this extraordinary phenomenon; but I thought that a true explanation of the mystery to him would be 'caviare to the multitude,' so I took a leaf out of the Brothers Davenports' book, by stating that 'I possessed an inherent power of setting fire to anything, although I knew not from whence that power was derived,' an explanation which caused him to mutter something about Sheitan, no doubt of a very complimentary description, if I had understood its meaning correctly."

THE LATE FAILURES.—We greatly regret to observe that the rumours which have lately been current in Bombay, with regard to the suspension of payments by Messrs. Fulcher, Cooper, and Co., are confirmed by the English papers of the 3rd inst. The liabilities of the firm are stated to amount to £400,000. We are much concerned also, as well as surprised, to hear that the firm of A. H. Hushke and Co. has been compelled to stop payment. The liabilities were currently reported yesterday to amount to about £330,000.—Bombay Gazette.

THE EXCAVATION OF A CANAL FROM THE SUTLEGE TO PUTTIALA is once more on the tapis. The young Rajah has come forward and proposed his willingness to redeem the promise given by his late father to bear half the expense of this work, but the matter remains undecided, as the local authorities cannot make up their minds whether, as a minor, the Rajah is at liberty to spend so large a sum as would be required or not.

CHOLERA AT NUSSEERABAD.—We are sorry to hear from Nusseerabad that cholera has broken out in that station. The European troops, consisting of H.M.'s 106th Regiment and Artillery, have been ordered into camp.—Delhi Gazette.

RECENT accounts from Indore state that fever of a very deadly type has broken out amongst the villages, and that the people have manifested considerable alarm. It is said to be owing to the intense and unusual heat of the weather.

CEYLON.

The Summary of the Colombo Observer contains the following:—

Although the violence of the south-west monsoon has not yet abated, the export of coffee has been going on to some extent. In the fortnight ending 9th inst. seven ships sailed, with an aggregate of 32,666 cwt. of our staple.

We have few events of general importance to communicate. The Governor is on a tour through the Eastern and Northern Provinces; so that his Excellency will have seen the larger portion of the country committed to his care before he meets his first Legislative Council. The members of the Military Commission are, like the Governor, on their travels; so that it seems probable the military report will be presented, the Council will meet, and the first section of the railway be opened, much about the same period in September or October.

The Ceylon League continues making headway. A good meeting has taken place at Negombo, ending in subscriptions to the extent of £28.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THE GREAT RENT CASE.

THE judgments on the Rent Case occupy 92 octavo pages of a supplement to the Bengal Hurkaru, and are obviously too long for insertion in these columns. It will be convenient, therefore, if, with our remarks on the subject, we embody the main points of their Lordships' opinions on either side.

The case is of no account, save for the important principle involved in the issue. Thakooranee Dosse, widow of Bungsheedhur Ghose, was the appellant, and Bisheshur Mookerjee and others were the respondents in a special appeal from a decree passed by the Judge of the 24-Pergunnahs, dated the 10th of May, 1864, affirming a decree of the Deputy Collector of that district, dated 17th March, 1864. Baboo Dwarka Nath Mitter, Mr. R. E. Twidale and others appeared for the appellant, and Mr. R. V. Doyne, Baboo Kishenkishore Ghose and others for the respondents. Mr. J. T. Woodroffe was heard on behalf of Mr. J. Hills. All the judges substantially concurred in the decision of Mr. Justice Trevor, the Chief Justice alone adhering to the former decision of himself and Justices Kemp and Bayley in the case of Isshur Ghose.

Mr. Justice Trevor explained the nature of the case to this effect:—The plaintiff sued for a kubooleut from the defendant at a rent higher than that which he has paid in past years, on the ground of the increased value of the produce of the lands. The defendant claimed to hold at a fixed rent, but his claim has been disallowed, and he has been declared to have only a right of occupancy. With a view of fixing the rent to which the zemindar is entitled, the Division Court remanded the suit; but in consequence of conflicting decisions on the point, it was in doubt as to the particular principle on which the calculation should be made. It therefore referred the subject to the Court at large in the following terms:—

1st. When there has been any increase in the value of the produce arising simply from a rise in prices, and not from the agency either of the zemindar or the ryots, and the zemindar is entitled to a new kubooleut from an occupancy ryot for an enhanced rent at fair and equitable rates, is the fair and equitable rate to be awarded that which might be obtained by commercial competition in the market, or is it a rate to be determined by the custom of the neighbourhood in regard to the same class of ryots?

2nd. If the customary rate of the neighbourhood has not been adjusted with reference to the increased value of the produce, then on what principle is the customary rate to be adjusted?

After disposing of certain objections taken to the form of the present action the Judge went on to consider the relative rights of the Government, zemindars, and ryots in Bengal, before the enactment of Act X. of 1859; second, the effect, if any, which Act X. had on the previous relation of zemindars and ryots; and, thirdly, the principle which, under the circumstances set forth in the question put to the Court and under their present relation, should be adopted in the adjustment of their rents. In the earliest times the gross produce of the soil was, in some places, of right shared between the King, the village landholders, and the permanent, or khood-kasht tenants who cultivated the land of the villages in which they resided. At the time of Menu the proportion legally claimed by the King was one-sixth. The settlement of Torun Mull was, according to Sir John Shore, formed by collecting, through the medium of the Canoongees and other inferior officers, the amount of the rents paid by the ryots, which served as its basis. Under this settlement, which was made about 1582, and remained essentially in force for many years, the gross produce of the land was divided into certain proportions between the sovereign and the husbandman, the share of the former being from one-half to one-eighth, the zemindars with whom the settlement was made receiving in Bengal a portion of the land or its produce for their use and subsistence, under the name of Wankar, which did not in the aggregate exceed 1 per cent. of the revenues collected by them. The rate of rent or revenue to be paid by each ryot under the settlement of Torun Mull, and which represents a portion of the gross produce converted into money, was, in after time, designated the ussul or original rate, to distinguish it from those taxes or cesses which were subsequently imposed. The cesses from the time of Jaffir Khan, that is, since the reign of Aurungzabe, at the beginning of the eighteenth century, became an acknowledged Soobadaree impost. Between Torun Mull and Jaffir Khan these cesses amounted to an arbitrary raising of the customary rent, not felt by the tenantry, owing to the extension of commerce and influx of silver. In the last years of Mahomedan rule arbitrary imposts were exacted. After the acquisition of the Dewanny by the East India Company, the settlement, sometimes quinquennial, but generally annual, was made sometimes with the zemindar and sometimes with strangers, who at auction bid over the head of the zemindar himself. In order to stop the exactions and abuses incidental to this state of things, the Decennial, afterwards the Perpetual Settlement, was introduced. Under this Settlement zemindars, though recognised as actual proprietors, had not absolute rights; indeed, said Mr. Justice Trevor, "the notion of an absolute estate in land is as alien from the regulation law as it is from the old Hindoo or Mahomedan law of the country." The rights of tenants he divided into two classes—the khood-kasht kudeemee, and the simple khood-kasht—that is to say, those who had been in possession for more than twelve years before the settlement, and those who had only held for a shorter period. For a long time the zemindars were prohibited from granting leases for more than ten years; but when, in 1812, the restriction was withdrawn, the new law did not over-ride the rights of khood-kasht ryots to hold at the pergunnah rate—that is to say, the ussul or original rate, the rate of Torun Mull. However, the rights of this class were held to be insufficiently protected, and hence Act X. of 1859. Under that Act all ryots, of whatever description, are entitled to leases at fair and equitable rates; and the point to be decided was—what rates are fair and equitable under the circumstances? "It appears to me," said his lordship, "that it was the intention of the legislature to place the ryot whose rights were created by Act X. in exactly the same position as all other tenants with a right of occupancy held under the old regulations, and this notwithstanding that recent legislation had curtailed the rights which he enjoyed under those old laws."

After quoting Mr. John Stuart Mill in support of custom in such cases as opposed to competition, which has only in recent times become the governing principle of contract, Mr. Justice Trevor came to the conclusion that "as the rent now paid represents the customary rent, it represents, on the view which I have adopted, that proportion of the gross produce calculated in money to which the zemindar was entitled; and as the increase in the produce has arisen from circumstances independent both of the zemindar and the ryot, the zemindar is entitled to a rise in his rent proportionate to the increased value of his share of the produce. The formula, then, by which this increase should be determined seems to me to be the following:—The value of the gross produce before the alleged alteration in the same is to the rent which the land then bore, as the altered value of the produce is to the rent which should be assessed on it, or, in another form, the old rent must bear to the new rent the same proportion as the former value of the produce of the soil bears to its present value."

The other judges concurred with Mr. Justice Trevor, with some qualifications which did not interfere with the main question, the only dissentient being the Chief Justice. Sir Barnes Peacock did not believe that even before the permanent settlement every cultivator who resided in the village in which his lands were situate, whether let into possession for a term or only as a tenant-at-will or to hold from year to year, necessarily became a khodd-khast ryot. Authorities in the late Sudder Court decided that the landlord was entitled to enhance his rent to the full actual value of the land at which it had been assessed by the first Court. Adhering to his former decision, he considered that to hold that the Legislature intended to confer rights of occupancy which did not previously exist at rents lower than such as could be reasonably obtained from new ryots, would, in his opinion, be giving a construction to the Act which would render it an unjust interference with the vested rights of the landowners in the permanently settled districts, and a violation of the engagement which at the time of the permanent settlement was made with them by Government. He could not think that the Legislature by using the words "fair and equitable rates" intended to give a ryot who obtained possession only twelve years ago when he had no right to the right to the land, and when the zemindar was not even bound to accept him as a ryot, or to admit him into possession, any proprietary rights which would entitle him, without express contract, to participate in any increase in the value of the produce of the land not caused by his own agency or at his expense. It would surprise landowners in England if they were to find that, by an Act having retrospective effect, or by a construction put upon the words "fair and equitable," tenants who had held under leases for ninety-nine years at a nominal rent, or had held for twenty years as tenants from year to year at very low rents, had acquired rights of occupancy, and that at the expiration of the leases, or upon the determination of the tenancies, they were not merely not bound to quit, but were entitled to hold on at a lower rate than the landowners could obtain from new tenants. Referring to some remarks made by Mr. Justice Campbell, Sir Barnes added :—

"If he would refer to the proceedings of the Legislative Council for 1859, on the motion of Mr. Ricketts, at page 222 he would find equally legitimate evidence that it was not in fact the intention of the legislature, when using the words 'fair and equitable,' to render the Pergunnah rates, or customary rates, or the rates payable by similar ryots for similar lands in the neighbourhood, the standard for determining what would be fair and equitable. It could not have been left to the landowner to fix his own rent, without enabling him to frustrate the intention to give a right of occupancy; for, if he could fix his own rent, he could easily compel the ryot to abandon his holding. There is nothing in the words 'fair and equitable' which necessitates injustice to the landowners, or such a construction to be put upon the Act as to render it a violation of the engagement made with the zeminders at the time of the Permanent Settlement. What is just and equitable in each case is left to the Courts, and was intended to be left to them. What is fair and equitable for an old ryot who has a prescriptive right to a certain proportion of net or gross produce is not necessarily fair and equitable for the modern ryot or for one who has occupied for a period of 12 years only at the same rent at which he was let in, or at a rent from time to time enhanced or diminished by agreement without reference to any fixed principles."

How, asked the Chief Justice, can it be said that the landowner enjoys exclusively the benefit of the public assessments being fixed for ever, when—as he showed by calculations of the working of the "proportion" rule—the ryot gets four-sevenths and the landowner only three-sevenths of the net increase? If any rule of proportion is to be applied as a test of what is fair and equitable, which he denied, the rule that the ryot's net profit under the new circumstances shall bear the same proportion to the present net value of produce as the former net profit did to the former net value, would be more fair and equitable than the proposed rule of proportion. In that case the new rent would bear the same proportion to the present net value as the former rent did to the former net value. If we were entitled to do what is roughly equitable, instead of deciding upon accurate and correct principles, he thought the most equitable thing would be to give the landowner three-fourths, and the tenant one-fourth of the net increase according to the rule adopted in the North-Western Provinces of giving Government one-half, and allowing the land-owner to increase his rents upon his ryots until they amount to half as much again. If we went back to early days in search of customary rights, we should fail to discover any custom under which the ryots received as much as one-half or even one-fourth of the net produce after paying all the expenses of production, or that when a money rent was fixed a ryot having a right of occupancy had a right to prevent the landowner from increasing it beyond the proportion which such money rent, when fixed, bore to the gross value of produce. To raise the status of the ryot, and, instead of leaving him as an agricultural labourer without capital or property, to convert him into a co-proprietor with interests equal to or greater than those of the zemindar, would doubtless be very benevolent if one were to do so at his own expense. But for the Legislature to do so by sacrificing the rights of the zemindar would, so far from being fair and equitable, be an act of the greatest injustice. "I cannot," said the Chief Justice, "think that the words 'fair and equitable' ought to receive such a construction as that proposed to be put upon them. Entertaining the opinion which, after much reflection and labour, I have formed in this case, I feel that I should not be justified in yielding that opinion out of deference to those of my learned colleagues. On the contrary, I should consider that I was holding that the Legislature, in passing Act X. of 1859, had violated the engagement which the Government made with the zeminders at the time of the Permanent Settlement, and had exercised a power which Government stated no longer existed when in Regulation II. of 1793 they declared, in the most emphatic language, that 'No power would then exist in this country by which the rights vested in the landholders by the Regulations could be infringed, or the value of the landed property affected; that land must in consequence become the most desirable of all property, and the industry of the people would be directed to those improvements in agriculture which were as essential to their own welfare as to the prosperity of the State.'"

The judgment of Sir Barnes Peacock—which is of course over-ruled by that of his colleagues—is one of undeniable ability; but it is perhaps better—under present circumstances—that the decision in the case should be made upon what he calls "roughly equitable" principles, than upon the strictly "accurate and correct" principles which he so well lays down. The present decision is not satisfactory, since it most distinctly infringes proprietary rights, and gives to the ryots advantages which, before their interests became a party question, they could never have asked or expected. But, on the other hand, the legal and logical conclusions of the Chief Justice would still less have been accepted as a settlement, and might have led to disturbing if not dangerous influences. The fault lies in the state of the law, the meaning of which, whether for right or wrong, must be made clear and distinct before such an important question as the present can be finally set at rest. While Act X. of 1859 remains liable to be misunderstood no decision of the judges will be contentedly received; and the compromise which has been arrived at, while avoiding a violent change, does not shut the door against legislative action.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE INDIAN ARMY.—SECOND SERIES.
No. VI.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In the month of January, 1857, the Hindoostani portion of the Bengal Army consisted of seventy-three regiments of infantry, ten of regular cavalry, and eighteen of irregular cavalry. By the latter end of May of the same year sixty-three regiments of regular infantry, the whole ten regiments of regular cavalry, and one-half of the irregulars, having first murdered their European officers and families within reach of them, deserted with their arms, took possession of the stores, ammunition, and treasure wherever they found them, and having broken open the felons' jails went into open rebellion against the Government.

Thus, an army of 86,000 men, with their native commissioned and non-commissioned officers, was broken up, and nearly 10,000 cavalry and 63,000 infantry was arraigned against the Government. Of the eleven regiments of infantry which were not guilty of murder and desertion, only one, now styled the Loyal Poorbeah, par excellence, became entitled to that epithet, from its fidelity to the Government in the siege of Lucknow. Two others, the 21st and the 70th, after having mutinied at Barrackpore, were first disarmed, then pardoned, and allowed to work out their fidelity on shipboard, to serve with the Indian Army in China. The other eight corps were disarmed under strong suspicion, but they at the end of the war in 1859 were again embodied in the new Bengal army, of which I shall hereafter have to speak.

The siege of Delhi was brought to an end before the arrival of European aid, mainly, if not entirely, by the energy of Sir John Lawrence and his officers, and by the loyalty and zeal of the Sikhs and Pathans pushed forward from the Punjab. The alacrity with which they flew to our aid is vividly described by the Duke of Argyll in his review of the administration of Lord Canning:—

"When the small brigade which could be formed at Meerut moved out to advance on Delhi the first important accession of strength which it acquired was the Sirmonee Battalion of Goorkhas. To this body was entrusted the key of our position, and it lost half its numbers in killed and wounded. The ponderous siege trains wended their laborious way to the same point under the escort of the Nabha Contingent, and of Farquhar's Beloochees. There was the Jheend Horse; there was the Cashmere Contingent; there was the Mooltanee Horse; there was the Kumaon Battalion; there were Coke's Pathan Borderers. On the burning ridge from which our little band maintained the siege no louder cheers were given than when the Punjab Guides came bounding into camp on the morning of the 9th June. From whence had they come, and how? From the far frontier of Peshawur—a distance of more than 600 miles—marching at the rate of twenty-seven miles a day every day for three weeks, at a season when the thermometer was 110 deg. in the shade! Nor did they fight less bravely than they marched. Within a few hours of their arrival they were in fierce and triumphant action with the enemy." On this occasion their gallant leader was mortally wounded, and on his death-bed he said with a smile to those around it, "Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori."

The reviewer goes on to say, "The three columns which assaulted Delhi amounted together to 2,850 men. Of these 1,425

(a clear majority) were native soldiers. Of the reserve column, numbering 1,200 men, 950 were native and only 250 Europeans." The principal gate of the city being blown open at considerable loss, the troops entered at three points, where the enemy met them, defending house after house, and street after street, during seven days, till on the 24th September Delhi fell, in which assault the British lost one-half of the storming parties, among whom was the gallant young General Nicholson, who led the first column. The besiegers were not in sufficient strength to invest the city, which was built on the bank of a broad river. This circumstance enabled the enemy to receive reinforcements from time to time, but they were not admitted as friends till they had evinced their fidelity by making a sally on the besiegers, of which twenty instances occurred during the operations in the twelve weeks of open trenches. In that time the force lost three successive commanders—Major-general Sir H. Bernard died at an early part of the siege; he was succeeded by Major-general Read, who soon after left on account of his health; the Commander-in-Chief (the Hon. Lieut.-gen. Anson) was on the road to assume the command when he died of the cholera, and his place was ably supplied in the person of Sir Archdale Wilson, who conducted the operations with success, and received honours at the hand of his Sovereign.

Meanwhile Cawnpore was lost, in spite of the utmost gallantry, owing to the treachery of Nana Dhondo Punt. Lucknow was reinforced by the gallantry of Sir H. Havelock's force, which was accompanied by the brave and chivalrous Sir James Outram, and was eventually relieved, and the conquest of Oude achieved under Sir Colin Campbell, the late Lord Clyde. Sir James Outram thus describes the scientific operations of the siege, regarding which he observes, "I am aware of no parallel in our series of mines in modern warfare. Twenty-one shafts, aggregating 200 feet in depth, and 23,921 feet of gallery, have been executed. The enemy advanced twenty times against the palaces and outposts. On these occasions they exploded three mines, which caused no loss of life, and two which did no injury. Seven have been blown in, and out of seven others the enemy have been driven, and their galleries taken possession of by our miners," results of which our Addiscombe College may well be proud.

The relief and capture of Lucknow took place after some hard fighting on the 19th November, 1857. The Oudh war, however, had only begun, and it was not till on the same day in the following year that Sir Colin Campbell reported the subjection of Oudh, and the destruction of its fortifications, and the disarming of a population capable of providing upwards of a million of men fit to bear arms. The official enumeration of forts and arms is as follows:—

1,584 Forts and Castles.
Cannons	693
Fire arms	189,937
Swords	574,656
Spears	50,914
Side arms	640,259

Total of all descriptions ... 1,450,029

There is, however, a remarkable feature in the operations of the Sepoy war that occurs to a military mind, which is that, although in the sieges of Delhi and Lucknow, as well after being driven out of Jhansi, when the Sepoys retired in squares and repelled the charges of the British cavalry, when they displayed their usual courage, yet they evinced a want of knowledge of the higher branches of tactics in the field. They made no attempts on our baggage and supplies. They made no night attacks, and they never secured their flanks in pitched battles, by which neglect they suffered defeat from fewer numbers. In these respects they proved themselves inferior to the Sikh forces, which so gallantly contested the palm with the British troops in the wars of 1845 and 1849 in the Punjab, against Lord Gough. The contrast between these operations and those during the Sepoy war is to be found in the difference of the organisation of the English and the Sikh regulars. The former had no officers of a higher rank than commanders of companies, whereas the latter had their field officers, brigadiers, generals of division, and commanders of armies, and were skilled and experienced in military tactics.

Wherever in our own territory we can find a military aristocracy suited to the description of organisation of the Sikh army there does not occur the same necessity for many European officers, but these must be selected from a large body trained among natives, otherwise we shall have them cut to pieces by their own men, as has been too often the case when the feelings of the latter have been outraged. On such occasions the perpetrators of such deeds act without reference to the consequence, however certain and fatal to themselves.

Where, however, there does not exist a description of military chiefs fitted to become officers at once without rising from the ranks, it then becomes requisite to supply their place by European officers' from the grade of subaltern to that of general. If, indeed, the authorities imagine that our own security and the efficiency of the local army can be obtained by leaving the internal economy of regular regiments in the hands of uneducated men entering the service on 51d. a day, and doing private's duty as a rule for several years before they even attain the grade of a lance corporal, they are building castles on sand, into which the edifices will eventually sink and bring upon ourselves certain ruin.

With these sentiments I conclude the second series of these letters, and in another series I hope to be able to point out the errors which the present system involves, and how these errors may be corrected.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.—Aug. 12.
[Before Mr. Registrar WINSLOW, as Commissioner.]

RE WILLIAM PETRIE WAUGH.

The bankrupt, whose name is familiar to the public as having been connected with the Eastern Banking Corporation, applied to pass his last examination, and for an order of discharge. The present liabilities were of comparatively small amount, and there were no available assets. It will be recollected that Colonel Waugh recently obtained a certificate under a former bankruptcy in respect of debts to an enormous amount incurred prior to 1857. He being subsequently arrested and detained upon judgments upon debts contracted since his first bankruptcy, filed his own petition, which, however, was dismissed, owing to the omission from the accounts of a judgment debt due to Lord Garvagh. The bankrupt was ultimately again adjudicated upon the petition of a creditor.

Mr. Chidley appeared for the assignee, and said he was instructed to offer no opposition.

Mr. Bagley opposed for Mr. Levitt, an accountant, a creditor upon a bill of exchange for £70, and required an amendment of the accounts, and also a deficiency account.

The bankrupt underwent a lengthened examination by Mr. Bagley as to the accuracy of the accounts filed, and particularly as to the disposal of the advowson of the living at Branksea Island, deposited as collateral security with two creditors for advances made from time to time.

Mr. Robertson Griffiths re-examined the bankrupt, who deposed as follows:—He gave the bill to Mr. Levitt partly as a present for services rendered as his confidential accountant during his former bankruptcy. Mr. Levitt handed him £10 out of the bill, which he (bankrupt) gave to the clerks of Mr. C. Brown, the accountant, as a reward for their exertions. That was all the consideration he had received for the £70 bill in his behalf. The advowson at Branksea belonged to his aunt, and was worth about £1,200. That lady allowed him to deposit the title to the next presentation to the living to two of his present creditors as security for about £600 for advances made to him. The accounts filed were the best he was capable of preparing. He had voluntarily filed a cash account for twelve months before the bankruptcy, although not ordered to do so by the court.

Mr. Robertson Griffiths commenced his address on behalf of the bankrupt, but was stopped by the Court; and

His Honour, having gone very minutely over all the objections raised to the accounts, said that he did not think there were sufficient facts before him to induce him (the Commissioner) to adjourn the sitting for amendment of the accounts. The bankrupt had voluntarily filed a cash account, which ought not to be considered with the same technical strictness as one filed by order of the Court. He (the Commissioner) could not see that the creditors would be at all benefited by the filing of further accounts, believing, as he did, that it would not lead to the discovery of any estate. The advowson alluded to, judging from the evidence, belonging to a relation of the bankrupt; and as to the deficiency account, that was stated to extend over a period of eight years. As the bankrupt had appeared to have suffered much by his lengthened imprisonment, he (the Commissioner) thought that the bankrupt might now pass his examination and receive his order of discharge.

The judgment of the learned Commissioner was followed by slight manifestations of applause, which were promptly checked by the officers of the court.

LOCOMOTIVE COTTON PRESS COMPANY.—At a meeting of this company, in their offices, 60, Gracechurch-street, on Wednesday, the 9th inst., it appeared that some of the shareholders had not confidence in the prospects of the company, and in opposition to the resolution of the directors to continue operations in India, a suggestion was made by Mr. Heenan that the company be wound up. Of the twenty-four shareholders present eleven voted in favour of the winding up, and eleven (including the directors) against it, two remaining neutral; but on counting the proxies there was a majority of 989 in favour of the views of the directors, as against 375 for the winding up. Mr. W. H. Smith (recently returned from India) was chairman.

She brings 87 passengers and a general cargo, including 1,388 bales of raw silk to the value of £90,000. The cholera appears to be gradually creeping westward. The towns on the eastern coast of Spain, in their dread of the introduction of the epidemic, are imposing the quarantine on each other.

The majority of our Dyes are entirely soluble in boiling water, and will dye without the addition of other ingredients.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vide Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.—

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown. (See TIMES, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

GINGER has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine, and, combined with camomile, it is the most efficient stomachic tonic known, for while the ginger relieves the stomach from distension and flatulency, arising from impaired digestion, the camomile strengthens the coats of the stomach, and by that means gives it a healthy and invigorating tone. So highly concentrated is this preparation, it is unimpaired by age or climate, and well adapted for exportation. In Gout, Spasms, Dysentery, Cholera, or those complaints incidental to tropical climates, it is invaluable, as in numerous cases a dose or two has checked and frequently cured most alarming attacks. No family should be without it. Sold in half-pints, quarter-pints, and one-eighth pints.

Agreeable Sedlitz Powder, in one bottle, protected by a case, with measure and spoon included. The advantage of this preparation is the perfect combination of the solid ingredients of the Sedlitz Spring in one compound powder.

It is very cooling and refreshing, well adapted for exportation, or travellers by land or sea.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinine.—For the prevention of Fever, Intermittent or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria.

No person exposed to the influence or predisposing cause of Fevers should be without it, for if taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria.—Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.

The above articles prepared only by THOS. WILKINSON late Wilkinson, Bridge, & Co., 270, Regent-street, London, W.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH-

ING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR

TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

Earl Russell sent to the College of Physicians a communication received by him from Manila (where Cholera had been raging fearfully), to the effect, that, of all remedies tried, Chlorodyne was the most effective.—See Brit. Med. J., Dec. 31, 1864.

CHLORODYNE (TOWLE'S). Cholera,

Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c., immediately relieved by a dose of TOWLE'S CHLORODYNE, which is admitted to be a most wonderful and valuable medicine, and preferred by the profession for its known composition and moderate price.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.

Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1864. Ship Gertrude.

Mr. TOWLE.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Alarcelles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne, from which myself and crew found immediate relief; and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitoes, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

SPORTSMEN will find this an invaluable remedy for destroying fleas in their dogs, as also ladies for their pet dogs.

Being the Original Importer of this now invaluable article, which has found so great a sale that it has tempted others to vend a so-called article, the public are therefore cautioned to observe that the packets of the genuine Powder bear the autograph of THOMAS KEATING.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

—DANGEROUS DISEASES.—How many life-long maladies spring from neglecting trifling symptoms. The pimple readily curable in the nursery, becomes, through carelessness, the irremediable torment of after life. With a knowledge of the curative powers of Holloway's Ointment and Pills, those who fail to use them for extirpating the first seeds of hereditary ailments, will have to bear the punishment resulting from their folly. Holloway's remedies will remove eruptions of the skin, scrofulous diseases, and scrofula, and heal every description of ulcer, sore, wound, or abrasion. By the employment of Holloway's excellent, speedy, and safe medicaments much pain and immense expense will be saved, and a great benefit conferred on the present and succeeding generations.

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-
Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-
IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

We have received our usual files of papers from Calcutta to the 15th of July and Bombay to the 22nd of that month.

In Calcutta, according to one of the summaries, the most important news was that the San Francisco Minstrels were giving a series of performances. The papers indeed were all complaining of having nothing to say. One piece of news which they furnish, however, is not quite contemptible. There is a renewed report—this time believed to be well founded—of the Bhooteahs having made submission. In the meantime, peace being in prospect, the Government had made the most efficient preparations for carrying on the war, as will be seen by the military relief just issued from the Quartermaster-general's Department—a document, by the way, which might have shared a reference with the San Francisco Minstrels. It is stated, too, that the Viceroy has sent a letter to the Deb Rajah intimating that the period of half measures is past, and requiring the concession of all our demands as to captives, plunder, territory, and guarantees for the future, on pain of Poonakha being levelled with the ground next November.

There was a report that Government contemplated the embanking and reclamation of the very extensive Salt Lands in Tumlook and Hidgellee, which have become useless since the manufacture was stopped.

The Governor-General and Council were to proceed as usual to Calcutta in the cold weather, putting off the expected visit to the Punjab and Rajpootana. It seems now pretty certain that the army headquarters will be fixed at Simla, the Commander-in-Chief having just purchased a mansion near Barnes Court for twenty-one thousand rupees—a sum which Sir William Mansfield is not likely to throw away for a temporary purpose. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal was still absent on his tour, making a razzia upon the Mofussil Bench. Mr. Beaufort followed Mr. Buckle a short time since; and now we find that Mr. Russell, the officiating judge of Behar, has also been removed.

Colonel Douglas has been relieved of the charge of the Electric Telegraph amidst a chorus of undisguised hip-hip-hurra-ing from all classes of the public whom he has managed to disoblige. He is succeeded by Lieutenant-Colonel Robinson, of the Royal Engineers; but the superintendence of the department, it is said, is to be divided, so there will be a chance for another officer.

We see by the Government Gazette that barristers, pleaders, and others, desirous of obtaining a certificate of qualification in the Vernacular, entitling them to exemption from further examination in case of their becoming applicants for appointments requiring a knowledge of the languages, are invited to attend before the Board of Examiners at Calcutta, for that purpose. The Delhi Gazette remarks that the Government show particular anxiety on the subject at the precise time when it becomes necessary that the business of the Chief Court of each province should be conducted in a language foreign to the people of the country.

Money continued plentiful in Calcutta, with a little improvement in demand. Fair business had been done in Government Securities, but prices were not firm. The Share Market exhibited a marked improvement, most moving stocks having risen in value. The aspect of affairs in Bombay was considered much better than could have been expected, and under the influence of the improved price of cotton, trade, and even speculation in that city, bade fair to recover at least their usual dimensions. All immediate pressure in Bombay appeared indeed to be past, and in Calcutta the market was proportionately relieved.

Mr. Massey, it is said, has found himself in a position to take a more encouraging view of Indian finance than he had anticipated, and there was no probability of his bringing forward a supplementary budget. The income-tax will expire this month, but it is now thought that some measure of direct taxation must be introduced in its stead. Referring to the rumours of the Governor-General's resignation, circulated some time back, the Times of India says: "These may now derive some slight retrospective importance since the publication of Sir C. Wood's despatch in reply to the Indian Budget resolutions; together with the protest which, as we now learn, the Viceroy recorded against Sir C. Trevelyan's policy. Yet, whatever resentment his Excellency may have felt because of the peremptory tone of Sir C. Wood's despatch, and the frustration of his own plans for barrack improvement, it is evident that there is now no probability of his leaving India for a long time to come."

The news from Bombay confirms the cheerful assurance in Calcutta as regards the money market; but there will be some scandals yet, if we are to accept the authority of the Pioneer. "We could publish," says that journal, "but the fear of attorneys' letters before our eyes, some marvellous stories (notifications) as to the undignified circumstances under which more than one speculator left Bombay, by a late steamer, in the vessel's hold and elsewhere, anywhere but in first-class cabins. And we are assured that the next fortnight will reveal evidence of speculative gambling and its unhappy sequel among all classes in Bombay (including many members both of the civil and military services, hitherto held immaculate), such as even at a period of universal suspicion can scarcely have credence." A Bombay correspondent of the same paper, referring to the subject, tells us that during the late excited state of the market, and in the overweening confidence with which the great speculators were regarded, it seemed the most ordinary business transaction to lend a man fifty lakhs on his personal security; and even if great caution was supposed to be exercised, the depositing of a few Back Bay shares, or those of other financials, was thought quite sufficient, and indeed rather unnecessary.

The directors of the Bank of Bombay had determined not to declare a dividend for the half-year ending June 30. Nevertheless the losses of the bank were said to have been not so serious as was supposed.

There was a little political news, including some disturbances on the North-West Frontier, to which reference will be found elsewhere. A letter from Bokhara shows that the Russians are making themselves at home in that State. There has also been an alarm of their presence in Cashmere, but certain white faces seen there appear to belong to missionaries. Affairs in Cabul are in as great confusion as ever.

Much astonishment had been caused by the fact that Major-General Green had been prohibited from publishing some documents upon which he relied for his exculpation in the Fatal March affair. They are, however, printed for private circulation, and a breach of confidence may be relied on.

European "loafers" were becoming the terror of Bombay, and Government were devising means for disposing of them. They have caused a panic as great as that produced by the garotters in London a couple of years ago, and their outrages are committed with even greater daring, in open day. The police are said to be nowhere.

Captain Martin, who was so long in arrest at Kamptee, has been acquitted of the charges brought against him.

It is said that Sir W. M. Coghlan, K.C.B., late Political Resident at Aden, will be sent as envoy to King Theodosius of Abyssinia, should Mr. Rassam fail in obtaining the liberation of Mr. Cameron and the other captives.

Cholera was still about. It is mentioned as having attacked a detachment of the 91st Highlanders at Nagode, three of the men having died. But Sir Hugh Rose's plan for moving into camp proved successful in this as in other cases, and the disease was checked.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which is expected at Marseilles on Friday next.

THE 1ST (LATE 21ST) N.I.—A correspondent writes as follows:—"J. B., in his excellent letter published in your paper of the 15th inst., falls into an error when he states that 'the 21st and 70th, after having mutinied at Barrackpore, were first disarmed, then pardoned, and allowed to work out their fidelity on ship board to serve with the Indian army in China.' The fact being that the 21st (now the 1st N.I.) was stationed at Peshawur in 1857, and not at Barrackpore; was never for a second disarmed; and, I need not say, never mutinied. I think it right, Sir, for the sake of a fine corps, which behaved remarkably well at a serious time of trouble, to point out the above mistake."

BENGAL.

OUR POLICY IN BHOOTAN.

Week after week adds to the prostration of the Sepoy force in the passes of Bhootan. Officer after officer is forced to succumb to the malarious fever of the Terai, and leave the regiments to be commanded as they best may. Practically it may be said that we have no army on the frontier. There are posts placed in the most unhealthy localities, and just within sight of the ridge of the outer hills which enjoy the climate of Darjeeling. One regiment reckons its sick at forty-seven per cent., the wing of another is commanded by native officers. The 11th N. I. cannot be said to exist. Even the healthiest corps has fifteen per cent. in hospital. When the time for action comes a new force must be marched up to supplement that which, in the present weather and for fighting purposes, has ceased to exist. In the course of the next Relief the 91st Highlanders will take the place of the 80th Foot, now at Darjeeling, the 4th and 5th Companies of Sappers and Miners will relieve the 2nd and 6th, and almost all the Sepoy corps will be changed.

The only hopeful feature of the whole business is that the Government of India has resolved to act. The Viceroy has sent a letter to the Deb Rajah, couched in terms which require the most complete submission, the concession of all our demands as to captives, plunder, and territory, and guarantees for the future, under pain of having Poonakha levelled with the ground next November. We do not expect that such threats will have the slightest effect, so long as there is really no executive Government in Bhootan except Tongsoo Penlow's will. Had such language instead of the weak missive of 9th June been used last year, it might then have been effectual. But the last letter sent from the cool delights of Simla to the Deb Rajah, after the barbarous insults to our mission, "roared so gently like a sucking dove," and has been followed by such contemptible generalship, that it would be silly in the Bhootan Amla to believe its successor twelve months after. The letter lately sent is not likely to have any other effect than that of leading the Bhootas to cut down all the bridges on the way to the capital, and to strengthen Angdu Forung and Poonakha. Indeed, we honestly confess that it would be a pity if they professed to yield to our demands. Being savages who are more proficient in the art of lying than all other Asiatics, who to the unblushing falsehood of the Hindoo add the clever dissimulation of the Chinese, they would merely, by surrender at present, postpone on our part the inevitable duty of exacting reparation for the wrongs of half a century and security for future good behaviour.

In the almost certain event of the late Simla thunderbolt evoking no more satisfactory reply than its predecessor, the month of November will see our force on the road to Poonakha. The march involves two sets of difficulties, political and military. Bhootan is a feudatory of Thibet, though the Lhasa authorities dislike their tributaries as heartily as we do. Hitherto, and indeed ever since the days of Warren Hastings, Thibet has not only refused to aid Bhootan in its contests with us, but seems to have looked on our success with some satisfaction. Moreover Thibet is still torn by intestine disputes, Lhasa being ruled by Sape Satya, a tyrant who raised himself to power by Chinese aid, and whose cruelties have now invoked the despatch of a Chinese force against him and the Lamas who support him. Still, since our next movement will involve the annexation of a large part of the Bhootans we have reason to believe that Thibet will look on this step with apprehension. Like ourselves, who were satisfied while Cabul, under a strong ruler, lay between our frontier and Central Asia, the Thibetans were indifferent so long as we left the territory of Bhootan intact. Very different will their feelings be when, seeing us advanced to the watershed of the outer hills, the distance between the all-absorbing English power and their frontier is reduced to a strip of barren hill territory. Moreover, annexation, by depriving the lazy Bhootas of their slave labour, their grain, and their revenues, will precipitate on Thibet her hated feudatories. Due notice was sent by us to Peking of our war last year, with a copy of the proclamation of the Governor-General. When similar notice is sent this year, it will probably not be treated with the same indifference. Still the dread of annexation will not prove sufficient to rouse the authorities of Lhasa to assist the Deb Rajah, and when it is over, our frontier will be no nearer that of Thibet on the east than it has been on the west since the war with Nepal.

The military difficulties are much more serious. It is contemplated, we believe, to send a force of one thousand English soldiers and three thousand sepoy from Buxa to Poonakha. Government is evidently determined that the mistake of underrating our enemies shall not be repeated. But is this not to fall into the other extreme, of so over-estimating their strength that our movements will be hampered? Should the raid of a fortnight be converted into the, perhaps disastrous, marching of two months? The Commissariat authorities have estimated that a force of three thousand men alone will require at the least thirteen thousand coolies. These coolies, too, and the mules and beasts of burden, must be accustomed to hill work. Where are they to be found, and if found how are they to be fed? Poonakha is at least eighty miles from Buxa, by which the advance would be made up the valley of the Chinchu, which flows rapidly past the summer capital of Tassissudon in a rocky channel, and runs nearly south through the Buxa pass into the Berhampooter. Then there are the Machoo and Pachoo, which, uniting at Poonakha, pass Anglu Forung, which we must capture, and are unfordable. No supplies can be drawn from the country itself. Mortar guns and howitzers must be taken. It is doubtful if the European troops and officers could dispense with tents, but the variable character of the temperature will render both warm and cool clothing necessary. Captain Lance's Report discusses these questions. All these obstacles would prove serious to an army of four thousand men, but they could easily be overcome by a picked force of one thousand. Our last experience at Dewangiri, and the one fact that the Bhootas take three minutes to load and fire every shot, are in favour of the smaller force if one-half are Europeans. This must, in any case, be remembered, that the Bhootas themselves may possibly assist us, if we abstain from outraging their feelings. Our men must be prevented by the punishment of death if necessary, from plundering the rich tombs of the Lamas, whose incinerated remains frequently lie in cists of gold. In the last Burmese war it was impossible to keep our soldiers from the Pagodas.

After the experience so dearly bought by past disasters there is no reason why the beginning of the next year should not see the northern frontier of Bengal extended to the crest of those hills which are seen from the plains. Darjeeling will then be placed in safety by adding to it the eastern slope of the valley of the Teesta and a strip of hill territory enjoying a climate quite equal to that of Kurseong, stretching away for two hundred miles. The country is rich in tea-soil, lime and sal timber. Hitherto the Dhurm Rajah has prevented the agriculturists from cultivating tea, lest the profitable trade with Thibet should be affected. Cotton and saffron, Captain Ansten thinks, could be grown successfully about Poonakha, and it is to be hoped that our annexation of the plain country will drive the lazy Bhootas to the development of such resources, as well as the iron and copper which undoubtedly abound. The lime deposits are so abundant and rich at Buxa, and carriage to the plains is so cheap, that some of our officials on the frontier are sorely tempted to turn contractors. No use will be made of the timber until the forest authorities have selected conservancy tracts. Apart, however, from all those resources which English capital and skill are required to call forth, Colonel Haughton, the Civil Commissioner, estimates that the revenue of the rice tracts alone will yield two lacs of rupees the first year, and will increase to six lacs in a few years. With a force of 1,800 men to guard the frontier and the present civil establishment, even the former sum would yield a profit. The days of annexation are so long past that it is well to prove the Empire will suffer no loss before an Act so necessary and too long delayed, as the extension of our frontier to the crest of the nearer Himalayas, will be even discussed. In the present case discussion is fortunately unnecessary, the conduct of Bhootan has been so outrageous.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILITARY ITEMS.—A Court, composed of Brigadier-General Hill, the Divisional Assistant Quartermaster-General, and another officer, has been directed to assemble at Fyzabad, to inquire into the cause of the recent great mortality in H.M.'s 11th Foot.—On the recommendation of the Commander-in-Chief, Government has granted the sum of Rs. 5,000 to Captain G.V. Fosberry, for the expenses incurred in preparing a rifle shell, invented by him, and which proved of much use at Umbeyla.—The Secretary of State has granted Major Warrant, of the Engineers, who lost an arm at Delhi, in 1857, an increase to his wound-pension. We are glad to hear that this concession has been made. Major Warrant is to receive £100 a-year, instead of the pension of £70 granted to him as a Lieutenant in 1858.—It was only the other day that the Government ruled that no detachment should be allowed to march through the estates of a native chief unless accompanied by an officer of experience, who should be able to act as interpreter between the men and the natives. It now appears that the compliment of this order is likely to be issued. Several cases of a breach of the peace having occurred whilst British troops were marching through the territories of the Nizam, the matter was represented by the Durbar to the British Government. The Governor-General in reply has directed that although the arrangement may possibly prove inconvenient, yet as it is for the benefit of the Nizam and his people, all detachments of British troops whilst marching through his territories shall be accompanied by an officer of his Highness. The rule should be extended to all native states without exception.—In the general orders issued by his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, dated the 26th ultimo, we notice that an officer was permitted by the local military authorities to proceed on privilege leave, with the avowed purpose of obtaining an extension under the medical certificate granted to him before he left his post. His Excellency is, with the sanction of Government, pleased to determine that a medical certificate, recommending leave of absence to an officer, will be invalid, unless the officer to whom it is granted avails himself of it at once.

THE LUCKNOW LIBEL CASE.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette says:—The famous libel case which arose out of the publication of the 'Talookdaree' articles from the Bombay Gazette has come to nothing. The Baboo agrees to apologise in private for having instituted the case, if Mr. H. D. C. will apologise in public to him. I conclude that both parties found it rather too expensive a game to play. The Baboo has lost the Secretaryship of the British Indian Association through the very gross blunders he has made lately in his semi-official communications with the Talookdars. He has also resigned the Secretaryship of the Canning College, and Doctor Ralph Moore reigneth in his stead.

Mr. W. M. BEAUFORT, the Additional Judge of Dacca, has, we regret to hear, been condemned by the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal as unfit for the judicial charge and control of a district, and the superintendence of its subordinate courts, for serious discourtesy towards Mr. E. Drummond, the Magistrate and Collector of the district, for a trifling cause.—Englishman.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IN INDIA IN THE MATTER OF EXCHANGES.—We learn that the authorities in England have ruled that the Commander-in-Chief in India shall only approve of those exchanges between officers in purchase and officers in non-purchase regiments where the officer proposing to enter a non-purchase regiment shall be older, or not more than one year younger than the officer he replaces. This principle might be carried further, and a medical opinion be taken of the value of life of each officer before the exchange should be permitted. It is not enough to protect the officers below the exchanging officer from an unfair difference of age, but strength and value of life ought also to be considered. Thus, as in an insurance office, the medical officer should be called on to say whether A's life was better than B's, and if it were, the exchange should not be permitted. If A's life were worth twenty years' purchase, and B's life only worth twelve years', the prospects of those over whom A would be placed in lieu of B would be damaged considerably. The Home authorities have only half considered this question.—Englishman.

UNEMPLOYED SAILORS IN CALCUTTA.—Alluding to a certain subscription which has been set on foot for the relief of poor sailors, a Calcutta paper says:—Before seconding the appeal to the public, on behalf of about five hundred distressed seamen, who have been left upon the charity of the port, we might well inquire what part the Government means to take in assisting these men to leave the country, or otherwise, and what security we have against a recurrence of a similar state of things. There exists a law under which the Government can compel outgoing ships to take these men away. Had proper vigilance been exercised from the first, that law might, probably, have been put in force without unduly pressing upon any one. We believe it to be chiefly owing to the neglect of the authorities that these destitute seamen have reached a number so large that the law we refer to could not be put in force without producing great hardship. The depressed state of trade may have had something to do with the difficulty; but we should like to know to what extent it is attributable to this, or other unavoidable circumstances, and to what extent it is attributable to the Government not doing its duty.

OPIMUM SALE AT CALCUTTA.—The following are the results of the latest opium sale by Messrs. Mackenzie, Lyall, and Co., on behalf of the Government:—

	Chests.	Highest.	Lowest.	Proceeds.
Behar ...	2,920	85	85	25,05,775
Benares ...	2,155	795	785	19,30,625

There were the same number of chests as in the sale on June 12. The present sale exhibits a falling off in the prices realised.

Behar...	Rs. 30	0	0	decrease in highest price.
Benares	"	20	0	"
Behar...	Rs. 30	0	0	decrease in lowest price.
Benares	"	14	0	"
Behar...	Rs. 30	3	8	decrease in average price.
Benares	"	16	0	"
Behar...	Rs. 88	875		decrease in proceeds.
Benares	"	39,075		"

This gives a total falling in the latest sale as compared with that of last month of no less than Rs. 1,27,900.

PATOWDEE.—There is a little native State within the Delhi Commissionership, in the neighbourhood of Goorgaon, named Patowdee, which produces a revenue of Rs. 85,000 annually and possesses in an ordinary degree all those elements which are requisite to the happiness of a ruler and his subjects. But the ruler died some time ago; his son and successor is a minor, and the minor's uncle, Asghur Ali Khan, holds the office of regent under our paternal government. His administration, we are informed, is not successful, and some even go the length of saying that it is disastrous to the interests of the future ruler and his people. Pay is not issued to the troops for one year at a time, and the other day when the sowars in the employ of the State came forward to ask for their arrears, they were so insulted and abused that an emeute took place, in which heads were freely broken with bludgeons, and it required a great effort to put an end to the affray. Other instances of mal-administration on the part of Asghur Ali Khan are reported, and it is said that, although the Commissioner of Delhi has more than once come down upon him for an explanation, he will not desist from his objectionable practices. We would recommend that a closer watch be kept over the conduct of Asghur Ali Khan, and that, if the malpractices laid to his charge are still continued, he be removed from his post and a better man set over the little State.—Delhi Gazette.

RANGOON, July 8.—We have had some strange rumours in town lately about the goings on at Mandalay; Captain Sladen, the Resident, has been robbed and his life threatened if he does not take early measure to leave Ava; the King of Burmah, it is further added, has told Captain Sladen that he is unable to guarantee the lives of the British residents at Mandalay. Under these circumstances, report has it, Capt. Sladen is on his way back to Rangoon, but I fancy if he does return at all it will be on account of the loss of his wife at Mandalay, which occurred some time last month, as I cannot bring myself to believe that the King of Burmah has so soon forgotten the chastisement he received in 1852. During the robbery, it is also stated that Captain Sladen's son was wounded. The rumours (unfortunately I cannot include Captain Sladen's severe loss in the death of his wife amongst the number) were brought here by an Armenian merchant, and we are anxiously, therefore, looking out for the next steamer from Mandalay to ascertain the correctness or otherwise of the report. The Burmese here seem to believe the story, and have got rather bold over it; fancy their sticking up a proclamation a few days ago to the effect that they would plunder the whole town after the lapse of a week; they have not been able to do so yet, but at the same time I must confess that they have made some pretty large hauls (in one instance about 10,000 rupees were taken from the godowns of Halliday, Bullock & Co.), and only await the return of dark nights to complete their threat. The people here are used to this and so are the police. General D'Ortoni and his daughter were buried here last week; the latter died on the voyage from Mandalay by boat, of acute dysentery (her body being preserved in spirits, or honey, I forget which) and the former of the same disease a day after his arrival in Rangoon. He died as poor a man as he was when he first came to Burmah to seek his fortune. By-the-bye, it is a common practice here and at Ava to preserve the bodies of priests (Buddhists) in honey, in which state they are exposed for the benefit of the faithful; after the lapse of a year or so the bodies are buried, and the honey, you will not believe me if I tell you, bottled, ay and with glass stoppers too, for export. Caution you readers against purchasing rich Burmah honey. Weather here delightfully cool, showers and sunshine every day, with a cold breeze at night; deaths are, I am sorry to say, on the increase, amongst children principally, from diarrhoea and dysentery.

THE CIVIL AND MILITARY AUTHORITIES IN BHOOTAN.—We have already referred to the official dissensions in Bhootan as having attracted the notice of Government. The particular occasion of the rebuke administered appears to have been a paragraph in a letter of Brigadier General Tytler, dated the 7th of May last, which, though not in the opinion of the Commander-in-Chief a very serious instance of the evil in question, is marked by a spirit of repartee which would have been better avoided in official writing. In a letter to the Commander-in-Chief, the Governor-General in Council remarks that he regrets to observe, in the Brigadier-General's dispatch, what he has often noticed in the previous correspondence from those employed in the operations on the Bhootan Frontier—namely, an unsatisfactory, and even captious, system of recrimination which subsists between the Civil and Military Authorities engaged. This imperfect co-operation the Governor-General in Council attributes to the omission of the Civil and Military Authorities to consult with each other on all questions before sending them up to higher authority, and from each side continuing to consider a question from his own point of view, without giving himself that opportunity of modifying or justifying his opinion which mutual explanation can alone afford. The Commander-in-Chief is requested to impress upon officers serving under his Excellency's orders, that, in all cases in which they may find it necessary to refer to higher authority, what they may consider erroneous action or shortcomings on the part of civil authorities or departments, they shall, at the same time, invariably show that they have, in good faith, followed the course above indicated. In forwarding the Governor-General's letter on this important subject the Commander-in-Chief remarks that every officer under military command must be content to await the judgment of his superiors, and to abstain from anything like contention, or counter-accusation, in correspondence with the parties concerned. All sharp writing, repartee, and sneerings, must be summarily checked; it being impressed on officers that their official letters are always liable to publication. His Excellency will visit any officer with his gravest displeasure who may not pay the most implicit attention to this order.

EDUCATION IN BURMAH.—The Rangoon Times gives an interesting account of the state of indigenous education among the Burmese. More of the males can read than even in England, but not ten per cent. of the females are instructed, knowledge in their case being considered a means of temptation to evil. Every boy between the age of twelve and fifteen is required by the tenets of the Buddhist faith to be dedicated to the service of Gaudama and to the study of his laws. On this requirement hinges the whole system of popular education in Burmah. For this purpose each is sent to a monastery, his head is shaved, and he is clothed in a yellow robe. By the time he enters the monastery, he is generally familiar with the Burmese alphabet, which he acquired during the time he was an attendant on some monk. If he does not learn regularly every day, the head poonghyee has authority to flog him, and he sometimes does that work very thoroughly. According to popular belief a female can never become a deity. She must wait and pass through a series of existencies; when her merits are sufficiently potent she will enter this world again and be born a man. Then the merits which afterwards accrue may procure for the dignity of a godship. She may become a Maitelah or nun and receive oral instruction, but no more. In every village of even twenty or thirty houses throughout Burmah the national school-house and the vernacular schoolmaster are to be found.

DISTURBANCE ON THE NORTH WEST FRONTIER.—LAHORE, July 12.—The following letter, just received from Attock, will be perused with interest:—"There has been a fight at a village called Charorai, belonging to the Amazaies. The cause of the fight was this: Syed Ameer had sought refuge among the Amazaies, from the hostility of his mortal enemy the Akhoond of Swat. The Akhoond exerted all his influence to induce the Amazaies to give up Syed Ameer, but without success; he then sent a force to range their territory. The force was a mixed one, being composed of Khodhails, Bonadies, men of Chumia, Mobarek, and Kliaiks; in all about two thousand men. The force was officered by some Khans and two Sheiks, who had received orders from the Akhoond to act. The force was concentrated at Nagrian. On arriving at this place, the Khans and Sheiks wrote to Khazadeh, Mobarek, Shah of Mulkah, to join them. He arrived at the camp the next day, but returned to Mulkah that night; he, however, despatched to camp bread, etc., for about four hundred men. The next day, however, he returned, having left his uncle, Syed Imram, commonly called Meer Sahib, in charge of Mulkah. On the following day about four hundred Khadakhails, under the command of Atan Khan, and Malik Jung of Chinghi, went out and burnt, without opposition, the villages of Phagbun, Charorai, and Khade Khan. Next day Mojeh Khan, of Charorai, came into camp for the purpose of negotiating. He declared that he had refused shelter to Syed Ameer, but that his people would not listen to them. The Sheiks of the Akhoond then ordered him to call out three times, 'Syed Ameer, the son of Syed Peer, is a kajir.' On his hesitating, they levelled their pistols at his head; and to save his life, he at last did as they required. He then returned to his people, and after much trouble succeeded in persuading them to turn out Syed Ameer. The Syed and his followers then retreated to Arub, where he still remains. The whole expedition then moved on Charorai, and began to burn and plunder. Five hundred of the men of Charorai, however, defended themselves bravely, and their efforts were made much more availing from the strong position they had taken up. Among the Sheiks of the invading force was one Shaik Jumal, of Keen Khan, a great favourite of the Akhoond's; he was very active in annoying the enemy, and placing himself at the head of the men of his own tribe, the Rhadakhails, he led them against a small body of the men of Charorai, who were defending themselves desperately; he assaulted them with such vigour, however, that they all fled, with the exception of one man named Kujkol, of Goudlah, in Maga Khail, who, waiting till the Sheik came close to him, discharged his pistol at him and shot him through the heart; then, after hacking the body with his sword, he fled, and made his escape before the Khadakhails could seize him. The death of Shaik Jumal caused a panic throughout the force, and the whole speedily took to flight, pursued for a short distance by the men of Charorai, who managed to kill six of them. The Khadakhails were the only real sufferers in this affair. It is generally supposed that the matter will not rest here; the Khadakhails are at this moment purchasing arms from the Judroons, and it is not to be supposed that the Akhoond will allow the death of his favourite to remain unavenged; and it is even rumoured that another expedition will shortly take place, commanded by the Akhoond in person."

RECIPES FOR AVOIDING JUNGLE-FEVER.—Many years ago, when Colonel Young was commanding in the Dhoon (Deyra), four officers, with the Colonel, went to fish on the Jumna, in June, the consequences of which were most disastrous. Two of the young men died of jungle-fever; one was sent to England; and the fourth, after a severe struggle, triumphed over the sickness; but the Colonel did not suffer in the least. On being asked how he escaped, he swore, by the powers, that he was too old a bird to be caught, for, as soon as he returned from the fishing expedition, he swallowed twenty grains of calomel. "But, Colonel," said one of the unlucky men who escaped, "why did you not warn us, and tell us to do likewise?" "Ach!" he replied, "I forgot all about it." This, in a fine Irish brogue, sounded not a little ludicrous, though unpleasant to the sufferers. Colonel Sarel, late Military Secretary, who has just gone home from the Bengal Dooars of Bhootan, has acted very differently. He and two officers went, not long ago, on a shooting and hunting expedition in the Dooars, and found plenty of game, though not a single tiger. After being exposed to the inclemency of the weather, and the influence of malaria, through the months of March, April, and May, the whole party escaped fevers; and they believe this to be owing to the precautionary measures they took, though not like Colonel Young's twenty grains of calomel, nor, like him, has Colonel Sarel kept his secret. The following is an extract from a letter on the subject, written by Colonel Sarel, in June last:—"I fear there will be much sickness in all the lower stations in the Dooars. The water is so bad, almost every one has been down with the fever, and it was predicted we should suffer also; but we and our servants had a glass of rum every morning, and four grains of quinine every evening, and we got through, at a very unhealthy time of the year, with a good deal of rum, and without any sickness. I think this would be an excellent plan for the troops stationed there to adopt." Here is a successful experiment worth repeating.

CABOOL, June 22.—The mother of the late Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan has suffered much by the heavy loss she has sustained in the death of her son. Sirdar Wully Moham-Khar, the Governor, waited on her this morning to condole and sympathise with her; he remained till noon. The Kolistanes and their Khans have become very bold; numbers waited on the Governor to-day and demanded their arrears of allowances. The following information relating to Toorkistan has been given by a merchant just arrived from that place:—"The King of Bookhara is at Summurkund; four agents arrived there from the Russian camp, and welcomed him by making over to him the city of Kokan. He has complied with the request of the Russians in allowing them to establish a Russian cantonment in Summurkund; Russian agents are arranging to lay it out. The Russian troops are encamped at Tashkund and Kashghur; their leader has requested the King of Bookhara to discontinue the custom of buying and selling men and women in his territory. The king, it is said, has promised to discountenance slavery in his kingdom. The rumour of Sirdar Mohamed Allee Khan's death had reached Toorkistan as he was leaving that place, but not the account of the battle in which the Sirdar had been killed."—June 23.—The following news-letter from the Ameer's camp was received by the Governor:—"Sirdar Khooshdil Khan, and the son of Ghoolam Mohamed Khan Mookhtear, have gone to Candahar to have matters settled between the Ameer and Sirdar Mohamed Shurreef Khan, and it is very likely that the Ameer will obtain possession of Candahar without any further bloodshed. The only terms proposed by Sirdar Mohamed Shurreef Khan is that Sirdars Mohamed Uzul Khan and Shahnaz Khan should be liberated."—June 29.—Auleejah Sufdur Allee Khan, with fifty sowars, arrived in Cabool to-day and went to Sirdar Wully Mohamed Khan to pay his respects. The battalions of Sufdur Allee Khan will march into Cabool to-morrow morning. We hear from Sufdur Allee Khan that the Ameer, accompanied by some of his troops, was to leave Candahar for Herat after 13th Suffer (7th July). Sufdur Allee Khan desired Sooltan Mohamed Khan to collect as much money as he could to pay the bankers and merchants in part liquidation of their claims.—Delhi Gazette, July 13.

CERTAIN CHANGES IN THE MEDICAL SERVICE OF THE EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY have lately taken place. Dr. Macnamara, the Consulting Physician to the Company, has been appointed to the medical charge of the Sealdah Station, in the place of Dr. Cowan, resigned. Dr. Hall has been posted to Barrackpore, and to the Local Dispensary. Dr. Grant is to remain at Koosteah as before, and a native sub-assistant surgeon is to continue to afford medical relief to the subordinate officers of the company, at the Sealdah Terminus as heretofore.

BAREILLY, July 8.—The European Regiment stationed here have lost about eight non-commissioned officers and men during the last three weeks or so, nearly all from what is now called heat-apoplexy, which is generally understood to be the work alone of the Indian sun, though if a few home questions were put and honestly answered it would be established as a fact that the heat in question was by no means altogether external or atmospherical; but that the fuel poured in, in the disguised form of rum and arrack, was as much the cause as the more apparent source. Of course it is natural and amiable to shrink from applying any such questions to individual cases, but yet in a general way surely the matter should be laid bare, if it be but to undermine that most pernicious system of dram drinking universal, or nearly so, throughout our Indian army.—Delhi Gazette.

GAY DOINGS AT ULWUR.—It is reported on good authority that the Maharajah, while walking through a fair held at Rajgurni the other day, came upon a large concourse of women, and being in a lively mood, ordered his attendants to seize the fair creatures and carry them off. The order was executed, to the dismay and consternation of the women and the general disgust of those of the male bystanders who were in any way connected with them. Some of these bystanders had even the temerity to remonstrate with his Highness against this treatment of their female relatives, but the remonstrance only incensed the noble chieftain, who ordered his guards to fall upon the rebels who dared to question his authority, and it is reported that in the onslaught that ensued two men were killed outright, while others were more or less hurt.

A JUDICIOUS ORDER.—The Englishman says:—We are glad to see that Government has at length come to the conclusion that it is necessary to support the credit of the dominant race in India. One order has already been issued, that convict soldiers are not to appear before the natives in their old uniform; and another order has just been passed, that European soldiers are never to be marched under a native guard, if it can possibly be avoided.

ABOLITION OF THE ALLAHABAD HOSPITAL.—The Allahabad General Hospital has been abolished. For the duties of the garrison and station of Allahabad for the future the medical staff will consist of one garrison-surgeon, one assistant-surgeon on pay and allowances of rank, or former rate of pay and allowances and staff salary pending the revision of the medical staff salaries.

THE CASE OF MR. BUCKLAND, THE SOLICITOR.—We hear that Purnoo Chunder Mukerjee, an attorney of the High Court, has been called upon, by a rule nisi, to explain certain matters concerning the action he took in the case which resulted in the trial and condemnation of Mr. Buckland some few years ago.—Englishman.

EMEUTE OF ARTIFICERS.—Eighteen of twenty-five artificers recently in custody on a charge of assisting at an 'emeute have been released by order of the Commander-in-Chief. In the case of two others no decision has been arrived at, the remaining five were to be brought this morning before a General Court-martial on the following charge:—For having at Madras between the 1st and 12th of May, 1865, begun a mutiny in the Carnatic Ordnance Artificer Company, by attending unlawful meetings held at night in the People's Park by one Kelly, a trader, for the purpose of combining with others of the said Company to claim from the Government certain privileges granted to European soldiers, or their discharge from its service; and then allowing the said Kelly to bind each with an oath not to divulge anything that passed, and in pursuance thereof having on the last named date combined to resist military authority by refusing to attend the usual morning parade, and when taken before Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas Hay Campbell, Superintendent Gun Carriage Manufactory, their Commanding Officer, and ordered by him to proceed to the workshop and to commence work, mutinously refused to obey his lawful command; saying, "We will not go to our work till we have seen the General Commanding the Division," or words to that effect, the above being in breach of the Articles of War.

BOMBAY.

THE MONETARY CONDITION OF BOMBAY.

We are told that "India talks of nothing but Bombay," so it is quite proper that Bombay should talk about itself. The talk alluded to refers to the very important question of how much money has Bombay had given to it, and what has been done with the large sum which, whatever be the exact amount, all the world knows we have received? A Calcutta contemporary has been endeavouring to reckon up our debit and credit account with the civilised world,—mainly, of course, with England, and the calculation is principally based upon cotton exports and bullion imports. On the face of things, it might seem one of the most simple problems ever presented in this age of statistics. Having, however, made several essays towards taking stock on behalf of Bombay, we can appreciate the proper modesty of our contemporary when he confesses that "it is with no little hesitation he attempts to answer the question." Let the ascertainable facts be gathered as faithfully as may be, there will still be a wide margin of uncertainty; and, as the Calcutta writer says, "We must necessarily deal in round numbers and somewhat vague statements." It may be said—what, then, is the use of presenting an estimate which must necessarily be incomplete? We answer, that though not full, it need not therefore be incorrect; and such a general review is always of service as affording clay and straw from which each reader may make bricks for himself. Some facts are sure to be brought forward in respect of which general agreement is certain, besides others to which the majority of readers assent; and in this way a current opinion is gradually formed which serves to mould practical efforts when the occasion arises. Every one is just now ready to admit that great commercial mistakes have been made in Bombay, and in such a mood, especially during the comparative leisure of the monsoon, we are all more likely to take a sober estimate of the means at the disposal of the community. The Friend of India, in its not unkindly comments on our affairs, affords us excuse for going over ground which we have several times travelled before.

The writer in the article before us remarks that "a community may safely devote to speculation only such an amount of cash as it has made over and above the demands of ordinary and legitimate trade." Now this proposition must be framed somewhat loosely; for the word "cash" we beg to substitute—capital, and for the word "demands" let us say profits. This latter alteration is more needful, for the writer's argument appears to be—that had Bombay planned only for the outlay of her "surplus profits," we should to-day all of us have been prosperous setts, without any "lame ducks in this island." There is the word "speculation" also which is rather ambiguous in this context. Individuals are at perfect liberty to squander their cash to their heart's content, and none beyond their own circle will feel it; but should a community invest its accumulating capital in undertakings which, at the best, are very slowly reproductive, and in financial schemes which are expedients for squandering, and not for utilising money, then the said community is sure to miss the substantial advantages which its surplus profits were intended to provide. It does not much mitigate the sense of loss of the capital which has been misspent if, as in our case, it has been gained from an exceptional and unexpected source. Extraordinary profits are generally accompanied by unusual necessities. It was so in Australia when a large community was drawn together before the roughest essentials of civilized life could be provided. And has it not been so in Bombay and Western India? After all our dazzling imports of bullion, what have we got that we really needed? Main drainage and a good system of municipal conservancy we ought to have had at least four years ago. With a magnificent foreign trade growing up we needed docks for one-thousand-ton ships; and all railways within or near the island should have had quadruple lines, with huge sheds for the expanding goods traffic, and waiting rooms fit for decent people. It may be said that these matters concerned the railway directors and the Government, and that is so far true as makes it fair to say there has been neglect on the part of those functionaries. But are there not hundreds of people to-day who wish they had bought railway shares and been content with a modest, but real, five per cent., instead of grasping at the shadow of twenty, amidst such absurd schemes as the Frere Land or the National and other Financials? Had residents and natives of Bombay become large holders of G.I.P. and B.B. Railway stock, those lines would have been improved much more vigorously than they are likely to be now. There was not only scope but pressing need in Bombay for a new and strong exchange bank, to compete fairly with the older establishments, that are directed from London by men very imperfectly acquainted with the financial circumstances of this country. Yet it would be difficult now to point to any such bank; and as to the history of the Bank of Bombay under the care of our local celebrities during these extraordinary times, why the less said the better. We may refer, also, to the want most pressing felt by Europeans, that of house and hotel accommodation; and have again to confess that the opportunity has passed by, and the work has yet to be begun. There were some bold promises made in this regard, when too late in the day, and, perhaps, the Government were in this matter too cautious, where they should have even anticipated the need; but so it is, and good houses are dear even when everything else is cheap. Had all these needful undertakings been in a fair way to completion before our "surplus profits" had been absorbed, there were still far safer methods of investing it than those which became the fashion. Had a few millions been expended in agricultural and other industrial enterprises in the Mofussil, Bombay would even now have drawn from thence better returns than ever can be obtained from half the reclamation projects, and nine-tenths of the nebulous monetary schemes which are now waiting extinguishment. Now, when there is a prospect of the ground being again clear, it is worth while to sum up what we have received during the last few years, in order that we may judge how much of it there is left to work upon.

We have not, certainly, the slightest wish to see again in Bombay even a mild recurrence of the feverish desire of getting rich too fast. There is yet no danger of that. The patient still suffers from relapse; and amidst the dismay and distrust yet prevailing, it must be of service to refer to the good grounds there are for thinking that Bombay, so far from being ruined, has somewhere a good capital on which to start the world afresh.—Times of India, July 10.

MESS FUNDS.—We publish below a valuable opinion received from a gentleman of the Inner Temple by last mail on the subject of the audacious spoliation of the mess property of the officers lately transferred to the newfangled "cadres." Our military readers scarcely require this confirmation of Mr. Anstey's opinion (whose revision, it is generally understood, Major Grant's letters received before transmission to Government) on this subject, but we believe it will be interesting. How much is it to be regretted that an enlightened statesman like Sir Bartle Frere permitted his Government to be dragged into this unfortunate piece of wrong-doing, as if at the heels of the Horse Guards!—"Had Major Grant been acquainted with the late changes that have taken place in the law here, he might have quoted as an illustration of his position the course pursued in the abolition of the College of Advocates, and their amalgamation with the body of Barristers. And this illustration would have been all the more forcible as having reference to the proceedings of a legal society familiar with law and equity, and by whom, therefore, the principles of law and equity would, as a matter of course, be strictly followed. When the Court of Probate and Matrimonial Causes was established, under Sir Cresswell Cresswell, the abolition of the College of Advocates in England took place, and they were amalgamated with the body of Barristers. The latter were made eligible to plead in causes which the advocates had previously had to themselves; and the advocates had opened to them all the courts previously only opened to barristers. Well, this being so, there being as complete an end to them as to the 3rd Native Infantry, what was done with all their property, amounting to thousands of pounds, real as well as chattel, at Doctors' Commons?

Why, it became the absolute property of the doctors existing at the time of the abolition of the institution, and the lands and houses and library and plate and property of all kinds were sold, and the proceeds divided among them, precisely as Major Grant claimed to have done with the property of his old regiment. Yet the nucleus of that property had been the gift of the State, and to it in one shape or other the State had contributed largely; and so had generations upon generations of bygone doctors, none of whom had any greater title than the officers had to withdraw anything on death or retirement. But when the institution itself fell, and the necessity of maintaining it had ceased, the property fell, as a matter of course, and that absolutely, to the only people lawfully entitled, namely, the existing members. The same principle was declared law in the case of Lord Clive's fund, where the object of it having ceased, the fund returned to the existing representatives of the donor. That Major Grant is right, and Sir Wm. Mansfield wrong, is as clear as daylight."—Times of India.

RIGHT OF PRECEDENCE.—In the High Court, on the 15th inst., Mr. Justice Hore, in asking the members of the bar if they had any motions to make to the Court, began by asking the Acting-Advocate-General, who said he had none to make. His Lordship then asked Mr. Anstey, who rose and replied that he did not answer when not called upon, and his Lordship then again resumed his seat. His Lordship was at first nonplussed for the moment, and then comprehended the mistake he had committed. Mr. Anstey again rose and said that Mr. White was not Advocate-General, but only Acting-Advocate-General. His Lordship begged Mr. Anstey's pardon, and said he would overrule the mistake he had committed, and hold the question he had put to Mr. White as not put. He then asked Mr. Anstey if he had any motion to make, and Mr. Anstey then rose and brought a motion forward before the Court.

INDIAN FINANCE.—There is amongst English politicians so settled an impression of the dilapidated state of Indian finance that even experienced men amongst them are apt to fall in with it. Mr. Massey, we believe, was not exempt from the influence of this traditional opinion, and certainly, in connection with his arrival in India, there were many circumstances to confirm his unfavourable view of our affairs. It is, therefore, gratifying when we learn that Mr. Massey has felt relieved, we may almost say agreeably surprised, with the result of his own examination into Indian finance. Probably this encouraging view of things, together with his sojourn at Simla, may aid in restoring him to physical vigour. We have reason to believe that he already sees ground for hope that the next financial statement will be a favourable one. This may serve to bear out the surmises of our Bengal contemporaries, to the effect that no supplementary budget will be introduced. It seems, probable, however, that Mr. Massey will re-introduce a levy on incomes of some kind. This may be needful, but if a succession duty could also be included in the general scheme of Imperial taxation, the income-tax would never need to be brought so low in scale, or rated so heavily as to be felt as a burden.—Gazette.

SKIRMISH WITH A SLAVER.—The following extract of a letter has been handed to the Times of India:—"H.M.'s ship Wasp had an encounter with a slave dhow near Zanzibar about the middle of May last. Her pinnace and cutter were sent under charge of the second and third Lieutenants, Messrs. Rising and Theobalds, to intercept the dhow coming out of the harbour. It was blowing rather hard at the time, and when the cutter attempted to board, she up with her helm and tried to run her down; the cutter was caught under the bows but not swamped. The officer and crew boarded immediately, the pinnace coming up almost at the same time. There was a smart fight, and the dhow was taken. The Wasp's boats had one man killed, four seriously wounded, and both the lieutenants above-named wounded. Lieutenant Rising is said to have taken a very active and gallant part in the fray; he had his sword smashed, and was badly wounded in three places—he lost three fingers of one hand, had a sword cut that penetrated to the spine, and a spear wound in the leg. Lieut. Theobald received a bad wound from a spear in the wrist, but they are happily both in a fair way to recover."

DEATH OF NEWAB ALLI REZA KHAN.—The Delhi Gazette says:—"In Lahore the extreme heat has found among its victims one of the greatest men of note in the place. Newab Alli Reza Khan, the noble guardian of lives and liberties of the Cabool prisoners in 1842, expired a week ago, at the advanced age of eighty years. This noble old man saved the lives of the Lawrence and of many others, and for his fealty and humanity forfeited his property and his country. He was an honorary magistrate of the city, and held a large jaghir from the Government in token of his invaluable service. His hospitalities, however, to all Cabool travellers and acquaintances were too profuse to allow of his accumulating much money. His family is very large."

COLONEL CRAWLEY AGAIN.—The Sindian says:—"We have received a private letter from Mhow complaining that Colonel Crawley has ordered that no one in civilian's clothes shall enter the Sergeants' mess of the Inniskilling Dragoons. From our own experience of the service we know that commanding officers of corps have invariably been happy to promote good feeling between their men and the residents of the station they were in. But Colonel Crawley is evidently of another opinion. Is it possible that he is afraid of out-siders knowing too much of the interior economy of the regiment which has the misfortune to be under his command?"

DHAR PRIZE MONEY.—The Governor in Council is pleased to authorise the immediate distribution of the second and final payment of Dhar prize money at Rs. 25 per share. Claims thereto will be accordingly preferred on the Examiner Prize Accounts, in the same manner, and under the same conditions, as prescribed for the first payment under G.G.O. No. 183, of the 30th March, 1863.

REORGANISATION OF THE AUDIT AND ACCOUNT DEPARTMENT, C.S.

Financial Department.—No. 1,205.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Financial Department, Simla, under date July 5, 1865.

Read again the Financial Resolution No. 2,189, dated April 20, 1865, directing the introduction into the Civil Department of a system of Audit and Account on the model of the English system.

Resolution.—The Governor General in Council observes that the amalgamation of the offices of the Deputy Auditor and Accountant General and the Civil Paymaster was approved in para. 31 of the resolution dated April 20, 1865.

2. As a first step, the office establishments of those functionaries will be amalgamated as they stand, reductions being effected immediately of such clerks and servants as, in the opinion of the Deputy Auditor and Accountant General, may have become palpably superfluous, the general revision of the office being deferred till there shall have been sufficient experience of the requirements of the new system. Such further modifications, however, as may be absolutely necessary may be made provisionally by the Deputy Auditor and Accountant General, with a careful regard to the saving which ought ultimately to accrue from the amalgamation of the two office establishments, and subject to immediate report to the Government of India.

3. The arrangements which may be made for a proper post audit, and for reports to the local Governments on claims to pension and on applications for leave, &c., can also in many cases be adapted so as to admit of the pre-examination of claims payable at stations where there are accountants general, on the plan recommended by the English commissioners of inquiry into Indian accounts.

4. At Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay respectively, an examiner of claims has however been specially allowed; but until further experience of the new system, a similar appointment will not be allowed for any other province or administration. When the several examiners are not employed on the work appertaining more immediately to their appointments, their services will be available for such other additional duties as may be assigned to them by the accountant-general.

5. In paras. 386-87 of the Report on Civil Accounts, the commissioners urged the necessity for providing an efficient deputy to each deputy auditor and accountant general, if the present defective control over treasuries and over the internal working of the local account offices is to be remedied. The expediency of utilising for this object the officers now serving as civil paymasters was suggested by the commissioners. The Governor-general in Council approves of the recommendation, and is pleased to decide, accordingly, that for the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, and for Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab, there shall be allowed, without any increase of emoluments, an accountant general and a deputy accountant general, in place of the present deputy auditor and accountant general and civil paymaster. In the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab the duties which in Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay are allotted to examiners of claims, will be performed by the deputy auditor and accountant general, in addition to any other which may be assigned to him by the accountant general.

6. An accountant general without a deputy will be retained, within the present scale of charge, for British Burmah; and the existing provision of a deputy accountant general for Hyderabad and the assigned districts, and for the Central Provinces, will continue.

7. Considerable embarrassment has been experienced in the posting of the officers of account to presidencies and provinces from the circumstance that, whereas they are on a general list for employment in any part of India, the position of an accountant general or deputy accountant general in the classified list of the department is dependent in many cases on the locality in which he serves. This consistency will now be removed by making salaries personal and not local.

8. By the financial resolutions No. 84, dated May 13, 1862, and No. 69, dated Aug. 29, 1862, the officers in the financial department below the financial secretary, and in the civil departments of audit and account were formed into classes in a department under the Government of India, with the same scale of pay in each class for covenanted officers appointed to the department after May 13, 1862, and for uncovenanted officers. No alteration in this arrangement will be made.

9. For the covenanted officers who were in the department on May 13, 1862, certain higher salaries were retained in the first three classes, in order to preserve to them the prospects on the faith of which they entered the department.

10. In this way, and from the effects of certain minor modifications of a later date, the sanctioned scale of charge for officers in the departments of account and audit, as originally constituted by the resolution of May 13, 1862, was as follows, viz.:—

Class I.—5 Officers.

Ordinary salary in the class, Rs. 1,500 monthly,—rising by Rs. 100 a month, after each year of service in the class, to a maximum of Rs. 2,000 monthly.

Exceptional.—Of the five ordinary salaries in the class, four are in abeyance by the payment of the following in lieu, viz.:—

2 on Rs. 3,000 monthly.
2 on Rs. 2,500 ditto.

These are held by covenanted officers already in the class, and they will be retained for other covenanted officers who were in the dept. May 13, 1862, and who may succeed to any one of these four exceptional salaries.

Class II.—7 Officers.

Ordinary salary Rs. 1,000 a month, rising to Rs. 1,500 monthly, by an increase of Rs. 75 a month, after each year of service in the class.

Exceptional.—Of the seven ordinary salaries, five are in abeyance by the payment of the following in lieu, viz.:—

1 on Rs. 2,500 monthly.
2 on Rs. 2,000 monthly.
2 on Rs. 1,500 monthly.

These are held by covenanted officers already in the class, and they will be retained for their benefit and for that of the only covenanted officer in the third class who entered the dept. before May 13, 1862, and who severally may succeed to any of these five exceptional salaries.

Class III.—5 Officers.

Ordinary salary, Rs. 800 a month, rising by an annual increase of Rs. 50 a month, after each year of service in the class, to a maximum of Rs. 1,000 a month.

Exceptional.—Of the five ordinary salaries, one has been in abeyance hitherto by the payment in lieu of a salary of Rs. 1,425, rising from May 1, 1865, to Rs. 1,500 monthly. This will now be in abeyance by the temporary promotion of the covenanted officer who held it to a higher class.

Class IV.—11 Officers.

Ordinary salary, Rs. 600 a month, rising to Rs. 800 by an increase of Rs. 50 monthly, after each year's service in the class.

Class V.—24 Officers.

Salary, Rs. 400 a month, rising to Rs. 600 by an increase of Rs. 50 a month, after each year's service in the class.

11. H.E. in Council is pleased further to rule that the posting of an officer to any province will not confer a title to any higher salary than that of the class from which the officer is taken, unless the appointment is accompanied by promotion to a higher class, or by a nomination to act in a higher class.

12. With regard to the undermentioned appointments wherever they exist, the designations of the local officers of account and audit will be hereafter as follows:—

- 1—Accountant general of the local Govt. or administration.
- 2—Deputy accountant general.
- 3—First assistant to accountant general.
- 4—Second assistant to accountant general.
- 5—Examiner of claims.

13. All other officers, whether belonging to the late civil paymaster's offices or the offices of the deputy auditor and accountant general, will be entered as assistants in the offices of the accountants general to which they are attached. They will be borne in the proper order of precedence or seniority on the classified list, if belonging to that list, or on the rolls of the establishment of which they form a part.

14. In accordance with the terms of this resolution, and having regard to existing vacancies and to the special rules of the department which allow covenanted officers on furlough to retain a lien on their appointments in the department while their salaries are available for officers in actual employment in the department, the Governor-general in Council has determined on the following disposition of the several accountants general, deputy accountants general, and other classified officers employed in the account department in the several presidencies and administrations:—

COURSE OF STUDY OF YOUNG OFFICERS OF THE ROYAL ARTILLERY.

July 6.—No. 668.—The following mily. letter from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India, No. 176 of May 25, is published for general information:—

Military.—No. 176.

India Office, London, May 25.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. of India in Council.

Sir,—I have received and considered in Council your military letter No. 88, dated Feb. 21, forwarding correspondence relative to a proposal submitted by the inspector general of ordnance and magazines, that officers of the royal artillery in India should be encouraged to qualify themselves for appointments in the ordnance department and manufacturing establishments, by undergoing the course of study and training laid down in G.O. to the royal arty., No. 492, dated Horse Guards, Nov. 2, 1863.

* Mr. Chapman, absent on furlough, has a lien on this appointment on a salary of Rs. 2,000.

† Will draw Rs. 2,500 during Mr. Lodwick's absence on furlough.

2. Lieut. Garrett, 3rd class coms. of ordnance, has, it appears, submitted an application to proceed home for 2 years for the above purpose, declaring his readiness to forfeit Indian and staff allowances, provided he be permitted to resume his appt. on his return, and to reckon the period as service in India towards pension.

3. Your Govt. have not felt authorised to comply with this request, but you consider the benefit to the service which would result, if officers now in the ordnance dept. would go through the course of study in question, would be so great that you recommend that the request be granted; and, further, that permission be given to one officer in each grade of the commissaries of ordnance to be absent for the same purpose, if so many should apply for the indulgence, and if the insp. gen. of ordnance can in each case recommend the applicant as one who would be likely to derive from the course the full benefit which it is intended to afford.

4. I concur with your Govt. in considering it desirable that officers of artillery, either having or desiring to have employment in the ordnance department, should be encouraged to undergo the course of study to which you refer.

There are, however, a large number of artillery officers belonging to the Indian brigades of artillery always in this country; and I have been informed by H.R.H. the Field Marshal C. in C. that officers of brigades of artillery serving in India are eligible to compete for appointment to the advanced class of officers referred to in the above-mentioned general (artillery) order. Abundant opportunity is thus offered to the officers of those brigades to go through that course of study, and to qualify themselves for employment in the ordnance department in India.

All officers passing through the course, and receiving satisfactory testimonials at its termination, will be permitted to count as service for pension one-half of the time so employed; but I do not consider it necessary or expedient to sanction a departure from the established rules of the service in the case of officers actually holding staff appointments of this nature, by permitting them to retain the appointment during absence from India beyond the period allowed under existing regulations.

7. His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief has suggested to me, in reference to this subject, that the actual appointments to the ordnance and manufacturing departments, both in Europe and in India, should be open to the officers of the regiment generally whose brigades respectively are in those countries, and who may have qualified for such appointments by passing satisfactorily through this class, without reference to whether they belong to the old or the new brigades of artillery.

8. I have informed his Royal Highness that I fully concur in the opinion; but that, with respect to the appointments in India, it will be necessary the candidates pass the language or other test specially laid down for staff employment in that country.—I have, &c. (Signed) C. Wood.

No. 671.—References having been made as to whether vacancies in the rank of captain in regiments having subaltern officers on their establishments may be held available for subalterns of other regiments in preference to subalterns of the general lists, in the event of the former officers desiring to succeed to them; and also as to whether a lieutenant belonging to a regiment can claim to be transferred to another corps with a view to accelerated promotion, the questions have been submitted to the Right Hon. the Secy. of State, who has been pleased to decide that the officers of the general lists have a prior claim to vacancies amongst the captains of the regiments in which there may be no subalterns.

No. 672.—The foll. order, issued by the resident at Hyderabad, is confirmed:—

July 3.—No. 243.—Lieut. J. Browne, R.E., asst. engr., 2nd grade, and offic. asst. principal, Thomason College, Roorkie, is transf. from the N.W.P. to the public works dept. of the Punjab.

HEALTH OF THE ARMY.—For the fulfilment of the instructions for yearly reports on the sanitary condition of the army the senior medical officer of British troops at each station is requested to send the President of the Sanitary Commission on the last week of December a complete report of the sanitary condition of the European troops at the station during the preceding twelve months, stating the various sanitary improvements that have been either determined upon or carried out, and their results. The senior medical officer of native troops is to furnish a similar report on behalf of the latter.

THE MONSOON.—Notwithstanding the predictions of the weatherwise, there is a very general feeling abroad that we are to have a short fall of rain this monsoon. However premature this opinion may be, it is certain the rain keeps off at present with the most provoking obstinacy, and the heat is almost as great as before the rains set in. For the past twelve days nothing but a few showers have fallen, amounting to little more than an inch of rain.—Bombay Gazette.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, August 23, 1865.

ANGLO-INDIAN SOCIETY.

ANGLO-INDIAN society has not the best reputation in society at home—for the most part, we believe, because it has not met with its deserts at the hands of most writers who have professed to describe it. Occasional tourists, for want of experience, have told rather what they have heard than what they have seen; and Anglo-Indians themselves have done bad service by exhibiting a tendency to self-caricature. Travelers supposed to be bent on book-making have been too frequently supplied with a great deal of doubtful information, for the mere purpose of mystification. Novelists have exaggerated, as novelists are apt to do, for the sake of effect. And there have been besides most estimable persons whom prejudice has caused to mislead. Between one influence and another we believe Anglo-Indian society to have unjustly suffered in popular estimation at home, where it is still the custom, in impartial and ignorant quarters, to consider the majority of its members as at once dull and dissipated, punctilious and profligate, and given up to a state of manners in which viciousness is tempered by nothing better than frivolity.

Such an estimate of our countrymen in India, we need scarcely say, is entirely unsupported by facts. But negative testimony is difficult of proof; while a certain habit of open and personal speaking—which comes of a class state of society, and a familiar mode of life—has given some kind of colour to the popular impression. Still this at least is certain—that although scandals may be floating about in conversation, they are seldom of such importance as to be heard of in the courts of law; and it is an exception to the rule which has suggested these remarks.

We refer to the case of "Tulloch v. Waylen," a report of which was contained in our last number. Actions of this kind have been so rare of late years as to become the exceptions which prove the rule. For in India, be it remembered, there is no Divorce Court where "relief" can be obtained on the spot, while Indian cases in the Court at home bear no proportion to those relating to the general body of our countrymen. The contrary has indeed been asserted; but it is scarcely fair to include in the indictment against Indian society transgressions on the part of persons just arrived in the country, arising from home associations or ship-board flirtations, which are the origin of a great part of the divorce suits at Westminster in which India is concerned. If a couple of persons who ought only to be friends become lovers on their way to Boulogne, or fall into the objectionable relation during their sojourn in that "home of the stranger who's done something wrong"—we do not say, "How immoral Boulogne is!" We set the affair down to the account of our own country, knowing that much the same would have happened at Margate, that Brighton might not have been beyond the reproach, and that Scarborough cannot claim exemption from such a possibility. It is true that the conditions of life in India, as well as the confidence induced by a state of society still resembling—though less than it did—a great family party, give greater opportunities for persons viciously inclined than they would obtain in this country. Suppose Dr. Waylen, for instance, to have conceived an attachment for Mrs. Tulloch in a garrison town in England. There is no probability that he would have had the opportunity of accompanying her on a long journey, and staying in her society for weeks together at an hotel, with the permission of her husband—his own and the lady's honour being the only guarantee of propriety. But in India such an arrangement, though very far from being a matter of course, is not calculated to excite surprise; and in ordinary social intercourse there is a great deal more "cavaliery" of ladies about, by more or less intimate friends, than is the custom in this country. Apart, too, from the necessity for a voyage home, which separates most married couples at least once during their stay in India, there are occasional absences in the hills, considered necessary for the lady, and of which her lord cannot always partake. There is greater freedom, in fact, in many ways, on the part of both husband and wife, than among married persons in this country. But surely this fact, instead of being made a matter of reproach, should be a testimony in favour of Indian society; for with so many temptations a proportionate laxity of conduct might be expected from its members. But even were our countrymen in India naturally less respectable than our countrymen at home, there are peculiar checks in the former case which forbid exhibition of the failing. In India everybody leads a more or less public life. They can go nowhere where they are not known, or may not be known in four and twenty hours; and in their own homes, surrounded as they are by native servants, who make their most trifling proceedings common talk among themselves, any approach to secrecy is out of the question. Whatever is known about the lives of Anglo-Indians, therefore, of this we may be assured—that all is known—and this is a great deal to say of any society, in India or elsewhere.

The truth we believe to be that there is far more domestic happiness among the English in India than among the English anywhere else. Married people are for the most part far more united in that country than they would be in Europe, notwithstanding occasional separation; their pursuits and pleasures are far more in common; and not only do ladies devote themselves exemplarily to household direction, but men submit to routine domesticity with a patience which is very uncommon except in the East. Civilians are for the most part much occupied, and have little time even for lounging; while a popular idea that military men pass their lives in alternations of wild excitements at mess and miscellaneous love-making out of doors, a very short experience of Indian life proves to be a delusion. Of the two classes military men are perhaps the more domestic of the two; for they are less pre-occupied, and more fitted by their training to enter into the practical details of a household. Not, however, that they, as a rule, avoid mental occupation, as is evidenced by the many contributions to literature that proceed from their pens—some of them of the highest order. An Indian officer must be very much given up to the service or society, if he does not at least write an occasional article for a newspaper, and assist now and then at the ventilation of local questions. Some of the class, indeed, are so partial to literary labour, as to induce a remark once made made by the Times—that when an Indian officer once begins to write, it is difficult to make him leave off. Nor is it only the lighter minded members of the profession who contribute to periodicals. Outram, Lawrence, and Sleeman, are conspicuous examples to the contrary; and there are men left of equal standing, who bring their abilities to bear in the same direction. This consideration is, perhaps, a little apart from our subject, but we touched upon the point because it has been held that Indian "scandals" arise because Indians are wanting in mental resources—an idea as unfounded as the general supposition that the society in which they live is more productive of cases like that of "Tulloch v. Waylen" than is society at home.

THE PERSIAN TELEGRAPH.

"Gulabek, July 1, 1865.

"My Lord,—Capt. Smith, director of the Persian Telegraph, has addressed to me the enclosed report on the large number of telegraphic messages which are sent from England to India, via the Hague and Russia. They are received here in a hopeless state of mutilation, averaging three weeks or a month old.

"The effect of this will be to discredit the Indo-European line by Constantinople, Baghdad, Persia, or Bussorah, and the Persian Gulf; and the publication of Captain Smith's report, or of a notice to the same purport, might have the result of putting a stop to the evil.—I have, &c., "C. ALISON.

"The Right Hon. the Earl Russell, K.G., &c."

"Gulabek, near Teheran, July 1, 1865.

"Sir,—I have the honour to inform your Excellency that during the last fortnight a large number of telegraphic messages from England have reached the Teheran Office, via Russia, for transmission to India. Until yesterday they accumulated at the Russian-Persian frontier, and were sent thence, from time to time, to Teheran by post. They were always very old (averaging three weeks or a month) by the time they reached us. Without exception, they were full of errors, and the large majority were quite unintelligible.

"Yesterday the Persian authorities placed Morse instruments on the line to Russia, both here and at Tabreez, so that messages are now sent by post from the frontier to Tabreez, and thence to Teheran, by a telegraph worked by the Persians themselves. The result is what was to be expected. The messages arrive a little more quickly, perhaps, than before, but in even a worse state, as the Persians add their own share to the previous errors of the Russians.

"I have already telegraphed on the subject both to Bombay and England, but as messages still continue to pour in from Russia in the most hopeless state of mutilation, I have thought it necessary to draw your Excellency's attention to the subject. If matters are allowed to go on as at present, all confidence in the telegraphic communication between England and India will, not unnaturally, be lost.

"The English public should, I think, be distinctly informed that, for the present at least, the only line upon which any reliance can be placed is the Indo-European one, by Constantinople, Baghdad, Persia, or Bussorah, and the Persian Gulf.—I have, &c., (Signed) "R. M. SMITH, Captain R.E.,

Acting Director, Persian Telegraph.

"His Excellency Charles Alison, Esq., C.B., &c."

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.—AUG. 21. (Before Mr. Commissioner GOULBURN.)

RE COLONEL WAUGH.

This was a meeting for the purpose of considering the claims of certain creditors preparatory to a dividend being declared under the first bankruptcy of Colonel Waugh.

Mr. Hackwood appeared for the assignees; Mr. Munns for the official liquidator of the Eastern Banking Corporation; Mr. Plews and Mr. Durant for creditors seeking to prove.

Mr. Plews presented a proof on behalf of Mrs. Snow, a sister of the bankrupt, for £6,336, alleged to be due to her in respect of a number of Agra Bank shares, handed to the bankrupt and deposited by him with the Eastern Banking Corporation as security for advances made to him. Objection was made to the proof on the ground that the accounts upon which Colonel Waugh had passed his examination did not in any way refer to the transaction in respect of which the proof was sought to be made.

His Honour thought the proof was not supported by sufficient evidence, and adjourned the consideration of it for a week.

A proof was then tendered on behalf of a lady named Maxwell, an aunt of the bankrupt, for £2,730, balance of account for money lent between September, 1852, and the date of the bankruptcy in 1857.

The Commissioner expressed an opinion adverse to the claim, and it was withdrawn by consent. He hoped that the funds in Court would be divided as soon as the claim of Mrs. Snow had been disposed of.

Mr. Hackwood said that the dividend had been delayed in consequence of the claims which were now put forward.

Adjourned accordingly.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TRUTH STRANGER THAN FICTION.—A correspondent sends us the following interesting narrative, with the assurance that its accuracy may be relied on:—At the time the notorious Tippoo Sahib fell at the siege of Seringapatam, in 1799, there was in one of the English regiments engaged on the occasion a native of Bury St. Edmund's, who was supposed by his comrades to have been killed. His immediate relatives could gain no intelligence of him, further than that he was put down as among the missing, and that he was generally supposed to be dead. It appears, however, that he was mainly instrumental in saving the life of one of the ladies attached to the court of Tippoo Sahib, and that she, in gratitude to her preserver, induced him to fly with her into the interior of the country, where her father consented to the marriage of the gallant soldier with his daughter, on condition that he embraced the religion of the country. Our hero, it appears, thought he could not do better than embrace the new religion together with the young heiress, and it is said "they lived and loved together through many happy years." But death first cut down the father, and afterwards the daughter, leaving the once poor soldier enriched with the wealth of India. His relations, in the meantime, had frequently applied at the War-office, but always received the same answer—that he was missing, and supposed to be dead. At length the time came when he was called upon to depart this world, and, having no heirs direct or indirect, he made a will in favour of his eldest sister and her heirs male. This has recently been brought to light through a firm in London advertising for the next of kin of the missing soldier, and it appears the heir has turned up in a person who has been travelling in the counties of Suffolk and Cambridgeshire for some years as a book-hawker. It is said that it will be necessary for the claimant to proceed to India to substantiate his right to the property, and that an eminent firm has undertaken to furnish him with the means, upon condition that they receive one-fourth of the proceeds of the estates in question, the value of which is reported to be enormous, the property having laid in abeyance for a long period. Further particulars of this interesting case will probably be shortly published, but for certain reasons the name of the claimant is at present withheld.—Norfolk News.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 16th inst., at the Bank of England. The proportions allotted were, to Calcutta £169,300, to Madras nil, and to Bombay £97,000. The minimum price was as before, 1s. 10½d. on Calcutta and Madras, and 1s. 10¾d. on Bombay. Tenders on Calcutta at 1s. 11¾d. will receive about 30 per cent., and on Bombay at 1s. 11¾d. about 80 per cent., above these prices in full.

THE SUEZ CANAL.—ISMAILIA, AUG. 17.—The flood gates of the Suez Canal have been thrown open, and a vessel laden with coal passed direct from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea on the 15th inst. Intelligence of this event was telegraphed on the same day to the Emperor Napoleon at the Châlons Camp. His Majesty despatched a message in reply congratulating the company upon their success.

THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 21.—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steam-ship Ripon, Captain Weeks, with the heavy Calcutta and China Mails, has arrived. She brings in all 200 passengers, specie £153,694, also a general cargo, including 1,256 bales raw silk, value £80,000 sterling.

DELHI BANK CORPORATION.—The Committee of the Stock Exchange have ordered the shares of this bank to be marked in the daily list.

TELEGRAPH TO INDIA COMPANY.—An extraordinary general meeting of shareholders in the above company was held last week at the offices, Moorgate-street. Sir Macdonald Stephenson presided. The chairman said he believed the lessees were working the line satisfactorily. He believed that the day was not distant when the telegraphic communication with India, China, and Australia would be complete. The Atlantic experiments, whatever might be their immediate results, had at least established this fact that after careful sounding and with a cable four tons to the mile and not exceeding 500 miles in length, a telegraphic line was perfectly practicable. Dr. Beke, the eminent traveller, was about to proceed to Abyssinia, and his impression was that King Theodore would permit of a line at a port in the Red Sea, 200 miles from Aden, to Khartoum, on the Nile, which would join the pacha's line at Cairo. Speaking generally, he felt that the day was not far distant when telegraphic communication would be complete all over the world. The resolution declaring the dividend of five per cent. was put and agreed to.

LUCKNOW PRIZE MONEY.—A notice issued from the India-office, and dated August 17, states that prize rolls for the undermentioned corps of her Majesty's late Indian forces, on account of the second distribution of prize money for the capture of Lucknow in 1858, showing the names of those officers, non-commissioned officers, and soldiers, whose shares have not been paid in India, have been received, and that distribution of such shares will commence at the military department of the above office on the 21st instant, and will continue daily (Saturdays excepted) between the hours of eleven and three o'clock:—3rd Bengal European Fusiliers; 1st Troop, 1st Brigade, Bengal Horse Artillery; 2nd ditto, ditto; 2nd ditto, 3rd Brigade, ditto; 3rd ditto, ditto, ditto; Head-quarter, 3rd Brigade, ditto; 3rd Company, 1st Battalion, Bengal Artillery; 4th ditto, ditto; 2nd ditto, 3rd Battalion, ditto; 1st ditto, 5th Battalion, ditto; 3rd ditto, ditto, ditto; 4th ditto, ditto, ditto; 2nd ditto, 8th Battalion, ditto; detachments of Artillery Recruits; No. 1 Light Field Battery, Oude Irregular Force; No. 3 Light Field Battery, Oude Irregular Force; Siege Train Establishment; European Invalid Battalion.

TROOPS FOR INDIA.—Capt. William Congreve, major of brigade at Chatham, proceeded to Gravesend on Saturday, and inspected the embarkation of three batteries of the A brigade Royal Horse Artillery, consisting of A, B, and C. Twenty-six non-commissioned officers of the Royal Engineers also embarked, who have passed the required test of examination for their admission into Rourke College. They were nearly all sergeants and picked men of the corps. The troops have sailed for Calcutta in the screw steamer Hydaspes.

A PRIVATE telegram from Calcutta, dated Friday, 18th inst., mentions some little improvement in the market for manufactured goods, and that the prices for produce remain high.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.—A Calcutta paper says:—"We are glad to learn that a Circular has recently been addressed to officers commanding divisions, from Army Head-Quarters, calling for a return of all discharged soldiers, who, from whatever cause, are, it is believed, to be found at various stations of the army, and in much distress. Whatever the ultimate intention under this order may be, it is satisfactory to know that the case of these men is under consideration; and we hope that some means may be devised of finding suitable employment for them. There are numbers of men in Calcutta, who, under the inducement of obtaining remunerative employment, have elected to take their discharge in India, and thus forfeited all claim to a free passage at Government expense—a decision often bitterly regretted, when, from disappointment, or impaired health, many have found themselves destitute in Calcutta, with no hope of employment or relief. We trust that the town will shortly be relieved of a number of this class, of the justness of whose individual claims to assistance it is impossible to determine."

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.—

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown.—(See Times, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

the Blood, Affections of the Liver, Constitutional Debility, Attenuation of Body, as an Alternative Medicine at the Changes of the Seasons, and for freeing the system from the effects of Mercury.

In India and the Colonies it is extensively used to prevent taking complaints incidental to Tropical Climates, and as a renovator of the system after Sickness invaluable.

"A superior preparation, that may always be relied on."— Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.

"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical

with complete benefit and success."—J. Foett, F.R.C.S.

Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter pints. One pint is equal to eight pints of the ordinary preparations.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The public are cautioned against cheap preparations of Sarsaparilla, which, instead of being what they profess, are nothing but a decoction of common herbs, sweetened with molasses, and flavoured with American Winter Green. The genuine has "Thos. Wilkinson

on each bottle.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH-

ING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as efficacious, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vide Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

We have received our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 22nd of July, Madras to the 28th, and Ceylon to the 29th of the same month.

News was scarce, and newsmongers drooping. A little light in Bhootan served but to make political darkness visible. Since the departure of the previous mail, we are told, the rumours of peace had taken a definite shape. The Deb Rajah is said to have addressed letters in which he solicited the opening of negotiations, and offered certain specific terms. On receipt of this intelligence the Bengal Government authorised Colonel Bruce, who has succeeded Colonel Haughton, to negotiate upon the basis of the Foreign Secretary's letter of November last, warning him, however, to satisfy himself that the Central Government at Poonakha was able to compel its subjects and officers to respect any arrangement into which it might enter. Mr. Beadon at the same time forwarded a draft treaty for approval to Sir John Lawrence, and suggested that it would be as well to make one of the conditions of peace the return of all prisoners taken by either party during the war. The fear seems to be that Tongsoo Penlow will not prove obedient to the orders of the Durbar. But the dictator's influence, it is said, has been much shaken by the recent events, and his power lessened, or the Deb Rajah would never have been able to defy him in an open manner. Should the negotiations fall through, it is believed that the "vigorous operations" in prospect will be under the command of one of the bravest and best officers in India—General Showers.

The above particulars are principally on the authority of the Hurkaru. The Englishman does not mention peace as among the probabilities, and calculates upon a cold-weather campaign as the most desirable contingency.

The Friend of India describes the "sensation telegram" from Tiflis announcing the defeat of 50,000 Russians, under General Endokimoff, by 150,000 Khokanese, as evidently made up for the European market—a conclusion at which we have already arrived in this country. Probably, says the writer, the Russians experienced some slight check, which has been magnified by a writer of news at Tiflis to secure the sympathy of Europe and justify further advances. The Friend still maintains the soundness of its apprehension of Russian aggression, and is surprised at the sympathy expressed with her advances by the leading organs of opinion in this country. Russia's object, we are told, is to conquer all Asia south to the Himalayas, so that she may there annoy us by making a military diversion on our frontier in the event of an European war. "This," says the writer, "we have less reason to fear than the effect of her proximity, even in time of peace, on the Mussulmans and other discontented elements among our subjects. That is our fear, compared with which invasion and a military diversion are trifling. We know the effects of the Crimean War in precipitating the mutiny."

A project is on foot for the colonisation of the Island of Prepara, in the Bay of Bengal, which, besides affording many commercial advantages, will, it is said, make an excellent sanitarium for the people of Calcutta.

The Legislative Council had met at Simla, but had done little beyond formal business. The Englishman declares that certain reports of Mr. Massey's intentions are made without authority. It is thought, however, by the Indian Government, as already stated, that Sir Charles Wood will draw no more bills on India until a clear and good financial measure has been elaborated; and the policy of the Finance Minister will probably be something like that already indicated. So the correction does not amount to much.

Money is plentiful, and business dull, though the latter was improving. The favourable news from Bombay was considered, in a great measure, to have restored confidence, and an improved demand for accommodation was expected. The Bank of Bengal on the 20th of July had reduced its rates 1 per cent. all round, and its margin on loans on Government Securities 2 per cent. The position of the Bank was considered most creditable to the direction, and its shares had risen about four hundred rupees during the week. In other shares there was not much change, and tea and miscellaneous stocks remained dull, as before.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which may be expected at Marseilles on Saturday or Sunday next.

ARMY GRIEVANCES.

The legal precision and clearness of Lord Cranworth's opinion regarding the position and rights of the Indian Army, as guaranteed by Parliament, will recommend themselves to those only who place casuistry before common sense and justice. His Lordship holds that the promise to the officers of H.H.'s Indian Army that their position, pay, and privileges should in no wise be disturbed by their transfer to the Crown; that all these things would continue as though "they had remained in the service of the East India Company," simply meant nothing; for, it was nowhere determined that the late Company had not power to alter the pay and promotion of its servants, and whatever power the Company possessed must equally be conceded to the Imperial Government. As it was competent to the East India Directors to legislate for the better organisation of its armies, so is it in the case of the Queen. The late Company was not legally bound to continue unchanged its military regulations and rates of pay; the officers of the Indian Army possess no bonds to this effect from its former rulers, and cannot impose them upon the successor of those rulers. It is probable the East India Company would have permitted one-half its officers to be wronged and superseded, therefore H.M.'s Government is right in so doing, or, has the right to so do! There can be no doubt the Company would, some time in 1681, have so disorganised its forces as to leave the sepoys without officers to lead or care for them, and Lord Cranworth claims the same privilege for Sir Charles Wood! As the Company might lawfully have proved itself deficient in every principle of wise and honourable legislation; might have risked the loyalty of another army through the discontent of its officers, in order to effect a trifling pecuniary saving, therefore Parliament is justified in committing these acts of madness and folly! We demur to an implied possibility, without which the argument is altogether fallacious. Parliamentary guarantees upon such a supposition are an insult to Parliament. To confirm certain rights, real or imaginary, is to give them validity, and, subsequently, to make them contingent upon the ignorance and dishonesty of others is neither fair nor ingenuous. A certain position was ensured to the officers of the Indian service, not because the Company possessed the right to alter it, but to prevent its alteration by the Crown. But, it is argued, it is sheerly impossible that Government intended to convey the promise that no one individual should suffer by the reorganisation of the armies of Bengal, Bombay, and Madras. We cannot say what was intended; we deal with facts, the written promise of her Majesty. There is always a way of compensating for wrongs unavoidably done, and one for large public ends, but in the instance of the reorganisation of 1861 grievous wrong to one-half the officers of the Indian army was unaccompanied by a single counterbalancing gain. The difficulty is to compensate when so many are losers, for the aggregate cost to the State becomes as enormous as the benefit to the public has been trivial. A simpler, wiser, and more honest plan would be to recal the errors which have induced the present crisis, and rendered necessary the unprincipled reasoning of a law lord. Our experience in this country teaches us that but for the officers it was lately sought to force from the army the irregular principle introduced would have collapsed ere now and left our sepoys commanded by natives; and to offer considerable retiring bonuses to those gentlemen, without whose services the discipline of 120,000 soldiers cannot be maintained, appears neither economic nor wise.—Hurkaru.

LAND IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.

The Report of the Allahabad Board on the Revenue of the North-Western Provinces in the year ending September last, though issued eight months later than it ought to have been, is full of interest to those who care to know how the Rent Law and the rise of prices are affecting the people and influencing the value and the mutations of landed property.

It must be remembered that, however unjust the Rent Law of 1859 has proved to the landlords in the permanently settled province of Bengal, it has, to some extent, benefited them in the peasant-proprietary districts of the North-West. Its provisions for the limited enhancement of rent were in advance of those which had formerly prevailed there, though they were far behind the previous legislation in Bengal. Thus, in the North-West, the Act has tempted landlords to sue their tenants for enhancement, and so to take advantage of the rise of prices in a way they probably could not have done previous to 1859. There were 54,409 rent suits instituted during the year, or 9,059 more than in the previous year—an increase which is pronounced "remarkable." In some cases it was due to the conversion of rents in kind into money payments—always the proof of a growing civilisation: in others it was owing to the fact that the tehsildars were entrusted with such cases at the very doors, as it were, of the peasantry. Another cause assigned is the fact that the purchasers of estates confiscated for rebellion generally began their occupation by revising the rent-roll. But there can be little doubt that the reason assigned by the Commissioner of Agra is the correct one—the large proportion of suits, which were for ouster and enhancement, was due to "the extraordinary rise in the price of cotton and consequent increased value of land for its cultivation." We regret that there is no attempt in this otherwise intelligent report to show how far the increased litigation is due to the natural operation of Act X., and how far to the sale of escheated estates, and especially the rise of prices. This inquiry ought to be followed out, and the results given in the report for the current year, which will close in two months.

The second point of interest is, the changes in the proprietary holdings. They amounted to 34,588, or 2,291 more than the previous year, and consisted chiefly of mortgages, of which there were 23,714 cases. There were 5,472 private sales, 3,531 transfers ordered by the Courts, and 1,871 estates sold in execution of decrees. The sale of land is still fettered in the North-West, under the supposition that to maintain the old landlords is politically safe. But we are glad to believe the opinion is growing, that of the two evils—the destruction of the old families by new proprietors disliked by the people, and the evil consequences of necessarily ignorant officials interfering with the natural laws of society—the latter is the greater. And this is borne out by the facts in the report. Mr. Hume tells us that, in Etawah, sixteen of the private sales were to meet marriage expenses, and in twenty-eight the sale was merely the last step in a long course of mismanagement and extravagance. Ireland, and the beneficial results of its Encumbered Estates Commission, enable us to decide which is better—that the land should, for merely sentimental and feudal reasons, be burdened with a pauper proprietary, or that it should fall into the hands of men of capital and intelligence. And the new landlords are not the grasping oppressors which they are generally described as being. In Jounpore there were 54 new owners, of whom 33 only were strangers. So far from deliberate oppression being practised by them, they were forced to litigation by the fact that they had bought rebels' estates cultivated by a hostile population. The three chief purchasers did not make a single application to evict or enhance the rent of their tenants. Benares is a better example than any other. The collector's "statement" shows that considerably more than half the district has changed hands since it came under our rule. The bankers have made two-thirds of the purchases, the Maharajah and a few zemindars and lawyers have bought the other third. The new owners, we are told, work their estates far better than their spendthrift predecessors, while their tenants make much more out of the land, since the new master will confiscate their hereditary leases if they fail to pay their dues. The capitalists too break up waste land. Rai Sektaram and Choonee Lall are prominently mentioned as men who "never allow their land to be idle." As in Bengal, the hereditary tenant sublets his land and lives in idleness, without interference by the older encumbered landlords. But the new men always apply the law when they have an opportunity, and thus the land yields its full increase, and the country is benefited. There is no oppression, tenants are too valuable for that. The collector concludes—"As far as my experience goes, they are worse landlords than the new comers—a feudal feeling preventing a tenant from complaining against the original proprietor, whilst there is no such feeling as regards the new proprietors. On the contrary, the original proprietors, reduced to tenants, are generally found instigating the other tenants to complain against the new proprietors on the slightest provocation." These are weighty words. In the next district of Ghazee-pore, we are also told, "It would not appear that the new landlords have acted with unusual harshness towards their tenantry." Yet all the ninety-eight estates there sold were purchased either by native lawyers or money-lenders. It is satisfactory to know, on such authority, that the once undoubted political risk of allowing the old feudal proprietors to pass away is diminishing so fast, under the influence of the rise of prices, an enlightened self-interest, and general intelligence, as now to be almost a fiction.

There is a third evil which the facts of this report expose—that of facilitating the partition of estates into small holdings. The collector of Moozuffernuggur observes, "It is much to be regretted the law allows public partitions or 'Butwara' to be carried out to the smallest fractional share—so small indeed that one can hardly see it with a microscope." There is great fear of the revenue being endangered by this process. Other officers express the same opinion, and the board, though agreeing with them, "would not advocate any legal limitation of the existing right to claim separation, as any such limitation would be opposed to the broad principles of our legislation." Is "broad" used here ironically? It must be so, since past legislation has encouraged instead of checking such division. Our legislation will be justly pronounced "broad," when in a continent of petty holdings and ignorant peasant proprietors it facilitates the buying out of all interests but one in the same estate, as the Copyhold Enfranchisement Act of England does, and dares to leave the sale and the mutations of land in India to the educated self-interest of its subjects—dares to leave land at least as free as trade. The timid attempts made in this direction, by giving thirty years' leases, and promising a permanent settlement, encourage further progress. Even in the backward and rebellious district of Bareilly an average village fetches fourteen years' purchase, instead of eight, as before the mutiny. In Meerut the average is ten years' purchase. At this rate, and especially since the last interpretation of Act X., land in the provinces of the North-West ought to be soon as valuable as it has been for years in Bengal.—Friend of India.

WILD TRIBES IN THE NORTH-WEST.

Our savage neighbours across the Peshawar frontier are fighting among themselves as usual, and the following is an authentic account of an affair that took place at a village called Charorai, belonging to the Amazaies. The cause of the fight was:—Syud Ameer, the Kotah Moollah, had sought refuge and received protection from the Amazaies, who kept him at the above village. The Akhoon of Swat, the mortal enemy of Syud Ameer, tried all his influence to make the Amazaies turn the Kotah heretic out of their country, but these were true to their honour, and did not withdraw their protection from the Syud. The Akhoon then sent a force consisting, at a guess, of the following, to ravage the Amazaies' country, and make an end of the arch-heretic:—Khodokhails, 700 men; Bonairs, 700; men of Chunla, 300; Mobarak (?) Khails, 300; in all about 2,000 men. This force marched by different routes, and rendezvoused in the vicinity of two villages called Nagrian. The head quarters of the Khans, and the ten Sheikhs sent by the Akhoon to lead the army, were fixed there, and the force camped about in the surrounding villages. From Nagrian the Khans and Sheikhs wrote to Shajadah Mobarik Shah of Mulkah to join them; he arrived the next day, but returned to Mulkah in the evening. That night he sent bread for 300 or 400 men to Nagrian, which is about four kos from his village. Next day the Shajadah went over to Nagrian with Shah Mahomed, his relative, and all his men. Syud Imran, commonly called Meer Sahib, uncle of Mobarik Shah, was left behind to take care of Mulkah. The same day about 400 Khodokhails, led by Malik Fouz of Chingli, Azadai of Tatalio, and Alam Khan, went out and burnt, without resistance being offered, the villages of Phagbun, Khararai, and Khoder Khan. Next day arrived Moseh Khan of Charorai to see what could be done by negotiation. He said, "I did turn out the Syud Ameer, but he was brought back by Jubbar and Syud Jumal. I did all I could; but these two won't listen to reason." The fiery Sheikhs of the Akhoon then got round the Amazai Khan and asked him to say three times—"Syud Ameer, the son of Syud Peer, is a kafir, kafir, kafir." The Khan demurred a little; but the Sheikhs immediately drew their pistols: Moseh Khan at once said the hateful words, and saved his life. He was then allowed to return to his village to persuade his people to turn out the Syud; he succeeded after much trouble. Syud Ameer passed the night on the top of a hill; next day he went off with his family, and is now at Amb. Jubbar and Syud Jumal were sent for by the Khans and Sheikhs through the Shajadah, but would not come, as they are unwilling to call Syud Ameer a Kafir. The whole force then marched on Charorai, and Moseh Khan joined them. The hamlets and villages then began to be burnt, and some skirmishing took place. The Charorais had not above 500 to oppose the 2,000; but they resisted well, helped greatly by the situation of their village, which is surrounded by steep hills; and there was one Sheikh among the ten who was more than ordinarily bitter against the Kotah Syud, and was the soul of the expedition. This was Sheikh Jamal of Sleem Khan, in Khodokhail, in British territory. He was at the end of every party, and led in the most dangerous places. About seven Charorais took refuge in a Ziarat near the village, and resolved to die there; but the place was assaulted with such fury by the Sheikh Jamal and twenty-two Khodokhails that their courage vanished, and all, one excepted, took to their legs. This one, named Kojkol of Gondlah, in Magakhail, stood his ground, and, waiting till the Sheikh came within certain distance, fired. The ball entered the Sheikh's breast, and killed him on the spot; to make certain, Kojkol hacked at the body with his sword, and made off before the astonished Khodokhails could catch him. The Bonairs were spectators of this affair at no great distance, but showed no sympathy.

This fact led to the suspicion that they had been bribed. The death of Jamal and this suspicion caused a panic among the men of the force, who at once commenced a retreat. The Charorais seeing this followed, and killed six men. They did not follow far, as they had very few men; but the disgrace of the Khodokhails, &c., was complete. Mobarik Shah went off to Malkah, and was so afraid of being attacked that he sent down to the Jadoons for assistance, who promised to come when required; but there was no occasion, as the Charorais were only too glad with having beaten off their enemies so easily, and made no advance.

In reality the Khodokhails were the only people who were heart and hand in this affair, most probably the influence and example of their clansman Sheikh Jamal, who was one of the few chosen of the Akhoon. The Bonairs and Chamla men joined the expedition in respect to the orders of the Akhoon. This fight has not ended the affair. The Khodokhails are buying arms at this moment among the Jadoons; and the Akhoon will assuredly have revenge for the death of his favourite and trusted Sheikh. It is rumoured he himself will lead the next expedition.—Lahore Chronicle.

BHOOTAN.

A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette, writing from Dutma, in Bhootan, under date the 4th July, says:—

"Everything is very quiet in this part of the frontier; but we have been ordered to keep a sharp look-out, as it is reported that the Bhootas are now busy getting together a large force, with the object of attacking one or more of our advanced posts. At present we never see anything of them, and they certainly don't seem inclined to hold any sort of communication with us.

"Sickness, in the form of fever and dysentery, prevails to a very great extent here. More than half of the wing of the 44th Native Infantry stationed in Dutma is in hospital, and in the whole camp, including police, out of a strength of 350 men, there are not 100 fit for duty. Out of the four officers with the wing, two are laid up with fever. The squadron of the 14th Bengal Cavalry was withdrawn a few days ago, having been reported unfit for duty on account of the extent to which the men suffered from fever and dysentery. There were only twenty-five men out of hospital the day they left, and they were losing men at the rate of three and four a week by death. They have gone to Rungeea to join the headquarters of the regiment. I have no doubt that the whole regiment will be removed from this unhealthy district as soon as the rains are over. The wing of the 44th will not be fit for active service, should the Government determine on an advance into Bhootan next cold season, nor, by all accounts, will any of the regiments in the Doora. Now that Government has taken possession of these Doora I hope it is satisfied with them; it is more than we, whose lot it is to be stationed in them, are. We have been considerably more punished by their occupation than the Bhootas, who dread the climate of these plains very much. Since the end of May it has been raining constantly almost every day; the rivers are all swollen, and the temporary bridges and roads have been washed away, so that communication by land with the stations on the Berhampooter is extremely difficult and uncertain. The thatched barracks for the troops are now finished, and the men seem comfortably sheltered. The bungalows, or rather huts, for the officers are now being run up, and will soon be finished.

"Dutma is not by any means so pleasant a place as Buxa Doar, judging from the glowing description of the Englishman's correspondent at that place, where they revel in every enjoyment. Magnificent scenery, delicious climate, and all the amenities of social life, the society of ladies, music, balls, and champagne cooled, just fancy, with snow brought by the Armstrong Battery mules from an adjacent snow peak. How our mouths did water when we read his glowing account, and we all wished we were at Buxa in place of this pestilential hole. A large bare plain with half a dozen stunted trees, and a few mean villages on it, and an occasional glimpse of the Bhootan hills is all the scenery we get. The climate is horrible and relaxing, one lives in a vapour bath sort of atmosphere, and the damp plays the deuce with everything. Damp, dirt, and discomfort are the grand characteristics of Dutma. Our daily fare consists of moorghees (procured with difficulty) and the liberal Commissariat ration of rice, atta, dholl, ghee, and salt, served out to us in common with the jacks, and after partaking of which one feels an inclination to rub one's body over with oil and sit in the sun for a couple of hours every day. Our greatest want is the want of servants; we are very badly off for them; they generally bolt, and none can be induced to come here even for treble wages. The camp followers have suffered even more from sickness than the sepoys, and a great many have died, so that the poor creatures have reason to dread the place, and take every opportunity of deserting, leaving us to do every thing for ourselves. Our tuts fare very badly, and there is no one to look after them.

There is capital shooting to be had a few miles out of camp. Rhinoceros, buffaloes and several kinds of deer abound; their tracks are to be seen just outside the camp; but the grass jungle is so very high that it is impossible to see the game. It completely covers an elephant and a man on it; you might get into the midst of a whole herd of buffaloes without seeing one; besides, the plain, or prairie is intersected by innumerable nullahs filled with mud, which it is impossible to cross and sometimes to see. February, when the jungle is burnt, is the time to get at the large game. For small game there are lots of hares, florikan, kyah, and black partridge, jungle fowl, quail, golden plover, snipe, varieties of ducks, &c., &c."

SETTLEMENT OF THE PESHAWUR DISTRICT.

The following review of Major James' report on the settlement of the Peshawur district is of great interest:—

We have had before us some time a Report on the Settlement of the Peshawur District, by the late Major Hugh R. James, C.B., Commissioner and Superintendent of the Peshawur division. The title of this valuable Blue-book gives but a very inadequate idea of its contents, which consist not merely of an account of the settlement of the district, but a complete survey of its history and topography. As it would be quite impossible for us to give, in the limited space at our command, anything like a resume of either the narrative or descriptive portion of this work, which will well pay perusal in the original, we shall content ourselves with culling here and there an interesting fact or statement from its pages. Regarding the derivation of the name Peshawur, as of most cities of any antiquity in this and every other country, authorities widely differ. Some, accepting the present spelling and pronunciation as correct, derive it from a Persian combination supposed to signify an outpost or advanced position. Down to the end of the sixteenth century, however, Peshawur was called, as the Pathans still pronounce it, Purshor, which the Akhand interprets as "full of turbulence." Major James remarks, however, that the name is of too old a date to render his interpretation, or the Pathan pronunciation, of any value in the inquiry, further than as establishing the fact of the letter "r" being found in the first syllable. Major James prefers the Hindoo tradition, that supposes the city to have been called after a king, or family of Kings, named Purus, Purush, or Porus, meaning simply "the seat of Porus, as Lahore or Lahavur was the seat of Seh or Sah." Regarding the origin of the tribes seated about Peshawur, Major James thinks it a not improbable conjecture that they were the descendants of the race of Yadoo, who were expelled, or voluntarily emigrated, from Goojrat eleven hundred years before Christ, and who were, according to some, the ancestors of the Jadoons residing in the hills north of Eusufzai. The following episode in the history of the Peshawur district may not be uninteresting:—

"About twenty years after the death of Alexander, Seleucus, finding himself master of all the countries between the Euphrates and the Indus, endeavoured to recover those beyond the latter river, from which the Greeks had been expelled, B.C. 316, by Chandara Gupta (better known by us as Sandracotta), who had established himself in them. Seleucus passed the Indus with this object, B.C. 303, but made a treaty with his opponent, to whom he yielded the allegiance of all the provinces east of the Indus, together with the Peshawur and Cabool valleys, Chandra Gupta furnishing him in return with five hundred elephants."

The Afghans first acquired a footing in the Southern hills of Peshawur at the end of the seventh, or the beginning of the eighth century after Christ. It is well known that they trace their descent to the Israelites, through Afghana, son of Zaremlah, son of Saul, King of Israel. Although the tradition connected with this Israelitish origin is full of inconsistencies and fables, Major James is favourable to the tradition itself, a tradition which, he says, "pervades the nation, and which is supported by many peculiarities in their customs and institutions, which will be noticed in this report, and the reasonableness of which," he thinks, "a personal acquaintance with the people must tend to strengthen and confirm, opposed as it is to nothing which we know of the past history of that people, or are led to believe of their future; on what grounds, therefore, can we refuse to receive an account given by a nation of its own ancestry which is reasonable in itself, which we cannot disprove, and for which we can offer no more authentic substitute, no theory equally plausible?" Further on, he observes that the question is not capable of demonstrative proof, and must remain a matter of opinion. "Being myself," he says, "strongly impressed with the idea that they are, to some extent, of Israelitish origin, it is only fair to add that two very able philologists, Dr. Trumpp and the Rev. J. Lowenthal, to whose opinions much greater weight is likely to be attached than to mine, have inquired into the subject, and arrived at a contrary conclusion, chiefly from the circumstance of their language being radically distinct from the Hebrew. Herodotus, indeed, mentions a tribe of Indians called 'Pactues,' distinguished by their bravery, and employed in searching for gold, and calls their country Paktyica. This name is exactly that of the Pathan 'Pakhtoon'—and from consulting the several passages in which he alludes to them, I gather that their seat must have been about Kandahar and Cabool. The Greek name for their country also corresponds with that by which the Afghans speak of themselves collectively, viz., 'Pakhtunkha.' But admitting that Herodotus alluded to the ancestors of the Pathans, it does not follow that his description of them, as 'Indians,' is literally correct."—Delhi Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE RUSSIANS IN CENTRAL ASIA.—The following copy of a letter, with news from Khokan and Bokhara, has been placed at our disposal. It is only another proof of the vague and contradictory rumours which reach us from Central Asia. It is not long since we heard that the Russians had taken Khokan, and that a detachment, with guns, had actually reached Yarkund, on the confines of the Cashmere territory. Now, it appears, a Kipchak Tartar, or Mongol, is in possession of Khokan, and that the Khan of Bokhara has, with permission of certain Russian officers, proceeded against the said Kipchak, and taken the Government into his own hands. How Russian officers came to be possessed of so much influence at Bokhara is strange enough, but how they came to be there at all, wielding such a power as this letter represents, is strangest of all. The truth is, we place no confidence in these stories from Samarkand and Bokhara. "A letter from Badruddin Paracha, dated 1st Mohurram, 1282 A.H. (27th May, 1865), to Ibrahim Ali Paracha, shop-keeper, of Jalalabad, contained the following information:—"The Akskals (commercial consuls) and notables of Tashkand Khagang, Ardijan, and Ush (large commercial towns), in Khokand, became inimical to Mulla Alamkula Kipchaki, the Prime Minister of the Khokand ruler, with whom rested the management of all the affairs of the state, the son of Mallee Khan (Sultan Sayed Khan, who, the Khokan Envoy says, is about twenty years of age), the lawful heir to the throne, being a minor and, consequently, unfit to govern, Mulla Alamkul had become oppressive ever since the Russians restored the country to him. The Akskals and the people of those cities complained of his oppression to the Shah (king) of Bokhara, Muzuffar Shaw, and asked him to march with an army and take possession of the country (of Khokand). The King, who was intent on taking Khokand, was highly pleased with this offer, and, with the permission of the Russian officers in attendance at his durbar, marched with two thousand sowars and one thousand foot, and took possession of Khokand on the 25th Zilhij 1282 A. H. (21st May, 1865), placing Alamkul under strict confinement, and the son of Mallee Khan under surveillance. He (the King) has assigned a daily allowance of 50 tillas for (the latter's) maintenance, and also promised to restore to him his country (Khokand) on his coming of age, and qualifying himself for Government. Mir Haje Nazar Aishan, the Prime Minister, Mashir-i-Khas, of the Ghah, has been entrusted with the Government of Khokand. After having made these arrangements the king returned to Samarkand. He had two Russian guns brought from the Tashkand cantonments with him the day he entered Khokand. The Russian authorities were highly pleased at having placed the Shah under obligation. No fighting took place. Seven slaves (ghiclans) of Mulla Alamkul, who had attempted resistance, were hung up."—Englishman.

THE JUMNA BRIDGE.—The following report of the crossing of this bridge for the first time is taken from the Pioneer:—"The Jumna Bridge was tested for the first time on Saturday morning last, in the presence of Lieutenant-colonel Drummond, who attended on the part of Government; G. Sibley, Esq., chief engineer; and J. Collet, Esq., the engineer under whose immediate superintendence the bridge has latterly been constructed. Brigadier-general Rainier, Messrs. R. Money, C. B. Thornhill, G. P. Money, G. Ricketts, and other residents of Allahabad were also on the spot. After a preliminary testing trial of the short length of new embankment next to the south abutment a train consisting of two engines, a truck, and a break-van passed slowly over the bridge, and over the first length of viaduct on the north side, and then returned to the south side. Next, a train, consisting of a goods engine and ten loaded ballast waggons, the length of which covered something more than one span, was despatched from the south side at the rate of ten miles an hour. Its influence upon the first span of the girder was tested, and there was found to be a deflection vertically of eighty-three hundredths, and laterally of one-tenth of an inch. The train returned from the north side of the bridge, and was stopped on the girder, that the testing might be made as it remained stationary. The deflection and oscillation were found to be very nearly the same as before. The train was then again despatched from the south side, this time attaining a speed of about fifteen miles an hour, and the measurement of vertical deflection and lateral oscillation presented no perceptible difference of result. In order to carry out the testing, a staging was erected under the girder from below, in such a manner as to stand clear and be independent of the girder, and a diagram card on a board attached to the girder was arranged so as to meet the point of a pencil which was affixed to the staging. As the train passed over, the girder, yielding with the strain, acted on the pencil, and so caused the deflection to be registered—the amount of oscillation being ascertained by the degree of straightness with which the pencil passed over the diagram-card. The weather proved too unfavourable to allow of the testing being completed. It will, we hear, be resumed to-day, when the deflection of each individual span will be taken. On the whole, nothing could be more satisfactory than the results which have crowned the untiring efforts shown by all the engineers connected with this, the finest of our Indian bridges. We may remark that on the present occasion a high degree of speed could not be attained, owing to the unfinished state of the line north of the Jumna. We believe, however, that we are right in saying that early in next month a train will be able to run straight across the bridge into the Allahabad station.

THE OPIUM REVENUE.—A Government notice appears this morning in the Exchange Gazette, publishing the quantity of opium manufactured during the present season, and from which the provision to be offered for sale in 1866 will be taken. By the same notice the Government reserves to itself the liberty of limiting the provision as the financial interests of the State may render expedient, and declares that it does not bind itself to bring forward the whole quantity of 47,837 chests for sale in 1866. The immediate effect of the resolution, which appears to have been known in the bazaar yesterday evening, was a considerable rise in the price of opium, with an excited market. There appears to be a diversity of public opinion as to both the soundness and the morality of the policy of the Government, in not, as usual, fixing the amount to be placed for sale during the year. We have heard it criticised as a ruse to raise prices, as prejudicial to the true interest of the trade, and an encouragement to gambling. To us it appears that the Government, after long ignoring, in its opium transactions, every true commercial principle, displays in this notification the first indication of having adopted more enlightened views. It simply reserves to itself the opportunity of accommodating supply to demand, or, at all events, of fixing the supply at some future time when it shall be more convenient to do so than now.—Englishman, July 22.

FRUIT OF THE HILL BAMBOO.—At a late meeting of the Agri-Horticultural Society of India, the President submitted the following extract of a letter to his address, from Mr. W. Le F. Robinson, of Rungpore, in continuation of that read at the April meeting:—"It is about time that I should report progress about the bamboo fruit, which has turned out much what I expected; numbers of them kept falling off the trees without any apparent change or reason, and I kept a lot for some time to see if any thing occurred, but as they merely shrivelled up externally, I opened some and found that the water in the centre gradually hardened into a white kernel. A good watch was kept on those on the trees, and the result is this:—as they get ripe, out of the big end by which they hang from the tree springs a young bamboo leaf, also bunch of roots; when the youngshoot is some 6 inches long the whole thing drops off the tree, and then apparently plants itself in the ground by the roots. I have got several planted out in boxes, and they are growing famously so far, but I am not quite certain whether I should not stick them out into the garden and let them take their own chance. One that I planted ten days ago has shot up 15 or 16 inches, and thrown out two leaves, and if he goes on growing at the same rate, he will soon settle the question of transplantation to the garden for me. It seems a queer thing that the bamboo should reproduce itself on the tree without going to earth first, it flowers, seeds, fruits and the young plant grows out of the fruit, with fresh roots before it leaves the parent stem. Is there any other tree or grass, I wonder, which does the same." The President informed the meeting that he had heard from Rangoon of a basket of Bamboo fruit having been carried into the town from a village 9 miles distant, and he was informed that Mr. Theobald, of the Geological Survey, who had just arrived in Calcutta, had brought up some specimens of the fruit which were doubtless those of Bambusa baccifera, a species described by Roxburg as inhabiting Chittagong and the Yumading Range. He had himself received specimens of the fruit of the Bamboo two years ago from Akyab, and he had sent his specimens for comparison to Mr. Theobald, who, he had hoped, would have attended the meeting. He had little doubt that Mr. Robinson's Rungpore fruit would prove to belong to the same species.

MR. WINGFIELD. According to the Mofussilite, Mr. Wingfield, Chief Commissioner of Oudh, has now, on the close of the tenant-right inquiry, which has been on the whole in his favour, sent in his resignation. Sir John Lawrence holds it in abeyance, promising Mr. Wingfield redress on his showing where any wrong or injustice has been done to him. His Excellency disclaims all intention of offering any personal slight or offence to Mr. Wingfield by the measures he has lately instituted in Oudh, and assures him that in such he has only been actuated by a strong sense of public duty. Mr. Wingfield has always intended to take three months' leave to the hills from August. Sir John Lawrence is now occupied with Mr. Davies' elaborate report on the inquiry. Mr. Wingfield rode the landed aristocracy policy of Lord Canning to death at first, and caused great injustice; but since the inquiry had been instituted he has behaved with the greatest wisdom and tact. There can be no doubt that Mr. Yule, Mr. G. Campbell, or Mr. A. A. Roberts will be glad to succeed him, should he persist in his resignation.

MORTALITY AMONG BUFFALOES AT RANGOON.—These are evil days for cattle, even in Burmah. It appears, from the Rangoon Times, our agriculturists are meeting with considerable losses by the death of numbers of buffaloes, kept for tillage in the various districts. There is nothing in this visitation, we understand, which gives to it the character of an epidemic. For a year or two the cattle and buffaloes throughout the districts have been worked so hard as to exhaust them, and now they are sinking from being overworked, as it is supposed. This, however, is a very unusual circumstance among the Burmese, for they are generally inclined to be very merciful and kind to the poor dumb brutes which till their fields. We have heard of this unfortunate mortality prevailing among the buffaloes and cattle, but hope it is not as extensive as common rumour describes it to be.

THE COSSYAHS AGAIN.—Some considerable disturbances have occurred in the Cossyah Hills, at a place called Mowigan. It would seem that the chief of that place and his people had had some disagreement, and that the latter have risen and declared an intention of deposing the Rajah. The cause of the outbreak has not transpired.

THE BANK OF BENGAL.—We have before us the report issued by the directors of the Bank of Bengal for the half-year ending 30th June, 1865. The net profits of the past half-year, after deducting income-tax and writing off Rs. 23,100 for all bad and doubtful debts at the head office and branches, amount to Rs. 13,27,797-2-8, out of which the directors have appropriated Rs. 13,20,000 in payment of dividend at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum on the bank's entire capital. The balance, amounting to Rs. 7,797-2-8, is carried forward to next half-year's account. The report also mentions that negotiations initiated in 1863 have been recently resumed for transferring to the bank the duties connected with the management of the registered public debt at Calcutta, now performed by the accountant general to the government of India, and of extending the agreement between the Government and the bank for seven years subsequent to March, 1867. The report contains a general review of the course of general business during the half-year, as it affects the position of the bank, the progress of all the branches of which is announced as satisfactory.—Hurkaru, July 20.

BHOOTAN.—The rains have been very heavy in the Dooars, and as a consequence fever has been very prevalent among both officers and men. Fortunately the attacks are not of long duration, and are less intense than formerly. Our correspondent from whom we gather these particulars, however, regards matters in a gloomy light, and does not hesitate to assert that the Dooars are the head quarters of fever. The war would seem to have had the effect of frightening the inhabitants of the Dooars into abandoning their usual cultivation, with the exception of dhan. Large breadths of land have been left untillied this season, which are already fast becoming jungle, and which will next year have to be cleared at the cost of considerable trouble. The English system of administration is fast getting into working order, several boundary disputes have been already settled in a way which has given satisfaction to the Meechis. The news from beyond the hills speak of continued quarrels between the Deb Rajah and Toungsoo Penlow, and of the strong desire manifested by the former to conclude peace before Toungsoo is able to gather up his resources, and relieve him of his dignity. All reports unite in ascribing to Toungsoo Penlow the preponderance of power. The Deb Rajah and Paro Penlow are spurred inasmuch by self-interest as anything else in their desire to put an end to what has been facetiously termed the Bhootan war.—Hurkaru.

FINANCIAL PROSPECTS.—Our readers are already aware that two of the non-official members of the Governor General's Council were summoned by telegraph to Simla a few days ago. The Viceroy summoned those gentlemen, we have been informed, because he wished to confer with them on the very important question as to how the deficit is to be met. The Secretary of State has declined to accede to the proposition for raising the sum of five crores of rupees by opening a loan at home, credit for which was taken into account, in anticipation, while preparing the budget estimates for the current official year, whilst the abolition of the income-tax has taken away a heavy item from the general receipts. Besides this there is a great falling off in revenue in consequence of the depreciation of the opium market. These circumstances combined have rendered the state of our finances rather unsatisfactory. It is said that a despatch has been sent to the Secretary of State by the Government of India soliciting further orders on this state of things.

WAR BETWEEN NEPAL AND THIBET.—The Nepal correspondent of the Delhi Gazette, writing under date 6th July, states that in consequence of Thibet having refused to pay the annual tribute to the Nepalese, war between the two countries is inevitable.

RAILWAY COLLISION AT BARRACKPORE.—A collision of trains attended with bodily injury, of a more or less serious character, to a number of natives—report says eight or ten—happened at the Barrockpore Station of the Eastern Bengal Railway. A morning train from Calcutta had reached the above station, and had been stopped there to allow of the passage down of the half-past nine o'clock train to Calcutta. Several natives were in the carriages of the halted train, and had the pointsman north of the station done his duty as prescribed, and as he had often previously done, the down-coming train would have passed by as usual, taking a siding between the halted up-train and the station platform. The pointsman, however, through nervousness, or some other cause, failed to effect the turning off of the down-train into the siding, though he attempted to do so. The consequence was that both trains remaining on the main line of rails, the halted one was run into by that in motion, the collision smashing a number of carriages, and sending others with such force against some of the buildings at the station that some store house walls were burst through. We have not heard the exact number of persons injured, but our informant was of opinion that between eight and ten had sustained injury.

AFFAIRS IN THE DOOARS.—Our Allahabad contemporary has the following melancholy picture of the state of the troops in the Dooars:—We regret to record another victim to cholera in Bhootan in the person of Lieut. T. R. Taylor, Quarter-master, 11th N.I., who died at Putta Kowa, in the Western Dooars, but a few days back. Sickness, unhappily prevalent as it is throughout the Dooars, appears to be even worse at this particular post than elsewhere, fever being the prominent ailment. The regiment above mentioned has upwards of four hundred men in hospital, and the detachment of the 5th Bengal Cavalry nearly a hundred. We very much question whether, with so much of the small force hors de combat, the post alluded to can be considered defensible. The condition of the troops throughout Bhootan has, as we are aware, formed a subject for serious anxiety and discussion by the supreme military authorities for a long time, but we fear it is a case unsuceptible of much palliation, as matters now stand.—Hurkaru, July 20.

SIR JOHN LAWRENCE AND THE MAHOMEDANS OF UMBALLA.—The Mahomedans of the Umballa bazaar seem to have a special dislike to Sir John Lawrence. The other day they set about a story of his death, their wishes, no doubt, being father to their thought; and, still more recently, they have spread the rumour that Sir John had been recalled by the Home Government on account of his serious faults as an administrator. He has annexed the Bhootan Dooars, in spite of the anti-annexationist policy of the Government, and in spite of the warnings he received from home about the extension of the British frontiers. As if this were not enough, he has countenanced the infliction of the most unjust punishment upon the patriotic and loyal Mussulmans of Patna.—Hurkaru.

THE PRINCESS ALEXANDRA AND THE PENANG HOTEL.—The Friend of India says:—"Penang is properly called Prince of Wales Island. Two hotel-keepers have called their establishment 'Alexandra,' and have sent a photograph of it to the Princess of Wales. They have succeeded in eliciting an answer, to this effect:—'Her Royal Highness has no doubt that your establishment will prove of great advantage to the inhabitants of the island of Penang, and she wishes it success. Her Royal Highness has been graciously pleased to express her approbation that it should bear her name.' We fear her Royal Highness will soon be inundated with similar applications from all English dependencies. There could not be a better advertisement."

"THE PREPARIS ISLAND RECLAMATION AND COLONISATION COMPANY."—The prospectus of a new company has been issued under this title. The proposal is to form a small company for the redemption of the island from the waste condition in which it has been time out of mind. If this were done it is considered that the island would be likely to become the recognised sanitarium of Calcutta, from which it is distant only four or five days by steam. The altitude of the place, while affording salubrious sites for colonist settlements, secures it from inundations. In the allotment of shares preference would be given to parties willing and ready to settle on the island with their families, and as colonists aid in developing its resources. It is considered that a capital of Rupees 1,50,000, in 150 shares of Rupees 1,000 each, would be ample for the purposes of the company. All Indian products, it is affirmed in the prospectus, would grow well on the island. Mr. Shoppard, the promoter, has somewhat extended the original design, as will be seen by the following extract of a letter which he has written to the Hurkaru:—"Since issuing my prospectus for the formation of a company for the purposes of reclaiming, colonising and cultivating Preparis Island, it has been suggested that, as one of the objects specified therein was the drawing of produce from the Cocos Island, I should apply to the Supreme Government for a grant of the Great Coco, or secure the exclusive right to farm the island; this suggestion I have acted on without prejudice, however, to my former application for Preparis Island."

ANOTHER TURF SCANDAL.—An up-country paper reports that letters from Cawnpore allude to the occurrence of another serious turf scandal, "the particulars of which must, sooner or later, come out." We shall make it our business to seek more precise information, and publish it. Constituted as the turf of Upper India is, supported by men holding the position of gentlemen, with the identity of almost every one of its members known to the public, a charge against any one of them assumes such an unpleasant prominence as does not attach to similar occurrences in sporting annals at home. The mysterious manner in which the last unfortunate incident of the kind under notice disappeared from the arena of public inquiry can have been satisfactory to no one, least of all to the gentleman most concerned, if, as his advocates state the case, he really was anxious to be judged fairly on his merits.

ECCLESIASTICAL.—The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, on the nomination of the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Calcutta, has appointed the Reverend R. P. Greaves, B. A., of the Church Missionary Society, to the spiritual charge of the station of Serampore, in the room of the Reverend E. C. Stuart, B. A., of the same Society, who has proceeded to Europe on leave of absence on medical certificate. His Lordship has also nominated the Reverend J. Welland to St. Thomas' Church Free School, as a co-adjutor to the Reverend Mr. Burton.

LADIES ARE NOT WANTED IN BHOOTAN.—On a reference made to him, the Viceroy has decided against the erection of separate bungalows for married officers in the Dooars or in Assam. The bungalows to be built will contain one room for subalterns, two for field officers, and a small additional room for staff officers requiring offices. There will also be one mess-room to each corps or detachment.

THE ILLS OF DANCING.—The correspondent of the Sindian states that the station is indeed very dull. Dancing seems to be put aside entirely in the European regiments. The Sergeant-major of an old and gallant corps thought fit to state to his commanding officer that balls led to breaches of discipline, as the sergeants could not perform their duties rightly for a day or two after.

SERIOUS ILLNESS OF SIR BARNES PEACOCK AND MR. JUSTICE NORMAN.—We regret to learn that the learned Chief Justice, Sir Barnes Peacock, lies seriously ill at his residence with rheumatic fever. His lordship had arranged to sit yesterday with Mr. Justice Phear and Baboo Sumboonath Pandit, to investigate a special case of the High Court, which had, in consequence of his illness, to be adjourned till Monday next. Mr. Justice Norman was also taken so ill while on the bench as to be obliged to leave the Court.

MR. E. H. OGILVIE.—On the 3rd of this month we noticed the suspension of Mr. E. H. Ogilvie, Assistant Superintendent of Police at Sasseram, in the district of Shahabad, pending an inquiry into the complaint preferred against him, viz., of using violence in an attempt to extort confession. We now hear that the charges having been brought home to Mr. Ogilvie, the Lieutenant-governor has directed his dismissal from the service.—Hurkaru, July 17.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—Consequent on the appointment permanently by the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India of the Hon. Elphinstone Jackson to a puisne judgeship of the High Court, Mr. A. R. Thompson, officiating civil and sessions judge of Nuddea, is to be judge of that district, vice the Hon. Elphinstone Jackson. Mr. W. J. Herschel, officiating magistrate and collector of Midnapore, to be a magistrate and collector of the second grade.—Hurkaru, July 22.

THE PRISON DISCIPLINE COMMITTEE have made a report in favour of the Alipore Gaol being converted into a Central Prison. Their representation has been submitted to the Governor-general.

DEPUTY ADJUTANT-GENERAL OF ARTILLERY.—It is stated that Colonel Middleton, C.B., will succeed Colonel Adye, C.B., as deputy adjutant-general of artillery in this Presidency.—Hurkaru, July 22.

THE MUTINY MEDALS of the 4th and 5th Cavalry and 1st Regiment of Oude Fort Police have been distributed by the Inspector-general of the Police of that province.

MONEY MARKET.—The Bank of Bengal yesterday reduced its rates 1 per cent. all round, and the margin on loans on Government Securities 2 per cent., which seems to imply a revival of confidence, as well as an ample supply of money; but, notwithstanding, business is still very dull.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE "ATHENÆUM AND DAILY NEWS" tells the old story:—"Of the Madras Presidency there is literally nothing material to be reported. His Excellency the Governor has been here, presiding at meetings of the Legislative Council, which has transacted some useful business. It is understood that he will visit the Nilgherries for a few months, and will return home at the expiration of his ordinary tour of Government; but this last point is, we trust, not yet decided, as the value of his rule is more and more appreciated, now that he has gained the experience which every new man must want. A North-Western journal quotes a rumour that he is to be succeeded by Sir Robert Montgomery, an able officer, no doubt, but who knows about as much of Madras affairs as he does of the land of Nod. We do not desire him to be entrusted with the administration of them in place of our present Governor.

Here, however, are a few items of news:—

BANGALORE.—The Governor's residence in Bangalore seems likely to be productive of material advantage to the residents of that station, particularly the military portion thereof, if the various suggestions his Excellency has recently made for the improvement of the Cantonment be carried into effect. He states that until he visited the Military Establishments there he was not aware of the amount of work that remained to be done before the European troops at the head quarters of the Mysore division of the army could be properly accommodated.

EARTHQUAKE AT COIMBATORE.—The collector at Coimbatore has reported to the Board of Revenue that on the evening of Saturday, the 24th June, at about twenty minutes past eight o'clock, a shock of an earthquake was felt at that station by many of the European and native residents, and that its direction was from north-east to south-west.

STOCK AND SHARE MARKET.—The intimation, now officially confirmed, that no new Public Works Loan will be introduced this year, has tended to strengthen the market for Government Securities, and Five per Cents. have improved about ½ per cent. We quote Five-and-a-Half per Cents. 9½ to 10 premium, Five per Cents. 3½ to 4 premium, and Four per Cents. 9½ to 10 discount. Madras Bank shares shortly after the departure of the last direct mail rose rapidly to Rupees 84 per cent. premium, at which several transactions were reported, but owing to some Bombay holders forcing their shares on the market prices subsequently gave way, and sales were made at 70 per cent. premium. A demand has again sprung up, and there are buyers but no sellers at 75 per cent. premium both here and in Bombay. Exchange.—Since the departure of the last mail via Bombay rates have slightly declined, and drafts have been placed for this mail at 2s. 5-16ths for First-Class Credits, and 2s. 4d. for Documents. The Banks are selling at 2s. 4d.—Madras Athenæum, July 28.

MADRAS, July 28.—The market for piece goods and twist has been prejudicially influenced by the interruption of telegraphic communication with Europe, as well as by the continuance of unusually large transshipments from Calcutta and Bombay. There has, however, been a very fair inquiry for several descriptions of goods.

The following sales have been reported during the fortnight:—

Grey Shirtings.—39-40 inch 7lb., Rs. 7-10, Rs. 7-12, Rs. 7-15, 8lb., Rs. 9-8, Rs. 9-12, and (to arrive) Rs. 9-14 and Rs. 9-15 (to arrive), and Rs. 10, Rs. 10-1-6, Rs. 10-2 (to arrive), Rs. 10-1 (on spot). 45 inch 8lb., Rs. 8-11; 9lb., Rs. 10-5 (to arrive), Rs. 10-10. 50 inch 10lb., Rs. 11-4, Rs. 11-12, Rs. 11-13.

Jaconets.—39-40 inch 2lb. 4oz., Rs. 2-12; 2lb. 3oz., Rs. 3; 45 inch 2½lb., Rs. 4; 3lb., Rs. 4-8.

Grey Madapolams.—32 inch 3lb., Rs. 8-6.

Turkey Red Cambrics.—7-8 28 yards, Rs. 6-8; 24 inch 28 yards, Rs. 6-14; 32 inch 24 yards, Rs. 7-8; 40 inch 24 yards, Rs. 10-1; 45 inch 24 yards, Rs. 11-12; 43 inch 24 yards (to arrive), Rs. 11-14.

Turkey Red Dummies.—36 inch, Rs. 7-6; 40 inch, Rs. 8-10; Turkey Red Mulls.—40 inch 20 yards, Rs. 4-10; Mule Yarn.—No. 40, Rs. 5, Rs. 5-1 (to arrive), Rs. 5-2, Rs. 5-3, Rs. 5-8 (to arrive), Rs. 6-4, Rs. 5-6, Rs. 5-7, Rs. 5-8, and (to arrive) Rs. 5-12; No. 50, Rs. 6-12, Rs. 7, Rs. 7-4; No. 60, Rs. 7-12, Rs. 7-15.

Orange.—No. 40, Rs. 5-12, Rs. 5-14; No. 50, Rs. 6-10; No. 60, Rs. 6-4, Rs. 6-13; yellow: No. 40, Rs. 5-13-5, Rs. 5-11, Rs. 6-2-6.

Imperial Red.—No. 40, single bundle, Rs. 6, Rs. 6-2; double bundle, Rs. 11; Turkey Red assorted, Rs. 2-4-8; No. 70 and 80, Rs. 2-5.

EXPORTS.

MADRAS, July 28.—The inquiry for Western Cotton has been less active during the past fortnight, and the price consequently declined to Rs. 163½, at which there were sales. The rate has since advanced, and the dealers now refuse to sell under Rs. 168 per candy. The arrivals of the staple from up-country during the month have been very large, and a considerable quantity is now available in our market. Tinnevely rose to Rs. 170, but subsequently declined to Rs. 150; the quotation, however, is quite nominal. In sugar, seeds, indigo, and coffee, nothing is doing.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HIS HIGHNESS SYED MAJID ALLY OF ZANZIBAR recently informed Colonel Playfair, the British Consul and Resident at that place, that he had been solicited by the Chiefs of Angaziba or Great Comoro to assume the sovereignty of that island, and asked the Colonel's advice. This was placing the Consul in a somewhat delicate position, from which he extricated himself with great tact. Syed Majid Ally was advised to satisfy himself as to the value the acquisition would likely be to him. The result of his inquiries has induced him to abandon any thoughts he ever entertained as to complying with the Comoro Chiefs' request. The island is barren and almost valueless, and its sovereignty would only weaken the Zanzibar Prince, whilst it would in all probability bring him into direct and possibly unfriendly contact with the French, a contingency in his case to be sedulously avoided. Colonel Playfair seems to be discharging the duties of his delicate and difficult post with equal skill and success.—Hurkaru.

INTERESTING TO FIELD OFFICERS.—The Governor-General in Council is pleased to announce that it has been decided by the Secretary of State for War, that all authorised periods of leave of absence may be included as part of the six years' service in the rank of Field Officer required to entitle a General Officer to the unattached pay of the latter rank.

CEYLON.

The Colombo Observer of July 29 furnishes the following:—

The weather since our last has been hot and dry, and the preparation and shipment of coffee have gone on at a rate unusual at this advanced period of the season. Again the exports of plantation largely preponderate, so that now our total exports of this kind equal 538,000, or 60,000 in advance of last season to the same period.

The Governor, when last heard of, was at Trincomalee on his tour of observation. From the Eastern Province he proceeds to the Northern, and by the time his Excellency meets the Council in Colombo, about the end of August, he will have seen nearly every part of Ceylon. We have heard it stated that the Governor is determined that the Session shall be a short one, also that Lady Robinson will not leave Kandy.

The Ceylon League is prospering, notwithstanding the hostile vote of a fractional meeting of the Planters' Association. Already the subscriptions exceed £800.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

MONDAY, August 28, 1865.

OFFICIAL OPINION IN INDIA
UPON THE CLAIMS OF INDIAN OFFICERS.

A PARLIAMENTARY PAPER just issued, on the motion of Captain Jervis, contains a copy of the Indian Secretary's despatch of the 17th of June, 1864, on the case of the Indian officers, and an important correspondence with the Government of India, and the Governments of Bombay and Madras on the subject, developing the opinions of the highest local authorities with regard to it.

The first document in point of date is a communication from the Government of Bombay, made on the 6th of September, 1854, to the Government of India, in which a decided opinion is expressed that the rule of promotion laid down by the Indian Secretary fails to attain the purpose of placing the officers who remained with their regiments in the same relative position as regards Staff Corps officers as they held before the formation of that corps. In exemplification of this belief they forward a statement showing the seniority of the Majors of the Bombay Army on the 17th of February, 1861, on the 1st of July, 1864, and as they would stand after the promotions ordered by the Indian Secretary were completed. From these lists a number of supersessions of regimental officers by members of the Staff Corps are evident, and it is observed that the evil is increased instead of diminished by the plan of the Government. "The general results of the measure," says the despatch, "may be shown in another manner. Of the nineteen regimental officers in the second list only six obtain a better position in the third list, while thirteen are placed in an inferior position. So that so far as the body of regimental officers shown in these lists are concerned, they, on the whole, suffer more supersession by the very measure designed to remedy supersession." Moreover, "the third list has been arranged with anticipation of the promotions in the local army, provided by paragraphs fifty-one and seventy-nine of the same despatch. If these had not been taken into account the result would have departed even more widely from the expressed purpose."

The despatch encloses letters from Captain Morris, Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley, and Major Arthur, on the subject of their particular grievances; memoranda by the Adjutant-general and Secretary Lieut.-col. Marriott; and remarks by the Commander-in-Chief. Sir William Mansfield, then, it will be remembered, holding only the local command, expresses his diffidence in approaching the subject, as the Secretary of State had declared the arrangement final. Referring to the lower rank of regimental officers, who did not reach the position of substantive Majors in February, 1861, he says:—"Such officers, of whom Captain Morris is one, have never looked beyond the limit of their own regiments with respect to the seniority of others. They cannot, according to the regimental principle on which their position is founded, plead that they are in any way superseded because an officer in another regiment has received quicker promotion than they have. . . . This is, however, not so with the field officers who, on obtaining the rank of Major in the Indian Armies, come into one list of promotion. Consequently, it appears to me that the difficulty is very great, as stated by the Secretary (Lieutenant-colonel Marriott) in respect of substantive field officers who were Majors before February, 1861, and are, under the new orders, liable to be superseded by officers on account of the total length of service who were Captains of that date."

Pending the reference to the Supreme Government on the subject, the Government of Bombay suspended action in regard to the promotions. A reply, however, was not long in coming. On the 29th of September the Commander-in-Chief, Sir Hugh Rose, communicated his opinion to the Government of India, to the general effect that as supersession of officers of one regiment by those of another has been constantly occurring ever since the army has existed, and could indeed only be avoided by placing the whole in one general list for promotion, and that as it was not asserted that the orders of the Secretary of State will not effectually prevent the supersession of every officer in the cadre of his own regiment, he could not concur in the objections raised. The Supreme Government, in forwarding to the Secretary of State his Excellency's despatch, add: "It is scarcely possible that extensive changes in the army should ever be made without unfavourably affecting the position of some individuals relatively, i.e., as compared with that of some others; and the instance in question is no exception to this rule. But we think there can be no doubt that, by the measures ordered in your despatch, substantial hardship in the matter of promotion is avoided; and we therefore requested the Bombay Government not to delay the publication of the promotions in the Bombay Army."

The Madras Government made several communications on the subject. One of these, dated 20th of December, 1864, submits to the Supreme Government a communication from the Adjutant-General, on the part of Sir Hope Grant, giving cover to a letter from Lieut.-Col. C. Cooke, to the effect that the brevet promotions, so far from having effected the object for which they were granted, had had the effect of placing many officers in a much worse position, as regards the Staff Corps, than they were in before; and that not only are the relations of these two classes of officers changed towards each other, but they are changed towards themselves. Thus he points out that, in the case of the regimental officers, majors of 1858-59 are superseded by officers who were but Captains in 1864, in addition to supersession by staff officers; and that, as regards the Staff officers, Lieut.-colonels of 1861 are superseded by Lieut.-colonels of 1863, notwithstanding that all entered the corps on the same conditions of service. "If," says Lieut.-Colonel Cooke, "it is deemed expedient to modify, in any particular, the terms on which officers were invited to the Staff Corps, it is surely but just that all who have been admitted thereto should be given the option of re-considering their election. But I would most respectfully beg to submit that whatever measure may be requisite in order to restore the Indian officers to their former relative position with those of the Staff Corps, it would be either necessary or expedient to alter the relative position of Staff Corps officers one with another." The Lieutenant-colonel then goes on to suggest two modes of dealing with the difficulty. The first is to this effect. The grievance to be met being the supersession of regimental officers by their juniors who have joined the Staff Corps, the first point to consider is the system of promotion in the Indian service; and bearing that system in mind, he considers that an officer below the rank of regimental major has no just cause of complaint if he is superseded by an officer of the Staff Corps not belonging to the same regiment. But he is grievously wronged if superseded by his junior in his own regiment; therefore brevet rank should be given to him on his juniors being promoted to the Staff Corps, by which means the Parliamentary guarantee would be fulfilled, as far as the grades below field officers are concerned. It would then remain to protect the regimental field officer from any future super-session, for which purpose regimental Majors made Lieutenant-colonels in the Staff Corps on the 18th February, 1861, should occasion the promotion of all regimental Majors senior to them, but not the promotion of such of them as were still Majors only in the Staff Corps; and if the Staff Corps Lieutenant-colonel were already a brevet Lieutenant-colonel before admission, his substantive promotion should not give promotion to any of his senior regimental Majors. It is possible by the plan suggested that regimental Majors will not in every case be protected from supersession by field officers of the Staff Corps, who are only Captains in the cadres of their own regiments; for it may happen that the Staff Corps officer is senior in rank as a Captain to the regimental Major. Such instances, however, says the writer, will be few; and whenever one occurs the regimental field officer must have his Captain's rank ante-dated, to secure to him his relative position with the Staff Corps officer. Another little difficulty also presents itself. The Staff Corps warrant provides for the promotion of all Lieut.-colonels after five years' service in that grade; and unless this rule be extended to the Indian service, the writer cannot see how their interests are to be protected. But should this be objected to as affecting the interests of the Lieutenant-colonels of the British army, he suggests that that portion of the Staff Corps warrant which gives promotion to Colonel to all Lieut.-colonels indiscriminately, be revised, and that the provisions of the Royal promotion warrant of 1859 be made applicable to Staff Corps Lieut.-colonels. This plan would simplify the question, but it would involve the necessity of giving Staff officers the option of reverting to the local service. The interests of those promoted for distinguished services cannot be protected by any general rule, but such officers may confidently leave their claims to be considered by her Majesty.

The above scheme, though strictly observing the Parliamentary guarantee, would not, the author frankly admits, give satisfaction to the local service. He, therefore, suggests a second, and to them more acceptable, plan, as follows:—The establishment of native infantry regiments is now 40 corps, but there are 55 cadres of officers, aggregating about 550 of all ranks below Lieut.-colonels, who would be satisfied if they were formed into 40 regiments, having an organisation of thirteen officers in each corps, thus disposing of the whole, and giving considerable, though not undue, substantive promotion, and tending to restore the purchase system, and so hastening the extinction of the local service, which is the object desired by the Home Government. As casualties occur smaller sums would be given to retiring officers; still promotion would be accelerated, and the present discontent and uncertainty be removed. Under this arrangement, however, the writer observes that field officers who rank as such regimentally before 18th February, 1861, must still be protected from supersession on the former plan, which must be applied also to the Cavalry, comparatively few officers of that arm having entered the Staff Corps. He makes no provision for officers on the General List, and sees no necessity to do so, as they entered the service subject to any conditions that might be determined on in regard to them; but there seems no objection, he adds, to their being added to the number of regimental local officers; they number now 101 Lieutenants in the Infantry, and in being posted to the forty new regiments they might stand below all officers of their rank on the strength of corps.

On the 27th of March, 1865, we find Sir Hope Grant forwarding, through the Adjutant-general, to the local Government a communication on the same subject, in which he submits a return showing the effect of the brevet promotion on the Lieutenant-colonels of the local service, and fully confirming Lieut.-col. Cooke's statements. His Excellency directs special attention to a memorandum attached to the return, from which it appears that out of thirty-two officers whose cases are given, twenty-three are now far worse off than they were, or could be, consequent on the promotions under the Staff Corps warrant; that of the whole number, five only are in a better position than they would have been without the amalgamation changes; and that the benefits gained by the latter have been effected by superseding those whom they ought not to have passed over. The return shows that in some cases these Indian service Lieutenant-colonels have passed over officers of the Staff Corps who were senior to them, without reference to their promotion in the Staff Corps, by the measure devised to redress the complaint of the local service. The nominal roll of these superseded Staff Corps officers is also submitted. In addition to showing the extent to which these officers have been passed over by the juniors of the local service, this roll gives the instances of supersession of Staff Corps officers by Staff Corps officers, already brought to notice in Lieut.-col. Cooke's letter. Sir Hope Grant considers that this last effect of the brevet promotions may have been lost sight of when those promotions were ordered. It is scarcely likely, his Excellency adds, that these officers would have entered the Staff Corps had they been aware that they would have been liable to supersession by officers of their own corps otherwise than by distinguished services in the field. All general brevets ceased in 1854—so it was supposed.

To this despatch, forwarded for the consideration of the India-office, Sir Charles Wood replied direct to the Madras Government on the 22nd of June last, condemning the calculations as too sweeping and general, maintaining his opinion that the measure has, on the whole, worked beneficially to the officers, and quoting Sir William Mansfield to some extent, and Sir Hugh Rose generally, in support of his views.

Most of the questions at issue in this mass of correspondence have been discussed in the last publication of the Indian Officers' Committee, to which we referred in our number of the 5th of this month, and in our own columns continually since the Amalgamation. But the publication of the documents in question may not be too late to have some influence upon the eventual settlement of the case, and for this reason mainly we have called attention to their salient points.

THE NEW THEORY IN RIFLES.—

Lieutenant James Forsyth, in his excellent work, "The Sporting Rifle, &c.," first promulgated the startling theory that Rifles could be so constructed as to lessen the elevation by increasing the charge of powder. This theory, which the Advertiser has proven to be correct, alters the whole position of Rifles in favour of the sportsman. Formerly, with a high trajectory, the bullet which would have hit a tiger in a vital part at 100 yards, would pass over his back at 25 or 50 yards. By the new system, as elaborated and perfected in DOUGALL'S LOCKFAST BREECHLOADERS, there is a point-blank range to 150 yards, combined with a velocity and smashing power hitherto unknown.—(See TIMES, 11th October, 1864.) No other Rifle possesses the same advantages.

Quintessence of Jamaica Ginger and Camomile.

GINGER has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine, and combined with camomile, it is the most efficient stomachic tonic known, for while the ginger relieves the stomach from distension and flatulency, arising from impaired digestion, the camomile strengthens the coats of the stomach, and by that means gives it a healthy and invigorating tone. So highly concentrated is this preparation, it is unimpaired by age or climate, and well adapted for exportation. In Gout, Spasms, Dysentery, Cholera, or those complaints incidental to tropical climates, it is invaluable, as in numerous cases a dose or two has checked and frequently cured most alarming attacks. No family should be without it. Sold in half-pints, quarter-pints, and one-eighth pints.

Agreeable Seidlitz Powder, in one bottle, protected by a case, with measure and spoon included. The advantage of this preparation is the perfect combination of the solid ingredients of the Seidlitz Spring in one compound powder.

It is very cooling and refreshing, well adapted for exportation, or travellers by land or sea.

Aromatic Tincture of Quinodine.—For the prevention of Fever, Intermittent or Remittent Ague, and other effects of Malaria.

No person exposed to the influence or predisposing cause of Fevers should be without it, for it taken in small doses daily the system will become so thoroughly impregnated with its principles as to be rendered proof against all attacks of Contagion or Malaria.—Sold in pints, half-pints, and quarter-pints.

The above articles prepared only by THOS. WILKINSON (late Wilkinson, Bridge, & Co.), 270, Regent-street London, W.

MRS. JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTH-

ING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN CUTTING THEIR TEETH.—This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of children when thought past recovery from convulsions arising from painful dentition. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums the child will be relieved, the gums cooled, and the inflammation reduced. It is as innocent as effluvia, tending to produce the teeth with ease; and so pleasant, that no child will refuse to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, the Syrup should be rubbed on the gums, and parents should never be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for, if a child wakes in the night with pains in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives ease, thereby preventing convulsions, fevers, &c. The great success of this medicine during the last twenty-five years has induced unprincipled persons to imitate it, under the name of American Soothing Syrup, and copying parts of Mrs. Johnson's Bills, &c. Parents will, therefore, be very particular to ask for JOHNSON'S AMERICAN SOOTHING SYRUP, and to notice that the names of BARCLAY and SONS, 95, Farringdon-street, London (to whom Mrs. Johnson has sold the recipe), are on the stamp affixed to each bottle.

Sold by all chemists and medicine vendors.

Earl RUSSELL sent to the College of Physicians a communication received by him from Manila (where Cholera had been raging fearfully), to the effect, that, of all remedies tried, Chlorodyne was the most effective.—See Brit. Med. J., Dec. 31, 1864.

CHLORODYNE (TOWLE'S). Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c., immediately relieved by a dose of TOWLE'S CHLORODYNE, which is admitted to be a most wonderful and valuable medicine, and preferred by the profession for its known composition and moderate price.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.

Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1864. Ship Gertrude.
Mr. TOWLE.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marseilles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne, from which myself and crew found immediate relief; and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 36s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 6d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price, 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d. POWDER.

THIS POWDER is quite harmless to animal life, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles, Gnats, Mosquitos, Moths in Furs, and every other species of insect.

SPORTSMEN will find this an invaluable remedy for destroying fleas in their dogs, as also ladies for their pet dogs.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—THE LAW OF

LIFE.—The present is a fitting opportunity for drawing attention to the few points on which health hinges. All impurities must be expelled from the system immediately their presence is discovered. Wear and tear must be compensated by suitable food, which, when thoroughly digested, must enrich the blood with its nutritive elements. The alterative virtues exerted by Holloway's purifying Pills exactly meet these requirements, and they further exercise distinctive and peculiar powers in strengthening the nerves and regulating the circulation, whereby secretion and excretion are accurately adjusted. These excellent Pills keep all the natural functions so fairly balanced that they prevent, or speedily subdue, headache, dizziness, nausea, bilious attacks, fevers, diarrhoea, dysentery, and similar maladies.

EXPANDING SADDLE.

GIBSON AND COMPANY

Respectfully invite the attention of MILITARY MEN, EQUESTRIANS, and OWNERS OF HORSES, to their Newly-Invented EXPANDING SADDLE, which admits of ready adjustment to the size of any horse, creating a secure and easy seat without the slightest inconvenience to either horse or rider. The principle of EXPANSION and CONTRACTION comprises a simple arrangement of mechanism within the saddle so perfect, that by merely turning a screw the pad is proportioned to the size and form of the animal, on which it firmly rests with a uniform pressure, and is securely retained in its position by means of an ordinary girth.

This invention has obtained the approval and distinguished patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, and from the very favourable opinions expressed by competent judges, and all who have had an opportunity of testing its merits, there is no doubt it will come into general use; indeed, its success is already established.

ANILINE DYES.—"I shall commence my observations on dyeing, by referring especially to the remarkable and beautiful colours derived from coal tar, the introduction of which into this art may be said to constitute the chief distinction, as far as dyeing is concerned, between the present and the former Exhibition, creating, in fact, a new era in the tinctorial art. Coal tar colours deserve attention for their power, as well as for the facility with which they may be applied, for one grain will deeply tint half a gallon of water, and little or no skill is required for their application."—Vide Report by Grace Calvert, Esq., F.R.S., Ph.D., Honorary Professor of Chemistry.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

We have received our usual files of papers from Bombay to the 8th of August, and Calcutta to the 1st of that month.

There is no want of news this time, though the telegraph had made us expect too much. The triumphant assertion of the submission of the Bhooteas and overtures for peace, turn out to be nothing more than the Calcutta rumours enlarged and improved by transit through Bombay. In Calcutta, indeed, the general incredulity as to pacific reports was confirmed by the announcement that Tongsoo Penlow had left his capital and marched on Tassisdun, the present residence of the Deb Rajah, with two thousand men at his heels. It is added that the hill Rajahs to the east of Bhootan, and even some of the Thibetan magnates, have promised him assistance in this new contest to the extent of some five thousand men. Tongsoo is reported to have left a garrison of a thousand men at Panakha. His march had all the effect of a surprise. He first of all retired from Panakha to Chuka, some two or three marches north of the British port at Buxa Dewar, but finding his position there not so secure as he could have wished, he abandoned his half-finished stockades, and took up a new post in the capital of his own province. The Deb Rajah meanwhile, thinking his enemy was beaten, and unlikely to interfere between himself and the English, tried to push on the negotiations with Colonel Bruce as fast as possible. This measure aroused Tongsoo's anger, and he sent the Deb Rajah a haughty warning, that although peace might be declared, he would never be a party to it or recognise it when made. The warning being neglected, Tongsoo lost no time in mustering his adherents and marching to bring his quarrel with the Deb Rajah to a conclusion. Peace negotiations are, therefore, suspended, and nobody ventures to say what will come next.

There was little other news in Calcutta. Sir Barnes Peacock was recovering his health, but his return to England was considered inevitable. Mr. Beadon was still

"starring in the provinces." He had been up the river as far as Benares, and had proceeded thence by train to Allahabad, to witness the testing of the Jumna Bridge—which by the way is found to be quite satisfactory, and ready to be opened for ordinary traffic. Mr. Beadon's razzia among the judges and magistrates seems to be at an end, though we hear of an unfortunate of the class whose suspension has been confirmed by home authority. Whether he is to be employed again in any capacity depends, it seems, upon what he is found to be fit for, and his abandonment of "eccentric habits" and other innocent enjoyments. The Civil Service, by the way, is, it is said, to have a distinguished addition in the son of Mr. Calcraft, the hangman, who goes out under an assumed name, for the same reason, we presume, that Mr. and Mrs. Gilpin would not have the chaise drawn up at their own door—"lest all should say that they were proud." The effect, however, in Mr. Calcraft's case, will be awkward, for every new "wallah" who arrives for some time to come will be open to the suspicion of being the interesting person in question until he proves himself to be somebody else.

Money was so abundant in Calcutta that there was a difficulty in finding employment for it, even at one per cent. under the Bank rates. All feeling of uneasiness about matters in Bombay had subsided, and transactions in Government securities and other investments had been resumed on an extensive scale. Bank of Bengal shares continued in good demand, and had again advanced; and the Share Market generally wore a more lively appearance than it had done for months past. In Bombay the state of things, of course, justified this happy revival of confidence.

There were some stirring items of general news in the Western Presidency. An accident on the Great Indian Peninsular Railway had produced a painful impression on the public mind, the more so as the mishap—the running of the train off the line—was not traced to any sufficient cause, and blame not being thrown upon anybody nobody could of course be punished, or any means taken to guard against the recurrence of such a calamity.

Mr. Chisholm Anstey—who is a remarkable illustration of the maxim calum non animus, &c., having managed to keep in much the same state of hot water, whether in England, Hong Kong, or Bombay—has been making a little amusement in the latter place by a quarrel with a solicitor named Crawford. We give some account of the affair elsewhere, but the proceedings before Mr. Barton, which occupy nearly nine columns of the Bombay broad-sheets, are not quite available for a nutshell. Mr. Anstey seems to have not been so much to blame in the present instance; indeed, the magistrate dismissed the case, which was a criminal prosecution for defamation of character, under the Penal Code; but his manner is admittedly overbearing, and in his suavest moments he is as likely to give offence as not. The Times of India, remarking upon the case says:—"In his final speech Mr. Anstey spoke of the bar having existed before Parliaments and Legislative Councils, and that its privileges did 'not depend upon a nominally Legislative Council at Poona.' Only recently Mr. Anstey spoke of Sir Bartle Frere as 'the local satrap of a Secretary of State.'" At the very moment, too, when he is appearing before a magistrate to answer a criminal charge (he wanted to go into the dock, but Mr. Barton thought that would be too much of a joke), we find this gentleman appointed Acting Judge, in the room of Sir Joseph Arnould. The journal just quoted says that the appointment has taken everybody by surprise. But it must be remembered that Mr. Anstey is, at any rate, a very able lawyer, and that his position at the local bar entitles him to the preferment. His success in Bombay, notwithstanding all impediments, has been very great. When he returned to that Presidency, after his visit to England, we are told that the steamer was boarded, immediately it cast anchor, by an attorney who retained him in a case, and paid him some enormous fee on the spot—the attorney on the other side, who had not thought of taking a boat, being seen at the time tearing his hair on the jetty.

It is added that Mr. Chapple has been appointed deputy-corporator of Bombay.

THE CHRONICLE OF THE GREAT KINGDOM OF THE EAST.* CHAPTER I.

OF THE KINGDOM AND ITS RULERS.

1. Now, it came to pass in the year One Thousand Two Hundred and Seventy-one, that there ruled over the people a King whose name was John. 2. And he was a man tall in stature, but withal not of a pleasing countenance, and he was well stricken in years. 3. Now, the King had no son, but after the manner of that country, if the King went a journey, or peradventure was sick, the Chief Prince of the land ruled in his stead. 4. Now, the Prince Belvidere was a man of double countenance, and he was not loved by the people. 5. And to him was first brought all manner of writings which were to go before the King. 6. And if the Evil Spirit was not upon him the writings were laid before the King. 7. Now, the Prince was not of the King's blood, and the Prince ofttimes waxed proud, so that the King loved him not. 8. And the King had much councillors and warriors and scribes which dwelt with him in the palace. 9. And many of the councillors feared God, and did justice, but many likewise served the Evil One. 10. Now the King's private scribe, whose name was Alltheway, was a Hakim of great repute, and he feared neither God nor man. 11. And he was a man after the King's own heart, for he loved money above all things. 12. And the land was at peace, nevertheless, the whole people groaned at the burdens which were laid upon them. 13. And the layer on of those burdens was Threavillain, the Chief man of the Treasury. 14. Now, the whole land did pay tribute, and did render obeisance unto the great Queen which ruled over the kingdoms of the North. 15. Now, the King dwelt in a Palace which stood in the midst of the City called Cuttakul.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE WISE MEN OF THE CITY.

1. Now there dwelt in the city many wise men. 2. And they bought and sold and did great business. 3. And they had mighty ships which went to and fro on the deep waters, and they did get much gain. 4. And the greatest and wisest of all the people was the merchant Ferdinand. 5. And his heart sank within him when he looked round and saw the misery of the people. 6. And he said unto himself, Wherefore doth the land lie waste, and why is it not tilled that it may bring forth fruits? 7. (For the whole land to the south of the kingdom, bordering on the sea coast, lay desolate). 8. And he called the chief men of the city together. 9. And he said unto them, Brethren, do ye not behold the desolation of the land, and know ye not that the King refuseth to do aught for the same? 10. Come now, therefore, let us go unto the King, and say unto him, Oh! King, give unto us the whole lands which lie to the South, stretching from the great river on the East to the great river on the West, to be wholly ours and our possession for ever, and we will give thee, therefore, much talents of silver, and thus will the King's Treasury be replenished, and we ourselves will till the land, and make it a fruitful place, and peradventure we and our children may get gain therefrom. 11. Then spake Bilkurn, the merchant, and Hugh, and Gam Ropaul Nose, and others of the wise men, and they said, It is good, let us do even so as Ferdinand hath said.

CHAPTER III.

OF THE WRITINGS WHICH WERE SENT TO THE KING.

1. Then the wise men of the city being still of one mind, did write letters unto the Prince

* A friend has sent us a copy of a story now circulating in Calcutta under this title, the contents of which we transfer to our columns.

Belvidere and unto the chief scribe of the King's household, whose name was Essilby. 2. And these letters besought the King that he should give over for a possession unto them, the whole of the desolate lands of the kingdom which lieth to the south on the sea coast. 3. Now it came to pass in the month of Maugh, on the 30th day of the month, that the King sat at the entering in of the gate and his councillors with him. 4. And one said, My Lord, look now upon the writings which the wise men of the city have sent unto my Lord through the Prince and the chief scribe. 5. But the King answered, I like not the writings of these people, nor the assembling of them together before me, wherefore trouble me not. 6. Then one said, I pray that my Lord the King listen but for a moment unto these writings, for they are wonderful. 7. Then the King said, Am not I the ruler of this people, wherefore, then, shall my days be made bitter with their complainings. 8. Then replied the Hakim Alltheway, and said, My Lord the King is weary, and must be refreshed. 9. And straightway he called out unto the servants, Peg do. 10. Then the mixture was brought unto the King, and when he had drunk thereof, lo! his body was refreshed, and he said unto his councillors, Read, then, the writings of which ye spake. 11. And they read the letters unto the King. 12. Furthermore, they read unto the King letters from the Prince Belvidere and from his chief scribe, whose name was Paradise. 13. And in both these letters did they urge the King to look favourably on the writings of the wise men. 14. Now when the King had heard what was written in the letters then did his heart rejoice within him exceedingly. 15. And he said, Lo! the thing is good. 16. And he said unto his councillors, now shall the treasures be filled with gold, and the land which hath lain barren shall be filled with good things. 17. Then said he unto his chief scribe, Write letters quickly, and say unto these men, Lo! all that you have asked shall be granted you. 18. Then the chief scribe wrote these words and sent them unto the merchant Bilkurn (for Ferdinando had gone on a journey towards the west). 19. Moreover, the chief scribe said unto Bilkurn, Write me, I pray thee, a letter which I may place on the Records of the kingdom, and write thereon the names of the lands which ye would have, and the measurement thereon. 20. Then did Bilkurn write letters as he was directed. 21. Now, Bilkurn was not so wise as Ferdinando, and he took no heed of what he wrote, for he wrote, Give unto us the lands of the Gerpunnahs only. 22. Now, it came to pass that in the month of Chitro, on the second day of the month, did Ferdinando return from the West. 23. And they told him—See now what Bilkurn hath done, how the writing of Bilkurn is different from the former writings. 24. Then was Ferdinando wroth, and he called unto him his chief scribe, and he said, Behold! the foot of Bilkurn hath been put in this, what shall we now do? 25. Then said the scribe, Let letters be sent quickly, and state therein how Bilkurn hath erred, so that no Goulmaul do arise. 26. And Ferdinando said, It is good—do even so. 27. And in the same month, Chitroo, on the 17th day of the month, were letters written by Ferdinando, and sent unto Essilby, and Paradise, and Alltheway. 28. And these writings prayed, that unto him should be given all the land of the Gerpunnahs, and of Pessore also, which stretched from the Great River on the west, to the Great River on the east, and which border on the sea coast. 29. Then did Prince Belvidere send letters, and said, All that ye ask is yours, even from the east to the west.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE KING AND HIS COUNCILLORS, AND THE ADVENTURE OF ALLTHEWAY.

1. And it was towards the going down of the sun, and the King sat amidst his councillors. 2. And the King mused within himself, and was weary for the time when his Treasury should be filled, with the price of the barren land, which the men of the City should pay. 3. Then Alltheway spoke and said, My Lord the King, wherefore hath my Lord given unto these people all that they asked, and for which my Lord will receive but talents of silver. Peradventure, if they secure one portion of the land, will not that suffice, and afterwards they will give talents of gold for the other portion. 4. Then the King said, truly, oh! Hakim, thy words are the words of wisdom, say on—what wouldst thou? 5. And Alltheway answered and said, Keep back from these people the lands of Pessore, which are the best lands. 6. Then spake Bane, one of the King's warriors, and said, Surely my Lord the King will not do this thing, which will seem vile in the eyes of all the people; and how can my Lord go back from what he and his scribes have written. 7. Then was the King wroth, for the lust of greed was upon him, and he said unto the warrior, Chuprao. 8. Then did the King retire to his private chamber, but he was troubled and could not sleep. 9. And at midnight he rose up and walked in the great hall. 10. And while he walked, behold the shadow of a man appeared on the wall, and the King trembled, and his spirit forsook him. 11. Then cried he, Who art thou? 12. Then came forward "Alltheway," the Hakim, and he said, My Lord, it is I. 13. Then said the King, Good Hakim, where hast thou been? Lo! thou art covered with dirt and ashes, from the crown of thy head to the sole of thy foot, and thou smellst strongly. 14. Then answered Alltheway, and said, My Lord, many days have I thought within myself that the servants of the King stole and wasted my Lord's food. 15. Therefore I hid me underneath the table which is in the King's bawm-cheekhana. 16. And lo! while I watched, one put a mutton-bone into his girdle, and covered it up. 17. Then rose I quickly, and puckerowed the slave, and wrested from him the bone, which is even now in my hand. 18. Then spake the King and said, Thou hast done well, peradventure much soup may be made from the marrow of that bone—and now, to-morrow, let the slave be brought before the Judge.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE COUNCIL WHICH WAS HELD BY FERDINANDO.

1. Now it came to pass that in the month Chitro, on the 25th day of the month, that the King wrote letters unto Ferdinando, and said, I cannot give you all the land ye wanted, but only the Gerpunnah lands. 2. Then was Ferdinando exceedingly wroth. 3. And he called unto him a Council of the wise men. 4. And there came unto the Council Mall and Koles, and Hugh and Ka-kay, and Witley and Megumberditter, and Gam Ropaul Nose, and many others. 5. And they were all wroth with the King and his councillors. 6. And one said, Since the King refuseth to give all the lands which he at first promised, verily we will have none of them. 7. Then they all of one accord said, It is good, do even so.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF THE AFFAIR.

1. Now the King sat with his councillors in the garden of the palace. 2. And a messenger drew nigh unto the King, and bowed to the ground. 3. And the King said, What wilt thou? 4. And he said, I bring letters from the merchant Ferdinando. 5. Now, when the King had opened the letter and read the words which were written therein he he was exceedingly troubled. 6. And he rose up quickly, and would have rent his mantle but for the cost thereof. 7. Then said the councillors unto him, What aileth my Lord? 8. And the King spake and said, Ye are all vile men and evil councillors. 9. And they answered, Say not so, oh! King. 10. But he answered them and said, Hold your peace. Had I not hearkened unto your words, even now would my treasury been filled with talents of silver. 11. Then the King cast himself upon the ground and wept. 13. And they all wondered and said, What thing is this that has been told unto the King? 13. Then the King rose up quickly and read unto his councillors the words which were written by Ferdinando, saying, If the King will not give me all the lands as the King hath promised, verily, then will I have none of them. 14. Then was Threevilain sore dismayed, for he had made an oration unto the people, and told them of the price which would be given for the land. 15. Then spake, an inferior scribe, whose name was Moleteeth, and said, My Lord, I, thy servant, will write letters unto this fellow, in my Lord's name, and I will teach him to eat his own words. 16. And the King said, Do even as it seemeth good unto thee, for the King was exceeding wroth. 17. Then thy wicked scribe did sit down and write letters in the King's name, and proclaimed the same abroad. 18. And he said that the wise men asked not for all the lands, but only for the Gerpunnah lands. 19. Furthermore, he said that the good and wise Ferdinando was a liar! 20. But he showed not the King the words which he had written. 21. And when the King saw the letters which had been proclaimed abroad, then was he grieved, and said unto Moleteeth. 22. Wherefore now has thou offended my people; couldst thou not have written the words of truth? 23. Nevertheless, the King's mouth was shut, for he had said unto Moleteeth, the Scribe, do even as seemeth good unto thee. 24. And it came to pass that when the men of the city saw the letters which had been proclaimed abroad, and read the words thereof, they were very wroth. 25. And they said, wherefore doth this old woman rule over us? 26. Come, we will send writings unto the great Queen of the North, that she may command the King of the East, who is tributary unto her, to do justice unto us, and to grant us the desired lands to be for a possession unto us and to our children for all generations. 27. And they said, It is good, even so let us do. 28. Nevertheless, Witley (who cometh from the land of the Lankies, and who loveth his gold better than aught besides) said, Nay, brethren, ask not again for this land, peradventure we make not so much gain out of it. 29. But Ferdinando said unto him, Hold thy peace, and trouble us not. We seek not after much gain, but for the good of the kingdom and the people that dwell therein, and clearing away of the jungle, and driving out of the wild beasts, and the making waste places habitable, and that the people may live in health and safety, and that trade may prosper. 30. Then did they shout aloud, and cried, who is alike unto Ferdinando. Long live Ferdinando! and may all that he putteth his hand to prosper. 31. But Witley turned and fled unto his own house, for he was very sorrowful at the words he had spoken. 32. Now the rest of the acts of the King, and of all that Ferdinando the merchant did, and how the Queen of the North gave unto him all the lands which he wished for, and how the wild beasts were driven out, and the sweet waters made to spring up, and the barren places made fruitful, and the wilderness to sing with joy, are not all these things written in the Books of the Chronicle of the Kingdom of the East? 33. And the King and his councillors, and Ferdinando and other wise men slept with their fathers, but not until all these things had been accomplished.

TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION WITH INDIA.

It was thought to be a great day for India when a telegraphic message from London was received in less than forty-eight hours. The suspension of communication on this line for some weeks now brings home to us a very unpleasant lesson on the vanity of human hopes and wishes. We confess we are free from any extraordinary anxiety to ascertain the particular cause of what is already generally felt to be a very grievous privation. We have a melancholy presentiment that reasons only too obvious and too numerous will be forthcoming to show how, in a line carried by such a circuit, through so vast a tract of half civilised country, the accident which suspended our intercourse was quite unavoidable; and we fear there is no reason whatever to doubt that what has occurred so naturally at this early stage in the history of the enterprise, may, and indeed must, from time to time, occur again. The disturbing causes on this long line are far too numerous to permit of a doubt that irregularity will be the normal condition of its working. But it would be unreasonable to make this defect a ground of reproach to the projectors of the plan, and we certainly feel no disposition to dilate upon its imperfections. We acknowledge, with becoming gratitude, the benefit, such as it is, that we have already enjoyed; and this feeling is ready to expand to any dimensions demanded by a due sense of favours to come. If the skill and energy which carried out this scheme prove equal to the more onerous task of surmounting the various difficulties opposed to its uninterrupted working, so much the greater credit will abound to those who effected a consummation so much to be desired. But, as the Spaniard very profoundly remarks, "Nobody has seen to-morrow;" and as our experience does not contradict this truth, and our vision of the future of the Indo-European telegraph is confessedly limited, we naturally ask why we should trust to that alone. It must be remembered that the Indo-European line, even if it be considered the most practical scheme for affording communication with England, is not the first that has been tried. The Red Sea telegraph line was actually completed some years ago—at least, it was so far an accomplished fact that a message passed through the entire distance, which has secured to the shareholders in the undertaking their guaranteed interest, as completely as if the success had been perfect. The cable, however, having done this excellent service to its proprietors, could never be coaxed into doing anything more; and rather than go to any further expense in regard to it, the Government very unwisely, we think, abandoned the undertaking altogether, allowing the company to dissolve, after converting its £800,000 of stock into long annuities. A new company (still in existence, and styled "The Telegraph to India Company") was formed, to which the entire plant of the old company was made over gratis, and it raised sufficient capital to send round to the Red Sea about two hundred miles of new cable, for the purpose of repairing what was defective in the old. It was then discovered that, by the ignorance and precipitance of the persons employed, the cable had been laid far too taut, and had already divided in so many places that it would not repay the expense of fishing it up. The new company declined to raise the capital necessary for laying a new cable, as Sir Charles Wood (who can never master more than one idea, and was then bent upon a line by the Persian Gulf) refused to give any assistance. It thus found itself considerably out of pocket by accepting from the munificent secretary this grant of valuable property at the bottom of the Red Sea. Its entire capital, in fact, was absorbed in the conveyance of the piece of new cable to and from India, the loss on its re-sale, and sundry other expenses; but it has derived a small revenue from its land line of wire between Alexandria and Suez. It has also about two hundred miles of cable, extending from Suez to the island of Jubal, which is still probably in working order, and was in regular use till about two years ago, when the P. and O. Company declined to allow their steamers any longer to run the risk of calling at the island. Unless now it could be shown that, using every precaution, and all those improved appliances which science has rendered available at the present day, it would still be impossible to lay an efficient cable from Suez to Kurrachee, the attempt ought at once to be made. If the objection we refer to be not insuperable—and we believe there is no just ground for considering it so—this line, in every other respect, is incomparably more eligible than that which has been established, and has already proved unreliable. Were both lines in perfect working order, it seems certain that a message could be conveyed to Kurrachee, via Egypt, in far less time than it would take via Constantinople; and while, in the former case, the only source of danger would be found in those general causes that affect submarine telegraphy, and we should have entire control over the line from India to the continent of Europe,—in the other case, interruption is probable from every conceivable cause, and, for a considerable portion of the distance, the line is at the mercy of the half-civilised Turkish Government, and of barbarous tribes that can never be wholly trusted. Notwithstanding the extremely moderate success that has been achieved, we should see nothing but what was commendable in Sir Charles Wood's attempt to establish the Indo-European line, had he not so completely failed to understand the absolute necessity that co-exists for securing an alternative means of communication through Egypt. Possibly, no such pressure may be put upon him as will move the dogged obstinacy with which he adheres to any plan formed by himself. No private company could be induced to undertake such a work without assistance, in some shape or other, from the State; but the privileges which have been secured by "The Telegraph to India Company," though availing it little enough at present, would enable it to carry out the work at a moderate expense. The entire sum spent by the Red Sea Telegraph Company amounted to £800,000, and it is probable that half a million would enable the new company to complete the work. We strongly object to the principle of Government saddling itself with the obligation of guaranteeing interest on capital; but, where a great work of public utility has to be carried out, Government must contribute in some way to relieve private enterprise from a part of the risk in undertaking it. A payment in cash of one-fifth of the estimated cost, would probably be accepted in this case, and, if so, we think the object to be gained would fully repay the outlay. A lac of pounds would surely not be much to secure an alternative line of telegraphic communication with England.—Englishman, July 31.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILITARY ITEMS.—Lieutenant Stansfield, late 6th European Regiment, has been recommended to Government as Adjutant to the Calcutta Volunteers.—It has been ruled that a Warrant Officer must re-engage, to make his transfer legal. Bounty money cannot be refused, whatever the position of the officer or his prospects may be.—There is every likelihood of a great want of horses being felt for the Artillery and Cavalry, when the next Annual Casting Committee finishes its labours. The Government has, in the meanwhile, we understand, authorised the purchase of a hundred horses for the Artillery from Cook and Co., at a limit of Rs. 700 each. But this will go but a small way towards the necessities of the services, both of Artillery and Cavalry.—Colonel D. M. Stewart, the present Deputy Adjutant-General, will probably be shortly gazetted to a Brigade command.—Since the 11th Regiment N.I. arrived at Putla Kowa, on the 17th April last, out of eleven European officers, five have left, sick; four have died, two in May and two in July; and of the remaining two, one has been sick the last six weeks.—Further reductions in the higher appointments of the Medical Service are in contemplation. It is said that the number of Inspectors-General are to be reduced, and the promotion of more than one officer will be delayed in consequence. Among others, we hear that Garrison Surgeon Dr. O'Callagan will have to resume his appointment in Fort William at the expiry of his leave, instead of proceeding to Mean Meer as Deputy Inspector-General, as was before reported.—Instructions have been issued by the Commander-in-Chief that warrant officers, in the Civil Departments of the army administration, are not amenable to the orders of regimental or station authorities. It has been lately decided by Government that, while in India, officers of the Royal Artillery, whether of the old or new Brigades, shall alike draw pay under the Indian Rules; that is to say, according to their standing on the Regimental List, irrespective of their position in their Brigades.

CHANGES IN THE QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.—The following alterations and arrangements will shortly take place in the Quartermaster-General's Department:—Major Johnson, from the Calcutta office to Simla. Captain Norman to the Presidency Division, as Assistant Quartermaster-General. Captain Bruce, Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General, Presidency Division, will remain, and the embarkation duties be in future entirely conducted under the orders of the officer commanding the Presidency Division. Lieut. Buller, Officiating Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General, Presidency Division, will, on the return of Captain Bruce, proceed to Benares, to which division, also, Lieut. Stone has been appointed—probably with the view of one of these officers being available in the Bhootan Field Force. There will shortly be further alterations in this department, as there are several officers about to proceed on leave.

RAILWAY IMPROVEMENTS IN CALCUTTA.—In submitting to the Local Government the report of the Committee on the Junction of the East Indian and Eastern Bengal railways by a bridge over the Hooghly, Captain Taylor has, we are informed, recommended the greatest caution in sanctioning in extenso the railway works indicated in the report, as they will involve Government in a heavy pecuniary liability for land, the ultimate limit of which cannot be foreseen. The Committee are unanimously agreed that there is no necessary connection between the goods and passenger business, and recommended that the passenger traffic of all three railways shall be massed at Sealdah, and the goods traffic taken elsewhere. The idea of collecting the passenger traffic into one focus, Captain Taylor thinks an admirable one. If the suggestion of Mr. Prestage, of extending the three railways by single lines from the Central station at Sealdah to the east face of Dalhousie-square, be carried out, he observes that there will be no necessity for disturbing the existing auxiliary arrangements of the Eastern Bengal Railway, and the necessary appliances for the East Indian Railway may be added to the east of the main line without taking up much additional land. It even seems to him possible, in that case, to retain the Eastern Bengal Railway goods station on its present site, and the Calcutta and South Eastern Railway, who have not yet commenced a permanent passenger station, would, doubtless, willingly co-operate; their goods station need not be disturbed. Captain Taylor recommends the Government to postpone all consideration of the committee's recommendations, regarding the goods terminus of the East India Railway, till the bridge and passenger lines have approached completion. Captain Taylor further proposes that, in case of the sanction of the line from Sealdah to Dalhousie-square, the municipality should provide the land free of cost, and be empowered to assess the traffic. An opening would, he thinks, be thus afforded for great municipal improvements in the vicinity of the lines, and the Supreme Government might, without risk, guarantee interest at five per cent. on the capital raised to purchase the land.

A JUDGE COME TO GRIEF.—We observe that the case of Mr. G. C. Fletcher, the late Civil and Sessions Judge of West Burdwan, attracted the attention of Sir Charles Wood, the Secretary of State for India, who stated that, with reference to the conduct of Mr. Fletcher, in regard to the purchase of jewels belonging to the family of one of the Moon-siffs within his jurisdiction, and to his inattention throughout the past year to the repeated admonitions of the High Court, regarding his insufficient work and utter disregard of the proper administration of justice, by allowing cases, without any sufficient reason, to remain pending for upwards of a year, it did not appear to Sir Charles that the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal could have adopted any other course than that of removing Mr. Fletcher from the office of Civil and Sessions Judge. The question of the future employment of Mr. Fletcher, in any office for which he might be qualified, on his abandoning the eccentric habits to which constant reference was made, Sir Charles left in the hands of the Lieut.-Governor, subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council.—Englishman.

SODA WATER AND SIR HUGH ROSE.—The Englishman says:—We find that we have unintentionally done some injustice to Sir Hugh Rose, in ascribing to Sir William Mansfield the whole credit of having moved the Government to aid in the establishment of soda-water machines in the various European regiments in India. The long delays which are invariably interposed by the Home Government, where any reference is made for its sanction to carry out any useful project, have in this case, deprived the late Commander-in-Chief of the pleasure of seeing his plan authorised before he left India. It was on the success which attended an experiment made in the 7th Dragoon Guards, that Sir Hugh Rose based his recommendation that these machines should be established in every regiment; but, from the wording of Sir William Mansfield's announcement of the concession, we were not unnaturally led into the error of supposing that the recommendation originated with him. While on this subject, we must observe, further, that the liberality of the concession made by Sir Charles Wood is less remarkable than we had supposed, since the advance made by the Government is to be recovered by moderate instalments.

THE "RELIEF."—We understand that the orders for the relief have not given general satisfaction. We hardly expected that they would. The chief principle upon which these changes have lately been made appears to be the principle of economy. Those movements which shall entail the least expense upon the State have evidently been the movements which have recommended themselves to the military authorities. But, as there is said to be reason in the roasting of eggs, it appears to us that there ought to be reason also in the roasting of soldiers. We have received communications regarding the apparent unfairness with which, in some instances, regiments have been treated in these late orders.—Englishman.

THE EUROPEAN VAGRANT.—The Delhi Gazette says:—The ordinary average vagrant starts from Bombay or Calcutta and begs his way round Hindoostan; he visits the house of every European in every station he enters, and three out of four of those to whom he applies believe his pitiful story and assist him. When he has done with the station he goes to the magistrate and to other officials, and asks for an appointment, which he rarely succeeds in obtaining; he then applies to the Relief Fund, from which he demands assistance as his right, and invariably obtains three or four rupees unless he is recognised as an old customer. After he has gone through that he will go to the bazaar and beg and accept coppers, &c., from natives; this we know to be a fact; and it is only when he has plucked a station as clearly as his assurance will permit him, or has received several warnings from the police that his drunken squabbles will get him into trouble if he does not move on, that he goes into the neighbouring preserve. This sort of precarious idle life becomes to a loafer as natural, necessary, and palatable, as poaching to a poacher, game to a sportsman, and money to a miser. You might just as well try with any chance of success to get a loafer to enlist, or to take to any appointment where he would be under orders, as to train a full grown tiger to chum with a buffalo without picking a hole in his coat. The evil is not only aggravated but greatly encouraged by those persons who consider that a rupee to a loafer is a safe investment, inasmuch as it pleases him and does not injure themselves; it is a mistake for such people to lay the flattering unction to their souls that such acts will be credited as charity; whilst they delude themselves thus, they are in reality encouraging a vicious system and assisting the ruin of men who would otherwise be obliged to work for their living. It has been frequently stated that the existence of relief funds is the chief incitement to vagrancy; this is a great mistake; it has arisen through people not giving the subject sufficient thought. The only possible way that the evil can be checked, and we believe eventually cured, is by the establishment of relief funds at every station, and the steady refusal on the part of all, whether they support the fund or not, to give any thing in the shape of food or money to loafers.

MILITARY CHANGES AT LUCKNOW.—Orders, we understand, have been issued to abolish the military provost establishment at Lucknow, maintained since 1858, as soon as the chief commissioner and the municipality can make their own arrangements for the preservation of order in the city, under the ordinary civil administration of the country. We hear that the following appointments have been made:—5th Bengal Cavalry: Captain A. H. Osborn, 2nd squadron officer, to act as second in command; and squadron officer Captain D. Compton, late 2nd European Cavalry, to act as second squadron officer. 7th Bengal Cavalry: Major L. J. Farquharson, from 5th Bengal Cavalry, to act as commandant; Major C. H. Barchard, C.B., late 20th N.I., to be second squadron officer. 16th Bengal Cavalry: Major R. Jenkins, late Lahore Light Horse, to act as commandant. 6th Native Infantry: Lieutenant A. T. Davis, doing duty officer, to act as adjutant.

A COUPLE OF FAILURES.—Sir Charles Wood has inquired into two little matters lately, which the public supposed had been settled and forgotten. He has called for one report on the failure of Colonel Reed to establish a colony of Goorkhas in the Kumaon Hills, and for another on the failure of Lieutenant Hennessey's recruiting amongst the Jats. As far as we can recollect, Colonel Reed had Rs. 3,000 placed at his disposal to induce the Goorkhas to establish a settlement in Kumaon, but the Nepal Durbar set their face against the scheme, and it therefore, as a matter of course, came to nothing. The recruiting among the Jats failed from a precisely similar reason. The Bhurtpore Durbar objected to Jats being tempted to enlist in the Native army, and the matter dropped. Does the Secretary of State intend to revive both schemes?—Bengal Harkara.

MR. WINGFIELD AND MR. MUIR.—The Pioneer says:—"Mr. Wingfield has, we are informed, tendered his resignation of the Commissionership of Oude, and also applied for three months' leave. The resignation must of course be accepted, as Mr. Wingfield has made up his mind to retire, while we understand that he receives his leave upon very favourable terms, empowering him to visit the hills, and yet carry on his government with full pay. Such a trifle, to our mind, speaks not a little for the large-heartedness of the Viceroy, to whom a personal feeling in the prosecution of the late inquiries had been but too frequently attributed. We have an impression that the Hon. W. Muir will succeed to the Commissionership as a stepping-stone to the Lieut.-Governorship of the North-Western Provinces; that is to say, if he can care to exchange Simla for Lucknow, with but, as we believe, a very moderate inducement in increased emoluments."

ANOTHER TURF SCANDAL.—Letters from Cawnpore allude to the occurrence of another serious turf scandal, the particulars of which must, sooner or later, come out. We shall make it our business to seek more precise information, and publish it. Constituted as the turf of Upper India is, supported by men holding the position of gentlemen, with the identity of almost every one of its members known to the public, a charge against any one of them assumes such an unpleasant prominence as does not attach to similar occurrences in sporting annals at home. The mysterious manner in which the last unfortunate incident of the kind under notice disappeared from the arena of public inquiry can have been satisfactory to no one, least of all to the gentleman most concerned, if, as his advocates state the case, he really was anxious to be judged fairly on his merits.—Pioneer.

THE ADJUTANT GENERALSHIP.—It is said to be quite decided that Colonel Haythorne will resign the Adjutant-Generalship of the Army, and return home in September. It is perhaps the highest praise that can be awarded to any occupant of that particular post to say that his departure will be universally regretted. Speculation is of course busy with the question of a successor, and we have heard mentioned prominently the names of Colonel Henry Errington Longdon, C.B., and of Colonel D. M. Stewart, the present Deputy Adjutant-General. We are in a position to state that the appointment has been given to the former, who is at present on the half-pay list in England. He will arrive here in time to take over charge before Colonel Haythorne's departure.

HONOURS FOR THE BHOOTAN CAMPAIGN.—General Toombs would be the very best of commanders to serve under, if he could but give his patronage the stamp of permanent value. The general has, we believe, essayed to scatter honours with the traditional plenty of blackberries; more than a hundred officers having been recommended to H.E. the Chief for the bestowal of distinctive honours varying from a V.C. downwards. No one doubts but that the honours would have been earned if the occasion had presented itself, but no phase of this repulsive war has furnished it.

PLEASANT FOR THE CIVIL SERVICE.—The Pioneer says:—"The warmest advocate of the competition system will, we fancy, hardly be prepared for the announcement that a son of Calcraft, the hangman, intends to present himself this year as a candidate for the Indian Civil Service. Yet such is, we are assured, the case, and, as if to destroy all remembrance of his former self, we hear that this worthy son of a worthy father will compete under an assumed name. We shall be rather curious to know what the commissioners in Dean's-yard have to say to this little arrangement."

SIR BARNES PEACOCK, Chief Justice of Calcutta, is now satisfactorily recovering from his late serious illness, but it is feared that he will have to leave India.

CHOLERA.—We regret to record another victim to cholera in Bhootan in the person of Lieutenant T. R. Taylor, Quartermaster, 11th N.I., who died at Putta Kowa, in the Western Doorgs, but a few days back.

MORE DOCTORS WANTED.—It is said that the want of medical officers for duty in India has at last arrived at such a pitch, that, at the suggestion of the Commander-in-Chief, Government has telegraphed to Sir Charles Wood upon the subject. The department is miserably underhanded, because its members are underpaid and uncared for, and have been systematically deceived by the Secretary of State. Regretting the present condition of things as an immediate evil, we could otherwise rather congratulate our India Medical Establishment upon a dilemma that will probably enforce an improvement in their position ere long.

WORN-OUT BULLION.—We hear that a large sum of money, nearly 40 lakhs of rupees, and about 50,000 gold mohurs, short in weight, have accumulated in the treasury of the N.W. Provinces. These coins have been found to be worn-out by constant use, and to have been scratched and notched. Instructions have been issued to the local authorities to remit these coins to Calcutta, where they are to be examined, and if found to be unfit for further circulation will be sent off to the Mint for re-coining.

MR. JUGGONATH SUNKERSETT, a member of the Local Legislative Council, and an able and worthy member of the native community, died on the 31st July.

MR. THOMAS CHISHOLM ANSTEY has been appointed to an acting Judgeship in the High Court during the absence of Sir Joseph Arnould.

THE COURT MARTIAL UPON THE ARTIFICERS OF THE GUN-CARRIAGE FACTORY.—The Athenaeum says:—We understand that the eight men recently tried by general court-martial were all found guilty of the grave charge brought against them; the chief offender has been sentenced to two years' penal servitude, and the rest to fifty lashes each and imprisonment for twelve months, the last week of each month to be solitary confinement. In confirming the proceedings the Commander-in-Chief has remarked on the leniency of the sentence compared with the heinous offence of which these men have been found guilty. It is sad to reflect upon the degradation and punishment which these misguided men have brought upon themselves, and we trust that their comrades will take warning in time and not again be led astray from the strict path of military duty. We give another extract on the same subject, in order to give publicity to the admirable remarks of the Commander-in-Chief for the benefit of men in the ranks:—The Artificers.—As stated by us last week the seven men recently tried by general court-martial, were sentenced, one to rigorous imprisonment for two years, and the other six to corporal punishment to the extent of fifty lashes each, and rigorous imprisonment for twelve months—the last seven days in every month of such imprisonment being solitary. The Commander-in-Chief, in confirming the sentence made the following remarks:—"The sentences of the Court on the above trials are lenient for the offence of mutiny, made liable to penal servitude or to death, but I have confirmed them as there are circumstances connected with the conduct of these prisoners recorded in the evidence that induce me to do so. The artificers well know that if they have any cause of complaint they can obtain redress through their commanding officer, and they also know how to apply for it according to the regulations of the service. There is no necessity to resort to the paid advocacy of those without the service. They also know well that any combination on their part to obtain their ends is a military offence of the gravest nature, and they now know beyond any doubt, that a combined resistance to the lawful command of their superiors is mutiny. These prisoners plead that they with others had been misled by one they considered capable of advocating their cause in a just and lawful manner; and by the evidence it certainly does appear to have been so, as every act of insubordination was dictated by that person. But for the maintenance of discipline, and as an example to others of the company, they must undergo their punishment that their comrades may see the peril soldiers incur, when in forgetfulness of their duty they think to obtain redress for any real or imaginary grievance by refusing submission to authority." The sentence has been carried into effect under the orders of the officers commanding the division, six of the men having been flogged in the Gun Carriage-yard on Wednesday morning. The Delhi Gazette, alluding to this subject says:—"The demands of military justice being thus satisfied, we trust, without attempting for one moment to extenuate the grave breach of military discipline of which these deluded men have been convicted, we may now ask what is to become of their wives and children during their incarceration—and whether Government intend to institute any inquiry into the cause of the recent emente."

GROWTH OF CAROLINA RICE IN THE NELLORE DISTRICT.—Mr. J. W. B. Dykes, Collector of Nellore, has reported to Government that the packet of seed with which he was furnished for this district, he gave to a Nellore ryot, who took good care of it, and gathered a crop of about four bushels. A portion of this crop he exhibited at the Nellore Agricultural Show, and it was considered by the committee to be superior to the rice generally grown in the district:—"The grain was large, white, and well shaped." Mr. Dykes procured three bushels of the grain from the ryot, and distributed two bushels to four of the Aicut villages, and the third bushel to other ryots in Nellore. He hopes next year not only to give the rice a wider trial than he has been able as yet, but also to have nearly 15 cwt. available for seed grain. He suggests, however, that it would be well to plant fresh grain alongside of it, and have the means of comparing the growth of imported seed with the results obtained when the grain has been already used for a year in the country, and the effects of the soil and climate have had an opportunity of developing themselves. Mr. Dykes is of opinion that the introduction of this new variety of rice promises to be most beneficial.—Times.

THE VOLUNTEERS.—The process of "drumming out" is a rare occurrence in a volunteer corps, and in no single instance has a member of the Madras Volunteer Guards been put through this unpleasant operation before. Last Saturday, while the corps was drawn up in line and men standing to "attention," a member of No. 5 company thought proper to take French leave and to convert the position of "attention" to that of "stand easy." This proceeding naturally called forth a severe rebuke from the officer in charge of the company, who threatened him with dismissal. The offender retaliated and said he would save his officer the pain of dismissing him by dismissing himself. The commanding officer summoned the regiment and declared the refractory volunteer to be dismissed for his gross insubordination.

THE MADRAS MEDICAL COLLEGE.—The Government of India has, on the recommendation of the local Government at Madras, sanctioned the opening of a separate English department in connection with the Medical College at that Presidency, where European youths residing in this country will be admitted and educated in higher branches of medical science. If we are rightly informed, young men who will come out from this department of the college after passing the prescribed ordeal, and after receiving their diplomas, will be designated Assistant Civil Surgeons of the Indian Medical Service. For this purpose the Governor-general in Council has also sanctioned an increase to the staff professors at the said college. Three additional professors are to be appointed, on a salary of Rs. 500 each per mensem—viz., one of Botany and Physiology, another of Comparative Anatomy and Surgery, and another of Midwifery and Hygiene, as proposed by the Director of Public Instruction at Madras.—Hurkaru.

THE GOVERNORSHIP OF MADRAS.—The Pioneer believes that there is not the slightest truth in the rumour that Sir Robert Montgomery will succeed to the Governorship of Madras, nor, indeed, that he will ever return to India. Sir William Denison, our contemporary believes, has not yet sent in his resignation, nor is his probable successor named.

BOMBAY.

MR. CRAWFORD AND MR. ANSTEY.

Thomas C. Anstey, Esq., barrister-at-law, appeared on the 26th of July before R. B. Barton, Esq., Acting Chief Magistrate, to answer a charge of defamation preferred against him by William H. Crawford, Esq., solicitor. The case was fixed to be heard at twelve o'clock. Mr. Crawford appeared in court some time before the appointed hour, and Mr. Barton asked if he was ready to go on with the case.

Mr. Crawford said it had been fixed for twelve o'clock, and the defendant was not yet forward.

Mr. Barton: I should like to see if it is not possible that an amicable arrangement can be come to. It was a very sad case to come before a court.

Mr. Crawford: There is no other way of an amicable arrangement being come to except by Mr. Anstey giving me a written ample apology. If he will not do that then I will proceed with it.

When twelve o'clock struck Mr. Anstey entered the court, accompanied by his solicitor, Mr. Cleveland, of Messrs. Bickersteth, Cleveland and Peile, and advanced to the table in front of the Bench where it is usual for the solicitors in cases coming before the court to sit. The court was filled.

His Worship (to Mr. Anstey, who remained standing apparently uncertain whether his case would be called next): Mr. Anstey, sit down, sir.

Mr. Anstey: My place is there, sir (pointing to the dock).

His Worship: No, sir.

Mr. Anstey accordingly took his seat by the side of Mr. Cleveland, who conducted the case throughout.

His Worship: Give me the information in this case.

Mr. Cleveland: Before you commence, I may say that question almost entirely depends upon one or two words, and I think it would be advisable that the witnesses should be asked to leave the court, not only while the case is going on, but while the information is being read.

The witnesses were ordered out of court.

Mr. Crawford: I mean to call Mr. Cleveland as a witness. He may leave the court if he pleases.

Mr. Cleveland: After the case is over.

Mr. Crawford: I mean to call you.

Mr. Cleveland: I am not subpoenaed.

Mr. Crawford: But I mean to call you.

Mr. Crawford then went into the witness box, and the oath was administered to him, and the magistrate read the information which had been laid by Mr. Crawford. The information did not describe Mr. Anstey as barrister-at-law, and when it had been taken down that designation had been introduced.

Mr. Crawford objected to the impression, and said that was not his information. The information he had laid was against "Mr. T. C. Anstey." Nobody had a right to alter his deposition.

His Worship: Mr. Anstey is entitled to the designation.

Mr. Crawford: I do not deny it.

Mr. Cleveland also drew attention to the fact that it was held to be an insult to a barrister to describe him as "Mr.," as he was declared to be "Esquire" by Act of Parliament. He therefore craved that the summons be amended under the statute to that effect, and also to the effect of having the word barrister-at-law introduced into it.

His Worship (to Mr. Crawford): You have no objection to the summons being amended?

Mr. Crawford: Not the smallest, consistent with the Act.

His Worship then read Mr. Crawford's deposition.

The defamatory words complained of and with which Mr. Anstey was charged were spoken by him in a speech before the Chief Justice in the matter of the Eastern Financial and the Imperial Bank. They are:—

"Mr. Crawford was present at the meeting (alluding to a meeting of the shareholders of the Eastern Financial) when we find him, instead of doing his duty and advising the company to pay its debts, making the following degrading proposition:—

"Gentlemen, if you don't wind up, you will have to pay another call to pay the debt of the Imperial who have taken proceedings against you."

"To have followed this advice would have been nothing more or less than to defraud their creditors."

Also:—

"The Eastern, I repeat, is a fraudulent company—all connected with it are a nest of swindlers who have been battenning on," &c., &c., &c.

The information also charged Mr. Anstey with uttering these words maliciously.

The proceedings were of great length, the report occupying nearly nine columns of the Bombay Gazette. An idea of the case may be gathered from the judgment of the magistrate.

His Worship then gave judgment as follows:—This is a case brought before me under Section 499 of the Penal Code, Mr. W. H. Crawford, solicitor, having lodged an information against Mr. Anstey, barrister-at-law, for defamatory words used during the trial of a suit brought by the Imperial Bank against the Eastern Financial Association. It is very painful to me on all accounts to be called upon to decide a case of so great importance, and though the law seems to me all on one side, I should have hesitated to give judgment to-day were it not that the facts are clear enough to leave no doubt on my mind as to what my judgment should be. Mr. Crawford is solicitor to the Eastern Financial Association, and at a public meeting of shareholders of that Association gave advice which Mr. Anstey, as counsel for the Imperial Bank which opposed the action taken by the Eastern in consequence of that advice, characterised in court as a "degrading proposition, to adopt which would have been to defraud their creditors." This is the only issue before me, whether these words were defamatory or not; for I am happy to say that the other words, "a nest of swindlers," have been unequivocally declared by the defendant not to have been intended in any way to include Mr. Crawford; and no one who knows Mr. Crawford, and the position in society he has maintained here for so many years, could imagine that the term swindler was meant to apply to him. Well, after the rising of the Court on the day when Mr. Anstey made the speech in question, Mr. Crawford followed him to the barrister's robing-room (an extraordinary, and in Westminster-hall, an unheard of proceeding on the part of an attorney) and called him to account for what he had said. Mr. Anstey refused to be cross-examined for anything spoken by him in court; whereupon Mr. Crawford denounced him in language which has been repeated in evidence; and Mr. Anstey, so far as appears, remained quiet and took no further steps at that time. The next morning a motion to strike Mr. Crawford's name off the roll of attorneys was postponed to allow time for an amicable settlement; and the prosecutor in this case, finding he had laid himself open to censure by what he had done, wrote an apology to Mr. Anstey for the opprobrious language used in the robing-room. With reference to Mr. Anstey's first letter, declaring Mr. Crawford's apology to be "in all respects quite satisfactory," and offering to do "all in his power," "by explanation or otherwise," to remove Mr. Crawford's cause of complaint against him, his Worship said:—This is a most gentlemanly, conciliatory, and peaceable letter; and it seems to me that a judicious peacemaker might have taken advantage of it to compose this unfortunate difference and prevent it from going any further. This, however, was not done; Mr. Crawford wrote an angry letter in reply to Mr. Anstey; and the information now before me was the result. The points, then, for me to consider, as laid down in the case which is the great authority, Hodgson v. Scarlett, are whether the words used by Mr. Anstey were relevant to the cause in which he was engaged as counsel, and whether they were spoken without express malice. As to malice, Mr. Crawford has given evidence of some hasty expression uttered by Mr. Anstey in court in another case in which he and Mr. Crawford were engaged as counsel and solicitor. My own experience as a barrister leads me to attach very slight importance to expressions of this kind, and besides it is impossible to maintain the charge of malice in face of the very explicit evidence of a desire for conciliation which is supplied by Mr. Anstey's own letter. I decide, therefore, that the words were not used maliciously, that there was no anger on Mr. Anstey's part, that if anything the angry feeling was on the other side, and that Mr. Anstey is quite blameless of malice in the affair. Then comes the question. Were the words relevant? What is relevancy? The comments must be pertinent to the cause at issue, and not exceeding the limits of the fair discretion of a counsel in speaking on the instructions contained in his brief. Now Mr. Crawford, it seems, attended a meeting of the Eastern Financial, and, in his capacity as solicitor, or mouthpiece of the directors, said to the shareholders:—"You must either wind up, or you will have to make another call." This advice the Imperial Bank interpreted to mean:—"You must either wind up now, or you will have to pay a call now," and, as it was evident that the effect of the shareholders taking the advice would be to keep the Imperial out of their money for a short time, or a long time, if not altogether, Mr. Anstey was instructed to denounce the proposed winding-up of the Eastern Financial as an attempt on their part to defraud their creditors. In the course of his speech he described the advice given by Mr. Crawford, speaking of that gentleman not as an individual, but as solicitor to the association, as a "degrading proposition." I am not prepared to say that this epithet "degrading," as in itself actionable. But setting that aside, let me ask to whom the advice was "degrading?" Not to Mr. Crawford; he did not give it that he might escape paying his debts, he had no more to do with the association in money matters than I have; but the consequences would (as Mr. Anstey was instructed and had a right to say) have been degrading to those who acted upon it. Taking this view of the case, then, and conceiving as I do that Mr. Anstey was fully within the privilege of his freedom of speech as a barrister in saying what he did, I am happily not called upon to discuss the opinions of Lord Ellenborough and other judges of great authority in the cases that have been quoted before me, or to establish a precedent which might be of great importance under the Indian Penal Code. Mr. Crawford's honour is quite unstained by anything that has passed in this case; and so is Mr. Anstey's. I am glad that there is no need to carry the matter further. I dismiss the case.

There was some applause in court when the decision of the magistrate was announced.

FRIGHTFUL RAILWAY ACCIDENT ON THE G.I.P. RAILWAY.

The public of Bombay have scarcely recovered from reading the reports of two frightful railway accidents in England, when we have to make the announcement of a fearful railway accident on the G.I.P. Railway, by which eight persons have lost their lives and seventeen been wounded.

The accident which we have to report took place at nine o'clock on Sunday morning, 30 ult., to the through passenger train from Shegaum, on the North-Eastern line, to Bombay, at a point close to where an accident occurred in June of last year, by which fifteen persons were killed and eighteen wounded.

The present accident, although less fatal in its result, was yet attended with the death of eight persons and injury to seventeen others. The train, containing in all between 200 and 300 passengers, had arrived at the 44 mileage between Titwala and Wassind, about 2½ miles from the former place, and 10 miles from Callian, when, from some unexplained cause, one of the carriages ran off the line, dragging with it the remainder of the train. One carriage, the first which left the line, became completely smashed up, and in this all the deaths and the chief portion of the injuries occurred. Fortunately the engine became detached from the train and remained on the line. It was immediately dispatched to Titwala to telegraph the occurrence to Bombay, and then proceeded to Callian for medical aid. Mr. Hart, the district traffic manager, with the company's medical men stationed at Callian, at once proceeded to the scene of the accident, and, after rendering the sufferers temporary relief, returned with them to the civil hospital at Tanna, where they arrived at four o'clock.

Upon the news reaching Tanna, Dr. Asher, the Civil Surgeon of the station, together with Mr. King, Assistant Magistrate, started by the train to Callian, and returned to Tanna along with the wounded. Upon arriving at the hospital in the latter place, a more minute examination of the sufferers' injuries were made, when they were glad to find that in only two cases the injuries were of a very serious nature. In one case the unfortunate man's arm had to be amputated and in the other the sufferer sustained a fracture of the thigh. The whole of them are reported to be doing exceedingly well, and five or six were enabled to come on to Bombay by the train which arrived in the evening.

At the portion of the line where the accident occurred the line is quite straight for several miles, and as the train was only running at its ordinary speed it is difficult to ascribe any cause for the accident. The carriage which first left the line was a third-class, and the killed and wounded are all natives, there being only one first-class passenger, Mr. J. Wainwright, in the train, who escaped in a miraculous manner. He was the only person in the carriage, which was thrown into the third-class one which was smashed to pieces; fortunately he sustained no injury whatever, and got out of the window of the carriage and rendered assistance to the wounded.

The telegram reporting the accident reached the Boree Bunder station at half-past 11 o'clock. Mr. E. W. Kelly, traffic manager of the Great Indian Peninsular Railway was immediately communicated with, and that gentleman, after several fruitless efforts to obtain medical assistance, left by a special train at one o'clock. He reached Callian at half-past two, and there awaited the arrival of Captain Osborn, who had been telegraphed for from Poona. Captain Osborn arrived at Callian at half-past four, and at once proceeded with Mr. Kelly to the scene of the accident. In the meantime all the available force had been sent on to clear the line of the debris.

An investigation into the cause of the accident was commenced on Monday morning, 31st ult., and concluded on the following day, at the Railway-station, Callian, before Joshua King, Esq., Assistant Magistrate, Tanna. The proceedings commenced by recording the evidence taken by a "Punch" by order of the Fouzdar of Callian before the Mamlutdar, at an inquiry into the cause of the death of Narayen Shastree, Rowjee Balajee, Shunker Hurbud, and five other natives whose names have not been ascertained. The conclusion or verdict come to was that "they had sat upon the bodies of the deceased persons abovementioned, and found that they had died through a railway accident."—Bombay Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CHARGE OF FORGERY AGAINST NEARLY A WHOLE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF A BOMBAY FINANCIAL.—Mr. Toolseydass Dewjee, merchant, residing in Modney Khana in the Fort and a Director of the Commercial Finance and Stock Exchange Corporation (Limited), appeared before R. B. Barton, Esq., Acting Senior Magistrate, on Saturday, 5th August, and charged a number of his co-directors with forgery. The facts of the charge as they will be gathered from the information, the substance of which is given below, are these:—Certain of the directors bought 4,000 shares in their own association as a speculation, providing two lacs of rupees of cash, and borrowing from their own association a little over two and a quarter lacs to pay for the same. The price of the shares fell, and certain of these directors arranged to concoct a scheme by which to avoid payment of their loan. They made a pretended purchase, on behalf of the company, of 4,200 shares from fictitious persons for cash, and they caused entries to be made in the books that their loan had been repaid to the association, and that a nearly corresponding sum had been paid to the fictitious sellers. By this means, according to the information, they attempted to wipe off their own debt, and at the same time account to the shareholders by entering a fictitious payment for the money not being in the hands of the corporation. His Worship granted a warrant for the apprehension of the parties against whom the information was laid, and also a warrant to search the premises of the corporation for the forged documents, books, and papers.

ACCIDENT TO MAJOR-GENERAL INNES.—Major-general Innes has met with a somewhat serious accident at Simla while driving down the new road towards his estate near Solon. When about ten miles from Simla the horse swerved at a point where a land-slip from the bank above had left but a very narrow passage, and carriage, horse and driver toppled over the khud. All three rolled down some thirty feet. The general was conveyed into Simla insensible, and although severely bruised and strained, under the skilful care of Dr. Cayley, was recovering favourably at the date of our correspondent's letter, the 22nd July. The carriage was knocked to pieces, while the horse scarcely sustained any injury; but perhaps the strangest part of the whole escape is that of the chief sufferer himself, for it is evident from the nature of his contusions that he fell first upon his head.

THE BANK OF BOMBAY.—The annual general meeting of the proprietors of the Bank of Bombay was held on the 7th inst., when a statement of affairs up to the 30th of June last was submitted, showing a net profit on the half-year of £198,208, after deducting £22,836 for a loss incurred at one of the branches; in consequence, no dividend has been declared for the past half-year.

PAY OF ASSISTANT SURGEONS.

No. 710.—The following letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India is published for general information:—

Military.—No. 195.

India Office, London, June 8, 1865.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. Gen. of India in Council.

Sir,—My despatch of May 16, 1864, No. 152, which gave to the assistant surgeons of the Indian forces of six years' service and above the rank of captain, also granted them the pay and Indian allowances of that grade.

The exceptional circumstances under which, in my despatch No. 285 of July 6, 1861, I authorised a continuance of the practice under which assistant surgeons of the Indian service, coming home on account of their health, receive an allowance of Rs. 1,200 on account of their passage, have now ceased.

This regulation will accordingly be abolished from June 15, 1864—the date of the receipt in India of my despatch No. 152 of May 16, 1864—and assistant surgeons of the Indian forces of six years' service and above will no longer be entitled to passage allowance on quitting India on sick certificate.

This decision will be communicated by your Government to those of Madras and Bombay, by the former of whom the question has been raised, whether the passage money issued to Asst. surgeon Eveyard of that establishment, on his proceeding to Europe on medical certificate in October, 1864, should be recovered from him.

In regard to this inquiry, I am of opinion that, in the few cases in which passage money has been granted, refund from the officers need not be required.—I have, &c.,

(Signed)

C. Wood.
